FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL
Constitutional Conference

While Ottawa, Quebec Lock Horns
Bennett Raises Hackles, Pet Plan

Pay Poor, Not Provinces—B.C.

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

While Ottawa and Quebec appeared to be locked in an impasse over income security policies, British Columbia stands on the sidelines with a proposal which Premier Bennett said Monday will solve everyone's problems.

Bennett, who clashed sharply with Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa at the opening session of the three-day federal-provincial constitutional conference over equalization payments, later told reporters he will make a detailed proposal, including costs of a guaranteed annual income plan for all Canadians.

The B.C. premier drew the ire of Bourassa when he told the conference this province is "unalterably opposed" to continuation of equalization payments to the seven so-called have-not provinces, which include Quebec.

Bennett went on to claim that over the "three latest years" equalization payments and federal payments to special programs in the province of Quebec had increased from $440 million to $773 million.

In his opening remarks Bourassa termed the charge "inaccurate and unjustified," arguing that in proportion to their budget, other have-not provinces receive more than Quebec. And the Quebec premier said it was "short-sighted" to restrict the argument to equalization payments when the whole field of monetary, tariff and financial policies was affected by the redistribution of wealth in Canada.

Bennett, however, wasn't prepared to let the matter rest and after lunch when the conference had gone into closed session he came to the press gallery to reply to Bourassa's statement. He told reporters the figures on equalization payments which he quoted were "gathered from many sources" but principally from one of Quebec's leading newspapers, Le Devoir.

The B.C. premier said he wasn't opposed to the people of Quebec or of other have-not provinces receiving federal aid, but argued the present system of equalization grants poured hundreds of millions of dollars "into the establishment, to the bureaucrats, and it doesn't go to the poor people who need it."

The Trudeau government, Bennett added, should be thrown out of office if Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget next Friday doesn't contain greatly increased tax exemptions for individuals which could serve as the base for a guaranteed annual income scheme.

Such a scheme, based upon the negative income tax principle in which all Canadians earning less than an established base income

In His Stride

Formula Holdup Quebec Warning

By DON MacPHERSON
Canadian Press

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Monday his province will not formally accept a proposed formula for bringing the constitutional amending process home to Canada unless it gets what it wants in the field of social policy.

Bourassa told reporters his government and the people of Quebec would not accept the suggested formula unless Ottawa and the other provinces agree to a constitutional amendment increasing provincial powers in the field of social legislation.

The amending formula a question of form, cannot be accepted purely and simply without the settlement of a question of fundamentals, and social policy is for us a question of fundamentals, he said.

A formula for amending the Canadian constitution in Canada, without referring to the British Parliament as now is the case is under discussion at the constitutional conference which began Monday.

Bourassa said the formula would not receive Quebec's formal approval until the Quebec national assembly passed a resolution to that effect.

"No resolution will be presented if Quebec does not get satisfaction on a question of fundamentals, a question of substance," he said.

Quebec wants a constitutional amendment giving it and the other provinces legislative "primacy" in the field of income-security programs.

Social policy is to be discussed today at the conference which, after opening statements by each of the participating governments, continued behind closed doors.

Bourassa said he will make it clear to the other participants that Quebec will not accept the amending formula

Trudeau Saw Red—in Lapel

Bennett Created Waves While Joey Drew Laughs

By DON COLLINS

Canada's problems in case anyone has doubts are indeed varied.

The order of importance depends on where you live.

If you are Joey Smallwood and premier of Newfoundland, you get right down to the business of telling Prime Minister Trudeau the time is at hand to give the provinces offshore land and mineral rights.

If you are Saskatchewan attorney-general D. V. Heald you talk about inflation and the plight of the farmer and you tell how you were standing there in the rain one day talking to a man who was holding a bearing for his tractor.

The point is, the bearing used to cost the farmer $6. Now it costs him $19.

Little Things

And these are some of the little things constitutional conferences are made of—even when they are billed as the most important since Confederation, like the one that began here Monday.

They were points made during formal presentation of position papers by the premiers of the provinces (Heald is representing Saskatchewan for Premier Ross Thatcher who is campaigning for an election later this month.)

The colorful Joey Smallwood spoke last and he prompted a source welcome laughter after about two hours of fairly heavy going when the conference opened in the legislative chambers.

Whether or not an amending formula is found for the constitution, there is one agreement Newfoundland wants and it wants it this year, Smallwood said. It wants the land beneath the Atlantic off its shores and the mineral rights that go with it.

Bands, Bunting Give Parley Unique Touch

Victoria's bands, bunting and Centennial 71 fever have turned the constitutional conference into the most colorful meeting of premiers ever, according to a veteran Ottawa journalist.

Stewart MacLeod of the Canadian Press Ottawa bureau, wrote of Monday's opening: "If Premier Bennett's extravaganza . . . is transferred to future meetings in Ottawa, the changing-of-the-guard ceremony could be put out of business.

"Certainly Canada's political leaders never experienced anything like it in their hitherto-dull and drawn-own search for constitutional reform.

"Instead of dodging traffic to get into Ottawa's old converted Union Station, there was Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, decked out in a blazing maroon jacket, sitting high in a convertible while a proabortionist shouted: 'He was a wanted child'."

Premiers' parade, near-empty streets

...But Premiers Poor Draw In Road Show

By HUBERT BEAVER

If public interest in a motorcade is any indication Victorians would rather get rid of one prime minister and nine premiers than abolish the monarchy.

A little more than a month ago, the streets of downtown Victoria were jammed with people welcoming Queen Elizabeth.

Monday morning, a few casual passersby and early-morning shoppers stopped briefly to watch the country's 10 most powerful politicians drive by.

At the corner of Douglas and Yates, a sign in a drugstore window proclaiming a clearance of "discontinued lines" drew more people than the parade of premiers and prime minister that was to arrive in a few minutes.

"With so few people here, I begin to suspect that I'm at the wrong corner," a man said looking down Yates where the motorcade was to appear.

His name, he said, was Bill Dowkes, and he wasn't really sure if it mattered whether or not he was at the right corner.

"Maybe we've grown up . . . sure aren't very many people interested," he said.

Indians Caught Red-Handed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six American Indians were arrested early Monday as they were spraying slogans on the walls of the American Museum of Natural History to protest the federal government's resetzure of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco.

Police said the six were "caught in the act" of writing slogans in red paint by a routine police patrol. The slogans read Return Alcatraz and Racist Killers.

Quebec

without acceptance of its social policy demanded.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau's acceptance of the "principles" of Quebec's position is "a step forward" toward a solution of the problem.

In addition to the constitutional amendment, Quebec also wants a transfer of tax revenues from the federal government to pay for programs which would be taken over by the provinces.

On this point, the federal government feels the Quebec proposal might result in the "erosion" of its power to redistribute wealth through taxation.

Earlier, Bourassa cracked heads with Trudeau.

Replying to Trudeau, the 37-year-old Quebec premier defended Quebec's position on constitutional change in the field of social policy.

He called for a "decentralized federalism" in which the provinces would have the necessary constitutional powers to meet their particular needs.

He reiterated his argument in favor of a constitutional amendment which would give Quebec and the other provinces "primacy" in the legislation of income security programs such as old-age pensions and family allowances.

His aim was to obtain "greater freedom of manoeuvering" in this field and to enable more effective planning in terms of the social needs and demands of society.

Bourassa recognized the importance of the federal government's role in redistributing wealth from richer parts of the country to poorer ones through its power to tax and make payments to the provinces.

"Quebec is not seeking the erosion of the federal power but rather of refinement of the redistribution of wealth," he said.

He wants to restrict the "initiatives" the federal government has because of its "unlimited" spending powers.

In calling for a redistribution of constitutional powers, Bourassa said agreement at the conference on a formula for amending and "patriating" the constitution would not in itself be a "satisfactory solution" to constitutional problems.

Trudeau Saw Red

This needn't be federal land, he said, noting that such concessions had been made in the past to Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.

We're So Glad

"Give them to us," he said, almost in the tones of the panhandler. "You wouldn't have them, prime minister, except for us — we came in and we're so glad we did (joined Canada) — but we came in and we brought them with us.

"Give them to us — we'll love you for it. You can't do much less, prime minister. You're coming down to Newfoundland. Come down and bring the word to us."

Someone once described Joey as a bantam rooster who could be heard all over Newfoundland when he crowed. Monday he was at least heard all over the chambers and the words were an obvious delight to British Columbia's Premier Bennett and Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, who were seated kitty-corner at the opposite end.

They fairly beamed and Bennett, who has long championed offshore rights for B.C., kept glancing in Trudeau's direction.

Trudeau Amused

What he saw was a somewhat amused prime minister.

Trudeau had not looked amused earlier when Bennett, speaking first as the host premier, did his normal selling job on behalf of B.C., then went on the full attack against federal policy.

Bennett said unemployment was a top priority and that B.C. was not pleased with the way Ottawa had been handling things.

Funeral Parlor

Behind him was a massive floral arrangement and situated as it was on the official red carpeting, it gave one end of the chambers the look of a funeral parlor.

One observer said later: "It sort of gave you the idea they came to bury Canada, not to save it."

Most of the country's major problems, along with numerous others, were dealt with in the position papers.

But this was the public showcase — an open session for all to witness through live television, radio and newspaper coverage. In the afternoon, the session was held in camera and that is when some of the tough talk was expected to start.

There are, of course, other Canadian concerns that those being discussed at the conference and some of them were obvious outside the buildings during the day.

Among the crowd of 400 that greeted Trudeau and the premiers when they arrived by motorcade in the morning were Women's Liberation demonstrators, little George Burnham who has never given up the fight to restore the Red Ensign, and lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott.

Trudeau came in for his second blast of the day when representatives of the Canadian Women's Council for Protection of Wildlife showed up in front of the buildings to protest the killing of baby seals.

Premier Smallwood, who has witnessed a recent seal killing, told the women it is now being done in humane fashion and invited them to come to Newfoundland to witness a seal hunt.

One of the women shouted over a distance of 25 yards or so to Trudeau about the slaughter of seals and he asked her what she expected him to do about it.

'You Animal'

There was further far-flung conversation and Trudeau asked if she was against the killing of all animals, then turned and headed toward the steps of the buildings.

"You animal," the woman shouted.

During the day there were reports that Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa was quite opposed to the idea of riding from the Empress Hotel to the buildings in an open convertible as part of the planned motorcade.

The matter of safety and the fact Bourassa is here to do serious business and not ride on display in open cars, were both given as reasons for his displeasure.

But an aide said later that he had not objected to riding in the motorcade.

Looked to Sky

"The only thing that could be said is that he looked to the sky and saw it was begnning to rain and wondered if he wouldn't get wetter in the convertible than he did before breakfast when he went for a swim in Crystal Garden," he said.

He confirmed that Bourassa is being accompanied by three Quebec secret service men in plain clothes.

"But there is nothing irregular about this," he said.

According to NDP federal leader David Lewis — attending the session as an observer — Bourassa was the only premier who really got down to the basics of his province's views during the presentation of position papers.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Insane To Argue

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: All the members of my family say that insanity is inherited. I disagree. Who is correct? J.W.

Probably both sides are correct. And both sides wrong.

You're arguing an impossible question, because "insanity" has a very vague meaning.

Would you argue whether disease is inherited? No, you wouldn't, because you know very well that some diseases are inherited and others are not.

So why argue whether insanity is inherited?

The dictionary defines it as "being of unsound mind," which can mean almost anything. Do you mean damage from a tumor of the brain? That's not inherited. Or degeneration of the brain from syphilis? Do you mean schizophrenia? That can occur to people without any sign of it in other members of the family tree.

Do you mean feeble-mindedness? If so, what kind? Long inbreeding in some families has resulted in virtually all of the offspring feeble-minded, so I think it is proper to say it is inherited in that case. There are other types of mental subnormality which are related to defects in the chromosomes — but I doubt that this could be called "inherited." Congenital, perhaps, but the parents do not have the same condition.

There is a good deal yet to be learned about a great many types of emotional problems. It is possible that in many cases some tendencies may be inherited, but still may not develop into serious troubles unless the individual is subjected to severe emotional stresses. See why I say you are arguing an impossible question?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would the result be, healthwise, from drinking rusty well water over a period of years?—B.L.

None, so far as the rustiness goes. The important point is to have the water tested periodically by the health department to be sure it is not polluted with germs or other dangerous contents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can eating plain lemons hurt you? Sometimes I sit down and eat six at a time.—S.R.

Lemons are a rich source of vitamin C. However, the juice is high in citric acid. When taken undiluted, this can damage the teeth. Hence I'd suggest lemonade instead, then brush your teeth or eat some food.

Strikers Plan 'Measures' If Gunman Isn't Caught

MACKENZIE, B.C. (CP)—A Spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, Jack Fraser, said Monday that striking pulp workers here will "take their own measures" if police don't apprehend a gunman who fired a rifle shot at pickets Saturday.

Fraser said the gunman threatened the wife of a striker a few hours before he lined up six pickets and threatened to kill them. He fired a shot over their heads.

India's Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh tells Monday's news conference in Ottawa his country cannot allow itself to be overrun by flood of refugees from East Pakistan. He said he's trying to alert world to seriousness of refugee problem, and has already been to Moscow, Bonn and Paris. —(CP)

Pentagon Stories Go On

Paper Defying Federal Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said Monday night the United States justice department asked it to halt publication of a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war and threatened to seek an injunction today if the paper did not comply. The Times said it "must respectfully decline the request."

The newspaper's Tuesday morning editions, in which appeared the third instalment of documents from the Pentagon study, were nearly an hour late hitting the streets. The reason for the delay was not clear immediately.

The Times said in a statement it believed "that it is in the interest of the people of this country to be informed of the material contained in this series of articles."

The secret documents disclosed United States actions involving the U.S. militarily in Vietnam, and Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said their publication "violates the security regulations of the United States."

Laird said he had asked the justice department to investigate how The Times got the material. Senator Stuart Symington, Dem. Mo. of the Senate foreign relations committee called publication of the documents "shocking."

The Times said it had received a telegram from Attorney-General John Mitchell requesting that it abstain from publishing documents drawn from the three-year-old Pentagon study on the ground it will cause "irreparable harm to the defence interests of the United States."

Mitchell's telegram did not raise the threat of injunction. But The Times said the request for a halt in publication and the department's intention to seek an injunction were conveyed by Robert Mardian, assistant attorney-general in charge of the internal security division, to Harding Bancroft, executive vice-president of The Times.

Laird said Monday someone had violated the law by publishing parts of the Pentagon study, which said the Johnson administration planned attacks on North Vietnam well before the Gulf of Tonkin incident.

Seven Die In Detroit Shooting

DETROIT (AP) An intensive manhunt was under way Monday for four men seen fleeing from a house where seven persons were shot to death in what police said may be the latest in a series of murders in a battle for control of Detroit's narcotics traffic.

Four women — three of them with their hands bound in front of them — and three men died of gunshot wounds fired at pointblank range into their heads. The eighth victim is in hospital.

Neo-Fascists Soar

ROME (AP) — Italy's Neo Fascists surged to record gains Monday in elections throughout Sicily and in Rome and other cities.

A strong backlash vote gave the heirs of Mussolini their biggest advance since the Second World War and propelled them into the national spotlight after years of losses.

The Neo-Fascists surpassed all expectations, making what are believed the sharpest gains of any party in 20 years. In Sicily, the Italian Social Movement — MSI, as the Neo-Fascists are called — jumped to 16.3 per cent from 6.6 per cent of the vote in 1967.

Pakistani Writer Brands Troop Action Genocide

LONDON (Reuter) — Accusations of genocide by Pakistan government troops against Hindus and Bengali Muslims in East Pakistan are made by a Pakistani newspaper editor in a 2½-page article in The Sunday Times.

Anthony Mascarenhas, who was assistant editor of the Karachi Morning News and The Sunday Times correspondent in Pakistan, left Pakistan with his family in order to tell the world why more than five million refugees had left East Pakistan for India, risking famine and cholera, the London newspaper says.

The paper says there had been no question of his being allowed to report what he saw for his own paper since even references to the danger of famine were deleted by a censor.

Mascarenhas writes the censor allowed him to report the events following the March 25 rebellion of Bengali troops and paramilitary units stationed in East Pakistan and the fact thousands of Muslim families were wiped out.

He says the government of Pakistan let the world know about that first horror, but suppressed the second and, he says, worse horror which followed when its own army took over the killing.

Mascarenhas reports that West Pakistani officials privately calculated that altogether both sides had killed 250,000 persons, not counting those who died of famine and disease.

Over the past few years Ken had gotten to know Harry, his neighbourhood mechanic, pretty well.

In fact, too well.

Finally, with the help of another large repair estimate, Harry convinced Ken to buy a new car.

And we took it from there.

That's why we call it a Bankplan loan.

Whether you need a new car, a truck or a trailer, ask about your own customized Bankplan loan.

Obvious from the Start

IT WAS INEVITABLE that B.C. Hydro workers would step up their rotating strike pressure in attempts to force a resumption of contract negotiating. The first 12 days of hitting and running was a token effort which wouldn't be too painful for anyone. But it would show the bosses just how serious they were over the 4½ per cent difference that exists between wage demand and offer.

The workers showed a certain amount of responsibility, perhaps, in their tactics, just as the directors of B.C. Hydro have in holding firm on a 14 per cent pay increase.

Now the second phase of the pressure play has arrived with more walkouts of longer duration, and there is a strong threat of the Mica Dam project being picketed which would force 4,000 construction workers off the job.

This is when the hurting is going to start, and the real victims of most labor disputes, John Q. Public, might well be wondering how much discomfort he is going to have to endure.

He is in the dark now as far as what it is going to mean in power rates to pay electrical workers what they have been offered or what they want. It's bad enough to be faced with increases in already high rates without having to think about the possibility of a power service cut.

While Hydro director and Resources Minister Ray Williston has said that a complete shutdown would not be allowed, there appears to be conflict within the provincial cabinet on using the compulsory measures of the labor laws in this dispute.

This adds considerably to the uncomfortable position in which the general public finds itself.

The point is the dispute has been allowed to go on too long. The writings on the wall have been clear from the start. But what is not clear is how much more deterioration of a hopeless situation will be allowed to take place before the government takes some action.

Reluctance to use compulsion in labor strife is understandable. But in this tie-up the effects could be so wide-reaching that it should have been cut off before it got knotted.

Casting the Big Shadow

Decay of the United Nations

VICTORIA'S DR. HUGH KEENLEYSIDE gives the world another warning—he is not alone in this — that the United Nations' existence may be in danger. The former director-general of the UN Technical Assistance Administration and later undersecretary-general for public administration has written in a copyrighted article to appear in the June 19 issue of Saturday Review that the organization faces a threat of anarchy when Secretary-General U Thant retires, as he seems sure to do, at the end of this year.

Dr. Keenleyside's main theme appears to be the deterioration of the United Nations staff. He writes of infiltration of spies into the secretariat and disloyalty to the organization; of overstaffing in some areas, with resultant sloth and lack of discipline; of appointment to the administration by some nations of grossly inadequate persons. He fears — although he says the prospect is not entirely hopeless — that on U Thant's resignation, the system could be further weakened by the appointment of an indecisive "troika" as previously proposed by the Soviet Union or a "limber politician" who would bend to the strongest or most irksome influence.

Coincidentally, Robert Rhodes James writing in Vista for May-June makes a similar point. An essential quality for a successor to U Thant, he writes, would be realism: "He has to prove that the UN system is a competent one. And here he will have to face the cold reality that the calibre of the UN secretariat has been declining steadily, that it is not attracting new recruits of real calibre, that it is being cynically exploited by member-states in flagrant violation of the Charter, and that the degree of collaboration between the UN agencies is demonstrably, and disastrously, minimal."

With this internal incompetence one can readily associate the United Nations' weaknesses found last fall by a U.S. presidential commission: an inability to act when the interests of the superpowers clash; a lack of both the means and the vitality to cope with many emerging world problems, with too many nations giving lip service to the principles of the Charter or interpreting them for petty advantage; the use of the UN as an ineffective debating society and a platform for propaganda.

The presidential commission said the United Nations "might not be in danger of immediate collapse." It clearly continues, however, to drift into further decay. Finding a strong and able successor to U Thant might give it a reprieve. But more than a postponement of anarchy is needed. It would be most ironic if Communist China, the most populous nation on earth, were finally to become a member, as seems likely soon, only of a world organization at death's door.

Something's Got to Give Soon With the Troubled Island of Cyprus

By VICTOR WALKER of the Melbourne Herald

AFTER three years of almost fruitless negotiation, there are indications that a time of decision is approaching for the island of Cyprus.

In the view of observers here in Athens, either the talks between the island's two communities must soon be allowed to peter out, with the risk of violent developments afterwards, or they must be given a new impetus through concessions by both sides — between the communities themselves, or at "mother country" level between Greece and Turkey.

The pressures for a settlement stem from three main sources. In diminishing order of importance, they are:

(1) The full, if rarely stated, appreciation in Athens and Ankara that neither Greece nor Turkey can afford to war over Cyprus.

(2) The U.S. desire to reduce the number of potential troublespots in the Mediterranean by eliminating Cyprus as one of them.

(3) And the financial difficulty for the United Nations in maintaining a multinational force on the island to keep the peace between the two communities.

Observers in Athens, including some diplomats, view these pressures as lying behind the decision of the Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios, to pay a six-day visit to the Soviet Union this month.

The emerging situation in Cyprus, on the face of it, is highly threatening.

It now is just 3½ years since Greece and Turkey had their third, and narrowest, escape from a drift into war over the future of Cyprus.

It was a close shave, and it led, finally, to negotiations between the island's two communities, which began in the summer of 1968.

Crux of the dispute is how the powers and privileges should be shared between the island's 80 per cent Greek Cypriot population and 20 per cent Turkish Cypriot minority.

Complicating it is the vexed question of "enosis," union of the island with Greece, which was the banner under which the Greek Cypriots fought the British for their independence, and which had been a Cypriot aspiration since long before.

The division of the powers was supposedly settled by the 1959 agreement — between the two communities and Greece, Turkey and Britain as guarantor powers — on the basis of which the British pulled out of Cyprus.

It now is generally accepted that the agreement gave the Turkish community more than a fair share, though how much more is something that three years of negotiation has still not been able to resolve.

Recent statements by Archbishop Makarios and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Mr. Raouf Denktash, indicate that on fundamental issues the gap is still as wide as ever.

According to Archbishop Makarios, the talks have resulted in agreement on the Turkist Cypriot share in government services and the island's political life. "Beyond this, however, the Turkish Cypriots are demanding autonomy with a central executive institution. Acceptance of such a demand would be tantamount to creation of a state within a state . . . (and) is entirely inadmissible to the Greek side."

In one form or another, the archbishop charged, the Turkish Cypriots were pursuing partition of the island.

Makarios, whose formal policy is that enosis is "desirable but not at present feasible," also rejected a Turkish Cypriot demand for a permanent renunciation of enosis. To accede, he said, would be to accept a status of "fettered independence" for the island and, anyway, "the national aspirations of a people cannot be repudiated."

Mr. Denktash, in his statement, declared that only renunciation of enosis can avert a war between Greece and Turkey "sooner or later." In the Turkish Cypriot view, "it is impossible for the two communities to live together as one nation." But while "the Turkish Cypriots want autonomy, the Greek Cypriots offer administration."

It is not merely a question of phraseology. The Turkish Cypriot inhabitants of Cyprus have now largely collected in a few areas of the island and, disdaining Greek Cypriot invitations to return to their homes, have set up self-governed enclaves which could easily become a basis for partition.

There have recently been threats to make this situation official with references in Ankara to the enclaves as "the 18th province of Turkey" and talk of establishing an "air bridge" between them and Turkey.

Makarios has pledged "reaction by all means" if these threats are implemented.

If fighting started, it is hard to see how Greece and Turkey could avoid involvement.

While the threat is clear, the possibilities of settlement are in one respect greater that at any time before.

This is because, for the first time, both Greece and Turkey are simultaneously administered by strong military-backed governments, neither of which runs the risk of embarrassment by any political opposition. And both rely on the maintenance of peace for their economic progress.

They thus share a motive for a give-and-take settlement, and the strength to make it stick if one could be reached. Diplomatic contacts between the two are frequent, and friendly.

In this context, it was announced late last month that "friendly messages" have been exchaged between the Greek prime minister, Mr. George Papadopoulos, and the new Turkish premier, Mr. Erim, in which both expressed the hope that "all controversial questions between the two countries" could be settled through co-operation.

As for the Makarios government in Nicosia, it is clearly in no hurry to see the island lose its status of an independent, non-aligned nation.

Thus, on enosis, it maintains the policy, wholy unacceptable to the Turks, that all the island or none of it should join Greece, rejecting any talk of partition and double enosis — the larger part joining Greece and the smaller Turkist Cypriot section joining Turkey.

Ottawa Offbeat

A Friend in the National Capital

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

YOU'RE a hotelman, a restaurateur, you run a sight-seeing service, manage any store all the way from little boutique to big department, operate a theatre?

None of these things?

Okay then, this has got to take you into the circle of interest: you're a local taxpayer, paying taxes through your rent even if you're a tenant.

★ ★ ★

So what's new?

He's trying to help you, bringing new money into Yourtown, Canada, to boost spending, increase business, step up employment, put something extra and perhaps unexpected into the civic coffers — and, hopefully, indirectly, easing the tax burden.

His business is selling Canada — and indirectly Yourtown — as a great place for conventions, American and Canadian, where the delegates can get a fun-and-profit deal out of the average $35 daily each of them spends on accommodation, food, drink, local travel and personal services and entertainment.

Ben Carbonetto and his staff do business in the "big picture" perspective, marketing all of Canada as the best of all possible playgrounds for a convention caper.

He makes his biggest and best pitch for the big American spenders, but makes an odd pass at potential international conventioneers abroad who, more and more in recent years have been looking across both oceans our way.

Then, in much smaller focus, he does business on the local level too, alerting the convention bureau, the chamber of commerce, the board of trade, or even the hotel and tourist association in Yourtown and-or Yourregion of what delegates are shopping in what areas for which style, taste and price of accomodation and services.

Instead, look up the dollar figures as compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics or what, if you haven't yet been told, is now known as "Statistics Canada."

(Neat way the government has of getting rid of the royal inference of "Dominion," what?)

Well, DBS, or SC reports that last year Toronto, the big money-maker of convention towns and cities, drew better than 300 such jolly, usually free-spending gatherings, bringing in more than 150,000 delegates each getting rid of an average $35 daily.

But size has got nothing to do with it, or not everything. For even Smalltown, if it has the foresight to have provided the convention facilities and the get-up-and-go to sell them to the delegates, can turn a mighty pretty penny.

Like Penticton, tucked away there between the mountains in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley, with a population just over 15,000, by the last federal government Canada Year Book record.

Sure, Penticton's pretty, even enchanting, glorious weather, too. But convenient of travel reach?

Easy of quick access or not, Penticton, because it has the facilities — hotels, motels and most of all a fine convention centre — ranked eleventh in drawing the delegates and their dollars, just behind Windsor, and, difficult though it may be to credit, just ahead of Victoria.

Of course, as their very size compelled it, the big cities, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Edmonton Calgary, Ottawa, Quebec, City, Hamilton and Windsor got the big conventions and the big spending.

Then, in eleventh place, Penticton broke the size pattern with 33 conventions, bringing in some 20,000 delegates who spent $3,200,000.

Then, in descending order not all cities reported their total to Ben Carbonetto's convention sales task-force came these:

Kitchener-Waterloo, 33 conventions and uncounted sales meetings, symposiums and seminars with 13,300 delegates and $1,500,000.

Thunder Bay, 42 conventions, 29,000 delegates $1,160,000.

St. John's, 46 conventions, 4,060 delegates, $514,000.

Stratford, 40 conventions, 6,050 delegates, $400,000.

No city, says Ben Carbonetto, is too tiny to get in on the convention action. For if Penticton can get to be very respectable "Number Eleven," outranking even convention hard-hustling Niagara Falls, anything is possible.

Ben Carbonetto's salesmen have been pitching at the convention trade in Washington, New York, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

What are the Americans shopping for in conventions?

Among many, the one big thing they haven't got and we have: peace, order, and reasonably good government in cities that keep their municipal cool, and it's safe to leave the protection of the hotel for a stroll around town.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

The Oregon Boundary Treaty was signed by Britain and the United States 125 years ago today — in 1846. The treaty gave the U.S. the Oregon country south of the 49th parallel. The pact peacefully settled a bitter and long-smouldering dispute over the then little-known territory of the Pacific Northwest.

1944 — The CCF won the provincial election in Saskatchewan, opening 20 years of socialist rule in the province.

1944 — The first V-bomb attacks were made on London.

1888 — Wilhelm II acceded as ruler of Germany.

People Are Squeezing Them Out

Two Thousand Elephants Must Die

By MALCOLM WITHNELL from Kampala

TWO thousand elephants out of a total of 8,500 in the southern area of Murchison Falls National Park in Uganda are to be killed off in the next year or 18 months as part of measures to save the herds from slow extinction. If the trustees of the Uganda National Parks agree with the findings of scientists a further 2,000 may be shot.

The director of Uganda National Parks is Roger J. Wheater, a Briton from Brighton, who told me that if management action is not taken urgently it has been predicted that elephants could vanish from the area by the turn of the century.

The human population outside Murchison National Park, as well as in other places, has taken over what was once elephant country. In 1929 more than 70 per cent of Uganda was elephant country. By 1966 this had shrunk to 13 per cent. But there had not been a comparable reduction in the elephant population. The result of their being squeezed into a smaller and smaller area was that they began to destroy their own habitat and that of other wild animals as well, which could not move out.

"The problem," said Mr. Wheater, "is rather like having a town with 50 farms all around it, all of them keeping cattle at the best possible stocking rate — that is, the maximum that the land will feed. Then the town expands, erasing say 35 of the farms and crowding all the cattle into the remaining 15 farms. We have a habitat in the south of the park now which is poor for many species of animal, including elephant, which are themselves in a state of decline biologically."

This decline — signalled by later puberty, lengthening calving intervals and probably higher mortality in young animals — has come about because of lack of woody vegetation, the bark and branches of trees, on which elephants feed, thus causing dietary problems, or lack of shade causing heat stress.

"It has been shown by experiment," said Mr. Wheater, "that if browsing on woody vegetation is reduced there is a spectacular recovery of such woody vegetation which is the basis for the formation of new woodlands. We believe that by reducing the number of elephants we shall create a climate for the rapid regeneration of woody vegetation, thus obtaining the diversity we seek which will then be of value to all species of wild life, including elephants."

So the elephant herds in the southern area of Murchison Falls National Park are to be "cropped" by 2,000, and perhaps 4,000. Cropping means wiping out entire herds — a herd may number up to 100 — so leaving no member of the herd in a state of fear.

It also means taking off a complete section of the age structure from young to old — not just those with the big tusks that a hunter might covet.

On the advice of their scientific advisory committee, the trustees of Uganda National Parks are putting the project in the hands of marksmen who will be invited to apply for the job by tender. The meat, skin and ivory will be sold to local people and presented at game trophy auctions.

Of cropping, Mr. Wheater says, "Some people are critical of this approach and feel that what happens in the parks should be left to Nature to take her time and in her own way to sort out these problems. I would be the last person to disagree that the situation would sort itself out, but the critical factor is: What would we be left with once Nature had taken her course? The cost would be the loss of a number of species to the parks and possibly to the nation.

"We believe a national park must be representative of the flora and fauna of its particular area, and we do not believe that can be achieved without logical thought being given to the management of our national parks."

★ ★ ★

Indeed, Mr. Wheater believes that if management is not undertaken — and undertaken now — the elephant could continue to decline to a point where the population was no longer viable — in other words that it would just die out.

Prime Minister Trude

We are here in Victoria not simply to take advantage of the magnificent scenery, generous hospitality or pleasant climate of Canada's Pacific coast, nor only as tribute to the 100th anniversary of the entry into Confederation of British Columbia, happy though we are with each of those.

We are here in this provincial capital as evidence that in Canada our constitutional structure is federal, that in Canada the 10 provinces and their governments are a vitally important and integral part of our political structure.

Our presence here reminds us as well that the work so boldly commenced in the Atlantic city of Charlottetown in 1864 remains as yet unfinished. There could be no finer place to complete a part of that unfinished work than on this island, a continent distant from Prince Edward Island, for that distance vindicates the optimism of the fathers of Confederation and is proof of their dream of a united Canada from sea to sea.

May I, first of all, therefore, express our warm thanks to Prime Minister Bennett whose generous invitation enables us to be here. We rejoice with all British Columbians in their centennial. We share their confidence in their province's great future. We thank them for their hospitable reception.

Joining us today for the first time in these proceedings as a first minister is Prime Minister Davis of Ontario. He may be a newcomer to this table in his new capacity, but he is by no means a newcomer to constitutional discussions or constitutional conferences. I bid him welcome on behalf of all of you.

Prime Minister Outlines Ministers' Historic Task

Trudeau Speech: Full Text

NINE OF CANADA'S first ministers stand relaxed on steps of Legislative Buildings yesterday prior to opening of historic three-day constitutional conference in Victoria. Left to right, Premier William Davis, of Ontario, Premier Ed Schreyer, of Manitoba (with hand on chin), Premier Alex Campbell, of Prince Edward Island, Premier Bennett partly obscuring Prime Minister Trudeau, behind whom stands New Brunswick's Premier Richard Hatfield, Premier Bourassa, of Quebec, Premier Gerald Regan, of Nova Scotia, and Premier Harry Strom, of Alberta. Absent were Premier Joey Smallwood, of Newfoundland, and Attorney-General H. V. Heald, representing Premier Ross Thatcher, of Saskatchewan. (Jim Ryan photo).

We are here in Victoria not simply to take advantage of the magnificent scenery, generous hospitality or pleasant climate of Canada's Pacific coast, nor only as tribute to the 100th anniversary of the entry into Confederation of British Columbia, happy though we are with each of those.

We are here in this provincial capital as evidence that in Canada our constitutional structure is federal, that in Canada the 10 provinces and their governments are a vitally important and integral part of our political structure.

Our presence here reminds us as well that the work so boldly commenced in the Atlantic city of Charlottetown in 1864 remains as yet unfinished. There could be no finer place to complete a part of that unfinished work than on this island, a continent distant from Prince Edward Island, for that distance vindicates the optimism of the fathers of Confederation and is proof of their dream of a united Canada from sea to sea.

May I, first of all, therefore, express our warm thanks to Prime Minister Bennett whose generous invitation enables us to be here. We rejoice with all British Columbians in their centennial. We share their confidence in their province's great future. We thank them for their hospitable reception.

Joining us today for the first time in these proceedings as a first minister is Prime Minister Davis of Ontario. He may be a newcomer to this table in his new capacity, but he is by no means a newcomer to constitutional discussions or constitutional conferences. I bid him welcome on behalf of all of you.

One part of our task today is with us because Canada blazed a trail that many former colonies, now independent countries, have since followed. Canada was the first part of the then British Empire that achieved the status that grew into the complete independence of today.

The other British colonies that much later achieved independence profited by our experience. They were set up in the world complete — and able to manage and to amend their own constitutions.

The fathers of Confederation at Charlottetown and at Quebec were men of courage, imagination and resource. But neither they nor the British legislators of that day could be expected to have foreseen the way in which complete independence would come to Canada more than half a century later.

Because of that they did not include in our constitution a way to amend it in Canada.

And so today, a century later, we still cannot change in Canada the fundamental aspects of our constitution.

Australia can. New Zealand can. India, Nigeria, Jamaica — all these former British colonies, now independent, can amend their own constitutions in entirety, but we cannot.

We Canadians, who led the way, must go to the British Parliament to implement our decision.

It was not, however, just to arrive at an amending procedure that the constitutional discussions of the last three years were undertaken. At the first conference in February, 1968, chaired by my predecessor in office, Mr. Pearson, it was agreed to embark on a comprehensive review of the constitution. Since that conference fundamental questions have been examined in six sessions of first ministers, many sessions of ministers on special subjects, and some two dozen meetings of officials.

Important measures of agreement have been reached on several aspects of our constitution. Altogether, more work has been carried out and more insight gained into the problems and the complexities of our federalism than in any other period since 1867.

Our session in February 1971 indicated wide agreement with respect to a number of matters of substance in the constitution. There was agreement on what might be a feasible approach to a formula for amending the constitution.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL

The February conference also discussed social policy and expressed its sympathy with the objective of meeting the problem of poverty effectively having a broad, integrated policy for income-security measures. We agreed to discuss this matter, and its constitutional implications, at our meeting in June.

Since February, we have all been actively involved in expressing the conclusions of that meeting in the form of constitutional texts.

As a result, the drafts before this conference are not the work of any one government but of all governments. They are built upon the foundation of our discussions over the past three years and would not have been possible without the understanding gained by governments as a result of those discussions.

An important issue before this conference is Quebec's proposal that provincial legislatures should have the power to limit the authority of Parliament to make income-security payments, such as old-age pensions and family allowances, within their province.

By the present system of income-security payments, Parliament transfers billions of dollars a year to the old, the poor, the unemployed and families with children, from taxpayers and contributors who have the ability to pay.

This federal redistribution is particularly important to poor people in those parts of Canada where opportunities and incomes are less than average — and that includes seven of our 10 provinces.

If, as the government of Quebec proposes, provincial laws could nullify federal income-security laws in a province, and divert the federal revenue through the provincial treasury to be spent as the provincial government decided, then provincial governments would have a strong inducement to have such laws.

But Parliament in those circumstances would be less likely to impose taxes on Canadians generally to make payments to provincial governments than it would to make payments directly to the needy old people and families with children.

Taxpayers would be less prepared to pay taxes to the federal government for programs controlled by provincial governments other than their own, than to support programs by the federal Parliament which they themselves elect.

Consequently, the constitutional change proposed by Quebec would, over the years, lead to an erosion of federal income-security programs and their replacement by purely provincial plans.

The old and the poor in the wealthier provinces might do as well in such circumstances as if the federal government were making the payments, but in the other provinces, including Quebec, the tax base would not support as good income-security payments as Parliament could provide.

The federal government is not taking a negative attitude with regard to change — either in programs or in constitution. It must, however, consider the factors to which I have referred as we examine the changes that may be desirable in our constitution.

As we meet here in Victoria, 104 years after the Canadian federation came into being, we must not be unaware of the historic importance of what we can do — or fail to do.

I spoke of the unfinished work of Charlottetown and Quebec: the omission to provide a means of amending our constitution entirely in Canada and of making it totally Canadian.

Efforts to work out an amending procedure of our own began with a federal-provincial conference in 1927 44 years ago. That effort failed.

After the war we started once more at the task with conferences in 1950, in 1960-61 and in 1964.

Every effort ended in failure.

After nearly half a century of trying and of failing Canada remains unique — the only independent country in the world that cannot amend its own constitution.

I think it is incumbent on us that we do.

If we do, the country will go on, but it may be long before we find another occasion when we, or first ministers who come after us, can succeed.

The problem is not insoluble — and we are close to solution.

An amending formula, fairly conceived, is not the end to constitutional change or a block on future progress. It is the means to change and the way to ensure that we can progress in the years ahead.

But additionally, it is the means of removing, once and for all, the last remnant of a condition that is not worthy of Canada as a free and independent country.

We have before us the other important matters decided on in February. There too, with wisdom nd statesmanship, we can succeed.

During the next three days, we shall strive to reach agreement on the writing into the constitution of certain fundamental political rights as well as linguistic rights, a constitutionally-guaranteed Supreme Court of Canada, a declaration of principle that governments are committed to promote equality of opportunity and to reduce regional disparities in all parts of Canada; and a constitutional requirement for closer federal-provincial co-operation.

Altogether we will be dealing with six of the seven items originally singled out for special consideration by the first meeting of the constitutional conference back in February, 1968.

We shall also be searching for the best means of developing and integrating social policy so that the battle against poverty may be waged more effectively with redistribution of income to help the less fortunate, while at the same time maintaining national standards of income security, but a high degree of flexibility to meet particular provincial needs.

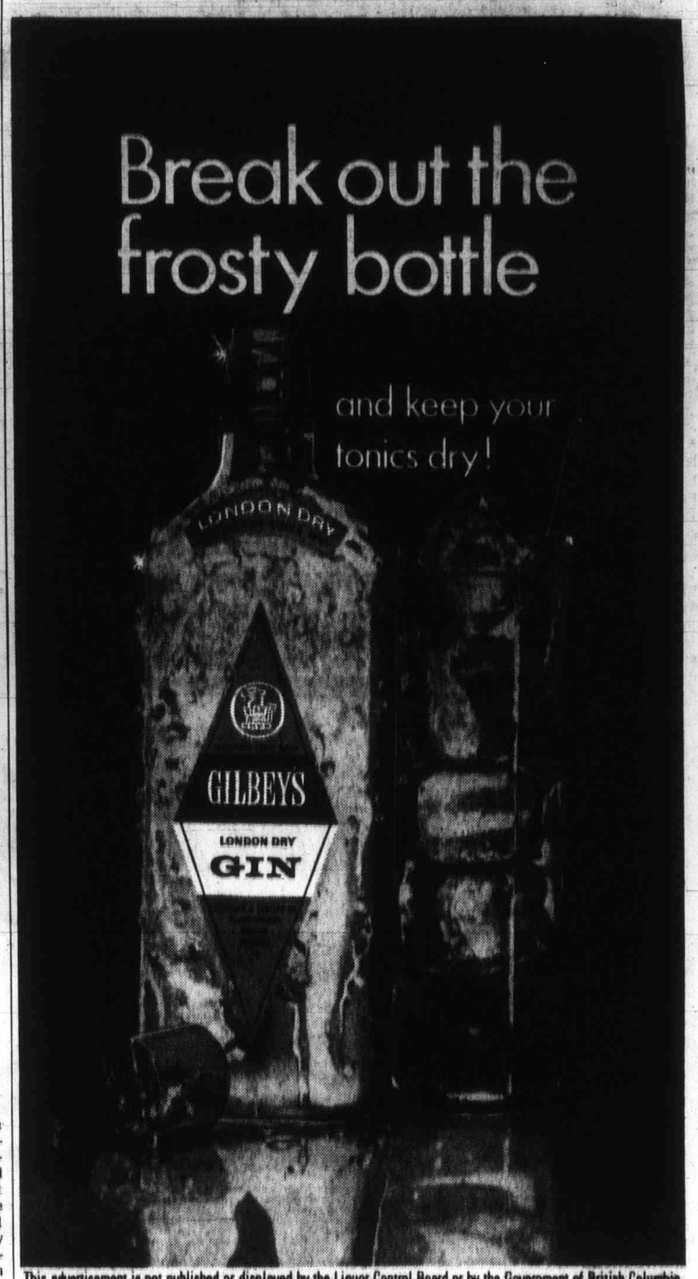

All of these are great questions and call for great endeavour. They form a part of our major task of total constitutional review.

I have said it is a formidable undertaking. Behind us we have the traditions, the problems and the adjustments of a century of living together. With us today we have the tensions, not only of a time of great and rapid change, but of achieving a new balance in which all the parts and people of Canada will feel a sense of equal justice and of rich fulfillment within our Confederation.

Before us we have the most glowing prospects of any country in the world. With a stable society, a strong economy, rich resources, an educated and tolerant people, and with political institutions that are basically sound as the foundation of our political freedom, the second century of our existence as an independent state is alive with promise.

To make that promise real, with a united Canada framed within a constitutional structure acceptable to all Canadians, is the goal for which we work today.

Chevron gasolines with F-310*

Chevron gasolines with F-310 are available in the Lower Mainland and Victoria areas in all 3 grades.

Chevron Unleaded with F-310 — For those cars designed to operate on lower-octane unleaded gasolines.

Improved Engine Performance

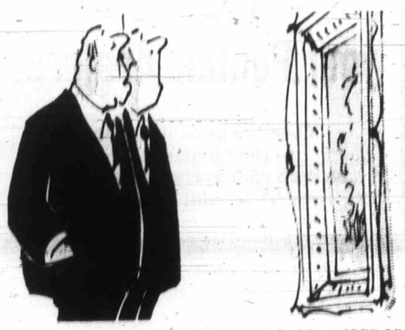

By selecting the right grade of Chevron gasoline that best suits your car — you can benefit from the qualities of F-310. Here's how it works . . .
When deposits build up in your carburetor and PCV (positive crankcase ventilation) valve, the fuel mixture becomes too rich — resulting in rough idle, stalling and wasted fuel. Remove these deposits, and good engine performance is restored. Mileage improves because gasoline is no longer being wasted.
F-310 was developed specifically to clean the critical parts of dirty engines — and to keep clean engines clean. And that's how F-310 helps towards better engine performance — and better mileage!
These extra performance benefits are now in all three grades of Chevron gasoline — all with F-310.

Of course, as their very size impelled it, the big cities, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Edmonton Calgary, Ottawa, Quebec, City, Hamilton and Windsor got the big conventions and the big spending.

Then, in eleventh place, Penticton broke the size pattern with 33 conventions, ringing in some 20,000 delegates who spent $3,200,000.

Then, in descending order not all cities reported their total to Ben Carbonetto's convention sales task-force time these:

Halifax, 75 conventions, 9,350 delegates, $2,850,000 revenue.

Kitchener-Waterloo, 33 conventions and uncounted sales meetings, symposiums and seminars with 13,300 delegates and $1,500,000.

Thunder Bay, 42 conventions, 29,000 delegates $1,160,000.

St. John's, 46 conventions, 7,960 delegates, $514,000.

Stratford, 40 conventions, 7,950 delegates, $400,000.

No city, says Ben Carbonetto, is too tiny to get in on the convention action. For if Penticton can get to be very respectable. "Number Seven," outranking even convention hard-hustling Niagara Falls, anything is possible.

Ben Carbonetto's salesmen have been pitching at the convention trade in Washington, New York, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

What are the Americans shopping for in conventions?

Among many, the one big thing they haven't got and we have: peace, order, and reasonably good government in cities that keep their municipal cool, and it's safe to have the protection of the hotel for a stroll around town.

own way to sort out these problems. I would be the last person to disagree that the situation would sort itself out, but the critical factor is: What would we be left with once Nature had taken her course? The cost would be the loss of a number of species to the parks and possibly to the nation.

"We believe a national park must be representative of the flora and fauna of its particular area, and we do not believe that can be achieved without logical thought being given to the management of our national parks."

Host's Money Gets Out of Hand

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Publisher Stewart Brand surprised some 1,500 guests at his all-night hippie party by holding up a fistful of $100 bills — $20,000, he said, in all — and announcing they could vote on how to spend it.

As frizzy-haired guests swizzled red wine and sniffed laughing gas, someone suggested letting partygoers touch the money to inspire them to think up good ideas.

From there, the party and the money literally got out of hand. About $5,000 is said to have vanished, and the group allowed a youth most of them had not seen before to walk off with the rest.

Brand, 32, who wore a monk's black robes, threw the party Saturday night through dawn Sunday in the stately and huge Palace of Fine Arts.

He was celebrating the final edition of his prosperous publication, While Earth Catalog, and invited everyone ever connected with it. The publication, sold nationwide, contains recommended mail-order items and advice on living off the land, buying a sun lamp, starting a school, delivering a baby and everything in between.

On a $10,000 inheritance, he founded the publication in 1968 and since has netted, friends estimate, about $500,000. Then he announced last month he was quitting the project "just to see what happens."

The $100 bills were handed out and Brand advised guests to suggest worthy causes.

Ideas included aid to Pakistan refugees or American Indians. Some wanted to divide it among themselves. Others suggested flying a marijuana-loaded airplane across California, planting seeds for history's biggest "trip."

An hour later, a speaker asked for the money back and reported $5,000 was missing.

Brand appeared upset but his helpers continued taking suggested ideas. Eight hours later as the sun was rising, they still could not agree how to spend it.

Finally at 7 a.m., a youth named Frederick Moore persuaded the group to let him keep the $15,000 for a month and he would call a meeting to decide how to spend it. He took addresses and promised to call everyone, but most guests said they had not seen Moore before the party.

"But we know him because he introduced himself," said one girl.

We've got just what you want in your next small car!
Firenza
GM's newest and lowest-priced little car.

Firenza offers British Columbia drivers the kind of performance, comfort and value they expect. And then some!

B.C.'s dream car?
Firenza is specially equipped for your kind of driving. Little things like an automatic choke. Big things like a full-size trunk. And power that lets you climb a mountain or cruise hour after hour without tiring yourself or your engine. With extra snap on call whenever you want it.

All about power.
Firenza comes with one of the best power-to-weight ratios in the business—94 gross hp and just over 2000 pounds curb weight. What's more, the 1975 c.c. overhead-cam engine operates efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on no-lead, low-lead or regular fuels.

To shift or not.
Standard transmission is a four-speed manual with a short-throw shift lever on the floor. All forward speeds are synchronized for smooth, very easy shifting. If you'd rather go foot-loose and shift-free, you can order a console-mounted three-speed automatic specially developed by GM for the new Firenza. Either way, manual or automatic, Firenza is a lot of fun to drive.

Power brakes!
With a power team to put most others in the shade, Firenza also comes with power brakes. At no extra cost! Not only that, you get power disc brakes in front for the kind of stopping power you'd probably planned to order next time. Now you don't have to order them. They're standard.

Safety first.
Also standard is a General Motors package of safety and anti-theft equipment. Seat belts, of course, and you know how important they are! Energy-absorbing steering column and padded instrument panel. Passenger-guard door locks at the rear on four-door models (of special interest to parents). The list is long—and reassuring.

Four models.
Our lowest-priced Firenza, a two-door sedan, has four headlamps, power disc brakes, full-coil suspension, bags of room and 94 horsepower. The SL sedans (a 2-door and a 4-door) offer a little more luxury and glamour. Cloth-and-vinyl interiors, deep-pile carpeting, whitewall tires, wheel trim rings, dual body paint stripes. The Firenza wagon has all the SL features plus extra courtesy lights, a "swing-up" tailgate and an impressive 62.3 cubic feet of cargo space.

Priced to go.
Add to all this the quick and easy service of over 500 Firenza-Pontiac dealers coast to coast and only one question is left. How much? And that may be Firenza's most attractive feature.

Federal Role Suggested In Education

MONTREAL (UPI) — Prof. Yves DeCary, chairman of the Canadian Studies Centre at Dawson College, called Monday for the establishment in Canada of a federal department of education.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, DeCary said that public debate amongst the provincial premiers attending the constitutional conference "and eventual referendum on this proposal is of fundamental importance to the future of Canada."

The professor said a federal education department "would ensure vitality of Canada's two cultures, provide best opportunity for French language and culture to flourish throughout Canada, assure cohesion and unity in education, facilitate transfer of scholastic credits and stimulate educational exchange."

receive monthly payments while those above it continue to pay taxes, would result in the scrapping of present welfare, pension, family allowance and equalization payments.

More Revenue

"We will never build a great Canada until we have an income base which will bring the good life to the poor who will be able to buy more and therefore create more revenue for the provincial and federal governments," he said.

Following the closed afternoon session, Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Ottawa is prepared to acknowledge paramountcy of provincial legislation in the field of social services, but won't give up any federal spending power.

The prime minister gave no indication of whether the conference would deal with the proposed guaranteed annual income plan, which was also supported by several other premiers including Manitoba's Premier Ed Schreyer. But earlier, when asked to comment on Bennett's remarks about equalization payments, Trudeau said the B.C. premier was "slightly out of order" in raising the matter at this constitutional conference.

Provincial View

Bourassa said Quebec wasn't asking for any powers in the field of social policies which shouldn't be granted to all provinces, allowing flexibility to meet individual needs and circumstances.

"The emphasis is on concurrent responsibility for both levels of government, and mandatory consultation," the Quebec premier said. "We suggest, however, that this general concurrency be accompanied by provincial primacy with respect of income security policies."

Bourassa added: "Quebec has chosen this time to tackle the question of the constitutional implications of social policy because we feel that the existing situation is the root cause of the relative ineffectiveness of Canada's income security provisions as a whole in the fight against poverty."

Opening Lines

In his formal opening statement Trudeau said Quebec's proposal that provincial legislatures should have the power to limit the authority of Parliament to make income security payments would inevitably lead to their replacement by purely provincial plans.

"The old and the poor in wealthier provinces might do as well in such circumstances as if the federal government were making the payments," the prime minister said. "But in the other provinces, including Quebec, the tax base would not support as good income security payments as Parliament could provide."

Later Trudeau indicated outside the conference the federal government isn't prepared to give Quebec money to finance its own independent welfare plans.

Wasn't Surprised

The prime minister also said he wasn't surprised at reports that Bourassa had stated he wouldn't recommend to the Quebec national assembly any amending formula for the constitution unless it contained substantial concessions, including more powers in the field of social policy.

"That," said Trudeau, "is what we are meeting here to negotiate."

When Bennett came out of the closed afternoon session Monday he said there had been no further discussion in the conference of the proposal for a guaranteed annual income plan. He is expected to raise it at today's sessions, which will also be closed.

B.C. Tel Bows to Figure Quest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Telephone Co. Saturday agreed to release previously unavaialable financial information about affiliated companies following a repeated request by the B.C. attorney-general's department.

The company has promised to disclose the extent of funds draining from its sister company Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd. to their parent company General Telephone and Electronics Corp. of New York.

Information about the affiliate was sought by the attorney-general's department at a weekend session of a hearing into B.C. Tel's application for a general rate increase of about 15 per cent plus varying increases in charges for specific services. The hearing is being conducted by the railway transport committee of the Canadian transport commission, which regulates B.C. Tel.

Earlier in the hearing, motions by both the department and the B.C. Federation of Labor that the company be ordered to disclose financial information about affiliates were rejected by the commission.

The labor federation, which had announced plans to appeal the earlier ruling to the federal court of Canada, was not represented at the Saturday meeting when Martin Taylor, acting for the attorney-general's department asked for details of dividends, royalties, service charges on loans and all other payments — excluding those made for goods received — which passed from Automatic Electric to General Telephone.

B.C. Tel is a customer for half of Automatic Electric's equipment and supplies. Last year it paid $33.4 million to the affiliate and a further $5.3 million to Lenkurt Electric of Canada, an Automatic Electric subsidiary.

All three firms belong to a 136-company empire controlled by General Telephone. Automatic Electric is a direct subsidiary and General Telephone controls B.C. Tel through its near majority holding in the Anglo-Canadian Telephone Co. of Montreal — B.C. Tel's immediate parent.

Peter Butler, for B.C. Tel, told the hearing he thought the information requested by Taylor was irrelevant to the business at hand, but promised that he would try and satisfy him. He said the information would probably be forthcoming Tuesday.

The attorney-general's department and the labor federation earlier had argued that it is impossible to determine whether the telephone company is operating at utmost economy unless the dealings with affiliates were disclosed. They said lack of this detail made it impossible to determine whether rate increases were justified.

The railway transport committee, which ruled it did not have the power to compel the company to disclose details of its financial dealings, expressed sympathy with the attorney-general's department and the labor federation in their efforts to gain financial disclosure.

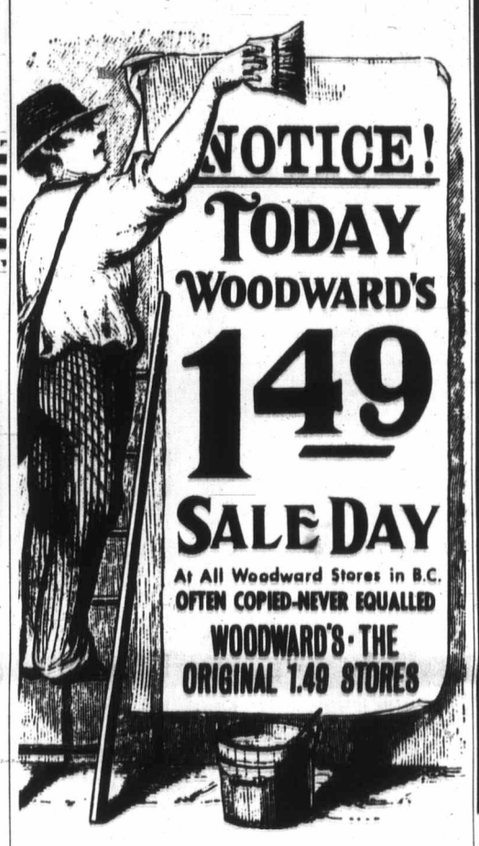

The committee also expressed interest in hearing information which will have to be supplied sometime this year or next by Automatic Electric under the ammended terms of the Canada Corporations Act.

Taylor did not seek information on B.C. Tel's other Canadian affiliates, Canadian Telephone Supplies Ltd. and Dominion Directories Co. Ltd. They are not affected by the Corporations Act which only applies to companies with assets of $5 million or annual sales of more than $10 million.

TEEN CURL EXPLOSION

It's here . . . curls are back . . . but with a new look . . . the look of 1971. Long or short, the mood is movement; your flowing tresses layered in waves and curls cut so carefree your hair practically looks after itself. Glowing, healthy hair, naturally waved with a little help from Raymond Salon, sets the trend for '71.

Federal Role Suggested In Education

MONTREAL (UPI) — Prof. Yves DeCary, chairman of the Canadian Studies Centre at Dawson College, called Monday for the establishment in Canada of a federal department of education.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, DeCary said that public debate amongst the provincial premiers attending the constitutional conference "and eventual referendum on this proposal is of fundamental importance to the future of Canada."

The professor said a federal education department "would ensure vitality of Canada's two cultures, provide best opportunity for French language and culture to flourish throughout Canada, assure cohesion and unity in education, facilitate transfer of scholastic credits and stimulate educational exchange."

Fast, fast relief.

Ask yourself these questions when you're concerned about a long-distance message: one, did they get it; two, did they get it right away; and three, did they get it correctly? With Telex, you can answer yes, yes and yes. Because Telex gives you automatically acknowledged, instantaneous, written communication.
The Telex automatic answerback feature tells you your message has been received at its destination; you can see for yourself that it has been received instantaneously; and because it's in writing, you know exactly what you've said and that there's little chance of a misunderstanding. You can send a minute's-worth of message from Halifax to Vancouver for just 90¢—even less, if you're brief, because there's no minimum charge with Telex. And you're in touch with more than 20,000 Telex subscribers in Canada, and hundreds of thousands abroad.
So—if communication problems are giving you a headache—try Telex for fast, fast relief. Let a CP/CN communications consultant look at your operation—with an eye to savings.

King Fisherman

Coho Catch Growing Bigger

The lead in the coho salmon category has changed quickly in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest.

F. Reid of East Wellington Road, RR 3, Nanaimo, landed a 6.12-pound coho using herring. He caught the fish near Ballenas Island. As Reid is not a Colonist subscriber, he is not in line for the 3-horsepower Viking outboard motor donated by Eaton's.

Coho salmon subscriber leader is still J. Leggett of 510 Atkins, who landed a 6.10-pound coho from Misery Bay, using a Kamlure.

Trophy winner for the fifth week of Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Qualifying Ladder Derby was won by Marie Sidaway with a 16.8-pounder. Hidden weight winners were Fred Michell with a 9.12-pounder and Bill Phillips with a 7.9-pound salmon.

Eight Years for Harboring Trio

MONTREAL — Michel Viger was sentenced to eight years imprisonment for harboring Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard during the massive police search last October for the kidnap-killers of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

A 31-year-old insurance salesman, Viger was found guilty of the offence in mid-April by a Court of Queen's Bench jury which deliberated for 20 hours. Sentence was imposed by Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer.

Viger rented a farmhouse in St. Luc, about 25 miles south of Montreal, where the Rose brothers and Simard were arrested last Dec. 28. The jurors returned a unanimous verdict finding Viger guilty on all six charges of giving aid and comfort to the wanted men.

□

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Most Rev. Bernard Kelly, 53, auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Providence, announced his resignation from the priesthood because of a "sense of frustration over attitudes and policies of the hierarchy and bishops in the United States."

□

EDMONTON — Dr. James Endicott, chairman of a group called the Canadian Peace Congress, said Prime Minister Trudeau's recent visit to the Soviet Union is an attempt to counterweight a predicted collapse of the United States economy. Endicott, a former United Church minister and missionary to China, said at a public forum that American military policies are leading that country to expenditures it can no longer afford.

□

CARACAS, Venezuela — An irate Venezuelan farmer personally "executed" his pet goat after the animal ate the equivalent of $1,660 in bills he was saving in a wicker basket. Police said the farmer, Jose Asuncion, who lives in Cumana, 280 miles east of Caracas, hacked the goat to death with a machete.

□

SASKATOON — Werner Kein, 16, who came to Saskatchewan from West Germany equipped with a bow and arrow and a hunting knife to live with the Indians, is disappointed. Werner, from Westphalia, is a printer's apprentice and took a 40-day excursion flight to Canada to study the life style of native people. He had heard Saskatchewan Indians live as they did years ago and equipped himself to live and hunt off the land. He arrived in Edmonton June 8 and made his way to La Ronge, Sask., with the intention of living with an Indian family. He ran out of money and must wait until July 7 for his return flight.

□

EDMONTON — Police have been unable to discover a motive in their search for the killer of Bob Neville, a city travel agent and separate school trustee found shot to death in his locked downtown office.

□

TORONTO — Joseph Piccininni, Toronto's king-size alderman, left St. Michael's Hospital after a two-month crash diet program during which he lost 60 pounds. He's down to a svelte (for him) 288 pounds after losing nine inches from his waist, 10 inches from his stomach and almost 10 inches from his chest.

□

DUESSELDORF, Germany — Heins Oskar Vetter, chairman of the West German trades unions federation, flew to Canada for talks with Canadian trade union leaders.

□

NICOSIA — A court martial sentenced three Canadian soldiers to prison on charges of selling duty-free goods. They were identified as Sgts. C. F. Avery, J. E. Davies and L. E. Williams, all of Calgary. Military officials said each will be reduced to the rank of private and will serve five-month terms in a Canadian military prison.

□

□

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Bank of Montreal

The First Canadian Bank

You may feel shy about asking your Bank of Montreal manager for a loan. You needn't be. If a loan will help you out, your branch manager is sure to understand perfectly.

At the Bank of Montreal, we're flexible about granting loans. Each application is judged on its merits. And, when you get your loan, it amounts to more than just dollars and cents. You get your money's worth in financial advice, follow-up services, and straight information about how to handle your banking affairs.

Rich people are always getting advice from their bank manager. We see no reason why you shouldn't have that advice, too. You may not become wealthy — although you might — but you certainly would know how to get the most for your money. And that means you'd more than likely do better than you're doing now. We want you to get your money's worth.

Three loan applicants: Who got their money's worth?

He owed too much money:
Robert M. is a carpet salesman. Last year, when his wife became ill, Robert found his medical coverage was insufficient. He felt he needed to borrow $2,500. His Bank of Montreal manager loaned him $3,500 to pay all his bills. Consolidating these debts reduced his rate of interest. Robert feels he got his money's worth.

He wanted to "hit the road":
Joe G., a T.V. repairman, loves the country. A mobile camper was his dream. His Bank of Montreal manager lent him $4,000 to buy a camper and showed him how to dovetail the loan with a savings plan. Joe now takes his family on weekend campouts, has a good time, and his savings are growing steadily. He got his money's worth.

She got more elbow room:
Ann B. is a suburban physiotherapist. Recently, she decided her treatment room wasn't large enough. She asked her Bank of Montreal manager for $2,000 to enlarge it. He lent her $3,000. The extra would allow her to enlarge her waiting room, too. Her patients are now more comfortable and her business has increased.

Tax Week Gloom Assails Markets

TORONTO (CP) — Industrial issues dropped sharply as prices in all sectors closed lower in moderate trading as tax reform day nears.

Weakest sectors were banks, beverages, oil refining, pipelines and merchandising.

Acres Ltd. lost 1⅜ to 11½ when trading in the stock was resumed mid-way through the session. The company said it had terminated discussions with another company, not named, regarding the purchase of Acres.

Falconbridge was down 3 to 112, Seagrams 1¼ to 52¼, Pine Point 1 to 28½, Ranger ⅜ to 14⅞, Canadian Tire A 1 to 36¾ and Asamera ⅛ to 21⅛.

Ocean Cement lost ⅞ to 23⅞, Central-Del Rio ⅜ to 14, Lake Dufault ¾ to 13¾, Hunter Douglas 1 to 11½, Pan Ocean ¼ to 18⅜ and Sherritt ⅜ to 17.

Kaiser Resources rose ½ to 6½, Economic Investments 1⅛ to 14¾, Denison ½ to 26½, Hollinger ¼ to 39, Bell ⅛ to 48 and Royal Bank ⅛ to 27⅛.

Union Gas was up ⅛ to 16, Dominion Textile ¼ to 17¾, Federal Grain ⅜ to 8⅛, Irwin Toy ¼ to 15, Montreal Trust ½ to 16 and Southam ½ to 61.

Consumers Gas ¾ to 20, Calgary Power ⅜ to 27¼, Alcan ¾ to 22⅝, Aquitaine of Canada ⅜ to 26¼, Credit Foncier ½ to 53 and Pacific Petroleums ¼ to 31⅛.

Cominco rose ⅜ to 23½, Canada Cement Lafarge ⅛ to 45, Montreal Trust ½ to 16, CPR ¼ to 65⅜, Bell Canada ⅛ to 48⅛ and Royal Trust ¼ to 33¼.

Kaiser Rallies

VANCOUVER — Mining issues were broadly lower although changes were mainly small. Among the heavier losers were Texacal, off .30 at 1.00 and Western Mines, off .15 at 3.40.

In oils Ballinderry was off .01 at 144 and Stampede off .03 at 1.10.

Industrials were mixed with Kaiser up ½ at 6½ leading the way. Also higher were Fields, Doman, PWA and Interplex. Imperial Marine A was off .30 at 1.00.

All Sectors Down

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices slipped steadily throughout the day and closed moderately lower in all sectors.

Wall St. Tumbles

NEW YORK (AP) — An increase in the prime rate of interest by a major Pennsylvania bank, although not unexpected, tumbled stock prices in slow trading.

Price declines were especially sharp in glamor issues with IBM down 5⅞ at 318⅝, Control Data off 2¾ to 62¼ and Xerox down 1¼ to 110.

Telex was the most-actively traded big board stock, down ⅜ at 14⅞. Sony, up 1 to 29⅛, was the second most-active issue.

Biggest Bank Office Opens

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Vancouver Island's largest bank office opened its doors for business in Victoria Monday as a symbol of the growing stature of the B.C. capital as a leading financial centre.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce's new head office on Douglas Street at View is not only large — on three floors — but is also an up-to-the-minute exhibition of what a modern bank should be.

It is part of the massive high level office and commercial building that will also be the local headquarters for a number of leading Canadian companies, as well as for a retail section which consists of a number of stores and a restaurant.

The new head office is a sharp contrast from the old one on the corner of Government and Fort that was once the site of the old Hudson's Bay, Fort Victoria, and was acquired by the bank at the turn of the century when it took over the original Bank of British Columbia.

However, the new bank with its large main banking floor is spectacular, airy and comfortable.

The bank's own colors, purple, green and gold are picked up on walls and in furnishings and in women bank personnel's clothing.

The managerial offices, the safety deposit rooms, the various departments — loans, securities etc — are all on the main floor.

On the second floor is the special banking room of the bank's main Victoria customer — the Province of British Columbia. Here a large staff works permanently on government banking business. On this level also is a conference room, an office, cafeteria and reclining room.

First manager of the new main branch is Bill Armstrong, who was formerly manager of the old Government Street office, and two assistant managers Eric Hall, former manager of the now closed Fort and Douglas branch of the bank, and Stewart Brown former assistant manager of the Hastings-Richard branch in Vancouver. Bank personnel presently numbers 59.

Deal Confirmed

Confirmation of a revision of the terms of its coal contract, reported in this column two weeks ago, was made by Lee Emerson, president of Kaiser Resources in a special report to shareholders of the B.C. coal mining and exporting firm.

Emerson said the interim price increase was equivalent to $2.50 a ton in Canadian dollars plus a special cost assistance of $1.85 a ton to be in effect for a period of 15 months.

During this relief period Kaiser expects to complete plant modifications at Sparwood and revision of its mining plans to enable it to meet with the coal specifications of its original contract.

Toward the end of the interim period a permanent price adjustment for the remainder of the contractual period will be made.

Emerson hopes shipments of coal during the interim period will run about 4,400,000 tons annually. He added that if the terms of the amended contract had been in force in the first quarter of 1971, Kaiser's net loss for the period would have been cut from $6,400,000 to $3,100,000.

Even with the additional revenue from the interim price adjustment Kaiser expects to face operating losses for the next several quarters.

Second Gasser

Panarctic Oils says it has brought in a second gas well on King Christian Island. It is two miles from the discovery well by Panarctic on this far northerly island, and it flowed gas at a rate of up to 6,340,000 cubic feet a day, from a pay horizon between 2,150 to 2,200 feet.

The well, part of a farmout obligation, is to go to 10,000 feet.

New Cement Move

Sale of a block of minority shares in Ocean Cement and Supplies Ltd., is still hanging fire, according to Gordon Farrell chairman of the company.

Although the original negotiations announced last October had proved inconclusive Farrell said another "substantial party" had expressed serious interest in acquiring a major shareholding.

He added it would be several months before a firm proposal of interest to the Ocean Cement shareholders could be expected from this source.

The original negotiations were conducted with a view to the sale of minority common shares of the company, other than those held by Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers Ltd., who control Ocean.

The sale was to have been at considerably above the market price, but Farrell said that Ocean was no longer interested in the original proposal.

Banks Hike Rate

At least two U.S. banks have increased the prime interest rate from 5½ per cent to 5¾ per cent, and it is expected more will follow. They are First Pennsylvania of Philadelphia and Exchange National of Chicago.

The higher rate is consistent with current rumors on Wall Street in recent weeks. The higher rate is expected to attract short term money to the U.S., and so help the imbalance of U.S. dollars on international account.

If the U.S. increase is not followed by the banks in Canada, it could be logically expected that the present downtrend in the value of the Canadian dollar in U.S. funds would continue to drop, and would probably enable the Bank of Canada to lighten its load of U.S. dollar reserves held as a currency stabilizer.

Golf Preferred

Victoria Life Underwriters propose to defer their worries about the budget and Canada's tax reform by taking off to Broome Hill Golf Club at Sooke while Finance Minister Edgar Benson is unfolding his proposals in the Commons this Friday afternoon.

The underwriters are making it their golfing day out of the year.

Tough Test

The proposed legislation that would make advertising in Canada illegal for the tobacco and related industries in an extension of the B.C. government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising to come into effect Sept. 1.

The federal government is confining itself to the tobacco industry, which is interesting in view of Premier Bennett's indication that he considers alcohol to be an even greater menace than smoking.

If the federal ban comes into effect at the beginning of 1972, as is planned, the value of advertising will be put strongly to the test.

The value of the ban will have to be in its ability to cut down the use of tobacco. If it merely prevents one brand or type of tobacco product from profiting at the expense of another, the justification for the ban will be highly questionable.

On the other hand by wiping out publicity and promotional costs for the tobacco firms, the end result would probably be higher profits unless the gross volume of sales was substantially diminished.

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC production employees by a narrow majority have voted to merge their present union with the Canadian Union of Public Employees, a CUPE spokesman said Saturday.

Claims 'Untrue, Unfair'—STP

CHICAGO (AP) — Anthony (Andy) Granatelli, president of STP Corp., has said that a consumer magazine's statement that STP oil additive is little more than an oil thickener was "untrue, unfair and completely distorted."

Consumer Reports, published by Consumers Union, Mount Vernon, N.Y., reported Friday that use of STP could void car manufacturers' guarantees.

Granatelli said in a statement Sunday: "Consumers Union appears to be acting recklessly under the cloak of a recent Supreme Court decision which says that consumer groups may attack business without fear of legal responsibility under certain conditions.

"Their unfound attack on our product amounts to an attempt to sabotage the successful business of our company with a twisted set of inside 'facts' assembled by incompetents."

Granatelli said the Consumer Report article was founded on false conclusions.

He said STP is designed to keep engine oil thick in hot weather when oil thins.

"As for the Consumers Union inference that STP may violate car warrantics, that is another deliberate distortion of the truth," he said.

BRINCO ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. P. H. Grimley

Hugh R. Snyder

The appointments of Dr. Peter H. Grimley and of Hugh R. Snyder as Vice-Presidents of British Newfoundland Exploration Limited (Brinex), the exploration and mining subsidiary of British Newfoundland Corporation Limited (Brinco), are announced by William D. Mulholland, President and Chief Executive Officer of Brinco.

Dr. Grimley, who received his Ph.D. in mining geology from the Royal School of Mines has worked in Britain, Africa, West Pakistan, Antarctica and Argentina. He joined Brinco in 1966, later becoming Chief Geologist, Labrador. In his new capacity he is in charge of all exploration for the Company.

Mr. Snyder, the son of a Canadian mining engineer, and formerly executive assistant to the president of Brinco, graduated as a mining geologist from the University of Witwatersrand. After extensive experience overseas in mineral exploration and in mine development and production, he attended the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration before joining Brinco in 1970.

NATIONAL ENERGY BOARD
NOTICE OF JOINT HEARING

TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to the National Energy Board Act and Regulations made thereunder, the Board has ordered that a joint hearing be held in the Court Room of the National Energy Board, Room 840, Trebla Building, 473 Albert Street, in the City of Ottawa, in the Province of Ontario, commencing on Tuesday, the 13th day of July, 1971, at the hour of 9:30 a.m. local time to hear together the applications described herein. The Board will first hear evidence respecting Canadian gas requirements, reserves and surplus at the conclusion of which evidence the hearing will be adjourned sine die pending a determination by the Board as to what quantity of gas, if any, may be available for export. If the Board is able to satisfy itself that all or part of the quantities of gas to be exported under the said applications do not exceed the surplus remaining after due allowance has been made for the reasonably foreseeable requirements for use in Canada having regard to the trends in the discovery of gas in Canada, the said hearing will then be resumed for the purpose of hearing the remainder of the evidence to be given in support of the said applications.

1. ALBERTA AND SOUTHERN GAS CO. LTD. for a licence under Part VI of the Act for the exportation of gas at a place on the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Kingsgate, British Columbia for a period of fifteen years or such longer period as the Board on consideration of the evidence may deem just and the law allow, commencing on the date of first exportation of gas under authority of and in accordance with the licence; the quantity of gas to be exported not to exceed 218,000,000 cubic feet in any one day nor an average of 73,000,000,000 cubic feet per annum nor 1,095,000,000,000 cubic feet during the term of the licence except that, if the term of any licence issued by the Board exceeds fifteen years, the quantity authorized to be exported during the term of the licence would be increased by 73,000,000,000 cubic feet per year for each year beyond fifteen years.
2. ALBERTA NATURAL GAS COMPANY for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to Part III of the Act in respect of approximately 41.6 miles of loops of pipe in five separate sections, additional metering facilities at the Kingsgate Meter Station, and inlet gas scrubber at Compressor Station No. 1 near Crowsnest and a pressure relief valve station at Compressor Station No. 2A near Elko, all proposed to be constructed and installed in the Province of British Columbia.
3. CANADIAN-MONTANA PIPE LINE COMPANY for a licence under Part VI of the Act for the exportation of gas at a place on the international boundary between Canada and the United States in Section 4, Township 1, Range 26, West of the 4th Meridian, in the Province of Alberta during a period of fifteen years or such longer period as the Board on consideration of the evidence may deem just and the law allow, commencing on the date of first exportation of gas under authority of and in accordance with the licence; the quantity of gas to be exported not to exceed 24,000,000 cubic feet in any one day, nor an average of 7,300,000,000 cubic feet per annum nor 109,500,000,000 cubic feet during the term of the licence except that if the term of any licence issued by the Board exceeds fifteen years, the quantity authorized to be exported during the term of the licence would be increased by 7,300,000,000 cubic feet per year for each year beyond fifteen years.
4. CONSOLIDATED NATURAL GAS LIMITED for
   (a) a licence under Part VI of the Act for the exportation of gas at a point on the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Emerson, in the Province of Manitoba for a period of twenty years commencing on the date of initial delivery; the quantity of gas that may be exported under the authority of and in accordance with the licence shall not exceed 240,000,000 cubic feet in any one day, nor an average of 77,500,000,000 cubic feet per annum, nor 1,460,000,000,000 cubic feet during the term of the licence;
   (b) a licence under Part VI of the Act for the importation of gas at a point on the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Willow Creek in the Province of Saskatchewan and for the exportation of such gas at a point on the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Emerson in the Province of Manitoba for a period of twenty years commencing on the date of initial delivery; the quantity of gas that may be imported and exported under authority of and in accordance with the licence shall be the same and shall not exceed 150,000,000 cubic feet in any one day, nor an average of 45,000,000,000 cubic feet per annum, nor 689,000,000,000 cubic feet during the term of the licence.
5. CONSOLIDATED PIPE LINES COMPANY for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity pursuant to Part III of the Act in respect of the following facilities proposed to be constructed and installed:
   (a) approximately 131 miles of 16-inch pipe commencing at the interconnection with the pipe line system of Northern Natural Gas Company at the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Willow Creek, in the Province of Saskatchewan, and terminating at the junction with the pipe line system of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited at the latter's Station No. 9, in the Province of Saskatchewan;
   (b) approximately 200 feet of 30-inch pipe connecting the pipe line system of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited with the pipe line system of Northern Natural Gas Company at the international boundary between Canada and the United States near Emerson, in the Province of Manitoba;
   (c) one 3,500 horsepower turbine driven centrifugal compressor located near Shaunavon, in the Province of Saskatchewan, all as more particularly described in the applications.
6. An application to be filed with the National Energy Board by TRANS-CANADA PIPE LINES LIMITED for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity pursuant to Part III of the Act in respect of those facilities proposed to be constructed and installed by it pursuant to its contractual obligation to Consolidated Natural Gas Limited to apply for such a Certificate to construct the facilities required to transmit gas for Consolidated Natural Gas Limited, such application to be filed not less than fourteen days prior to the day of commencement of any resumed hearing which the Board may order and direct and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited shall file, serve and publish notice of its said application in accordance with such directions as the Board may issue.

AND THE BOARD HAS FURTHER ORDERED THAT:

1. Any respondent or intervenor intending to oppose or intervene in the applications shall file on or before the 6th day of July, 1971, with the Secretary of the Board twenty (20) copies of a written statement containing his reply or submission, together with any supporting information, particulars or documents, which shall contain a concise statement of the facts from which the nature of the respondent's or intervenor's interest in the proceeding may be determined which may admit or deny any or all of the facts alleged in the applications and which shall be endorsed with the name and address of the respondent or intervenor or his solicitor to whom communications may be sent. Any respondent or intervenor shall, in addition, serve three (3) copies of his reply or submission, and supporting information, particulars or documents upon each of the Applicants and upon the Attorneys General of the Provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec, the British Columbia Energy Board, the Energy Resources Conservation Board of Alberta, the Oil and Gas Conservation Board of Saskatchewan, the Oil and Natural Gas Conservation Board of Manitoba, the Ontario Energy Board, the Electricity and Gas Board of Quebec and the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, 111 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

2. Subject to subsection (3) of section 5 of the Board's Rules of Practice and Procedure, compliance by the Applicants with subsection (1)(b) of section 5 of the said Rules and with clause 2(ii) of Part I of the Schedule to the said Rules be dispensed with except for that evidence and information filed with the application and to be adduced at the hearing thereof, and such other evidence as the Board deems relevant.

3. Leave be granted for such evidence and information adduced at hearings before the Board or before any Board, Commission or other competent tribunal of a Province for authority to take or remove gas from that Province and for any report, finding or Order made in respect thereof, as the Applicants may deem necessary and the Board permit, to be received in evidence at the hearing of these applications.

4. Any interested party may examine all of the applications and the submissions filed therewith at the office of the National Energy Board, Room 1138, Trebla Building, 473 Albert Street, Ottawa, and the individual applications of the respective Applicants at the following addresses:

Councils Fretting Over Rest Haven

By JOHN MATTERS

Rest Haven Hospital's insistence that its Seventh Day Adventist Church affiliation prevail in the new Saanich Peninsula Hospital is irking elected officials who do not want any more delays in building the centre.

North Saanich and Central Saanich councils both are concerned — and possibly annoyed — over the position taken by Rest Haven and the church. The topic also will be discussed at a meeting of the Capital Region's hospital advisory committee Wednesday morning.

However, the strongest stand is that taken by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, who has been telling Rest Haven for at least a month that the new hospital cannot be run on a denominational basis.

Loffmark will be responsible for finding 60 per cent of the public funds needed for the new unit, the first phase of which will be 75 beds for extended care. In its second phase, the 22-acre site on Keating Cross Road will have 75 acute-care beds, which will be the actual replacement for the existing 56-bed Rest Haven Hospital at Sidney.

Regional board will have to find the remaining 40 per cent of the capital costs. The site already has cost taxpayers about $125,000.

Rest Haven has insisted that the president of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in B.C. be chairman of the new hospital's board of management and that two other members of the SDA's B.C. executive be voting members.

Loffmark says all members of the hospital society, from which the board of management would have about half its membership, must be residents of the Capital Region's hospital district.

In a brief that it presented to Loffmark last week, Rest Haven stated its argument for having the Saanich Peninsula Hospital as a denominational institution:

"We hold the increasing demonstrable truth that man has a triple nature — the physical, the mental and the spiritual. We accept the recent testimony of research that nine-tenths of all functional diseases have their beginnings in emotional and spiritual conflicts within the mind. Hence our philosophy involves more than the treatment of symptoms."

Karl Marx in Grade 11

Political Science Fine, But...

A pilot course in political science will be given to some Oak Bay high school Grade 11 students this fall if the provincial government approves it.

A recommendation to that effect will go before Greater Victoria school board next week from the education committee which met last night.

But approval was not given by the committee without some misgivings.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon questioned the validity of allowing high school students to study such books as Karl Marx's Das Kapital.

"This is pretty heavy stuff to be feeding young people who are at a very impressionable age," he said.

He hoped the course would have the closest supervision to ensure that the approach would be non-partisan.

"The instructor is going to be a man who was an NDP candidate for election," said McKinnon. "He could be expected to be in favor of socialism."

(Instructor David Reimer ran as NDP candidate in the 1963 provincial election.)

"If it is possible to find a non-political person I would prefer to have one teaching political science," he said.

"Would you go to a draper to have your appendix removed?" asked trustee Peter Bunn.

"No — and I wouldn't go to the Spanish Inquisition to learn about religion, either," retorted McKinnon.

Trustee Philip Ney noted a gap in the bibliography and suggested that something about Mao Tse-tung would be appropriate study.

Explaining his reasons for asking for the course, Reimer told the board in a letter that he felt such a course would give students a background so that they would be less easily misled by demogogues advocating instant solutions, sometimes to be achieved through violence.

Trustee Dr. Rogers questioned the validity of that statement.

"The evidence that we have so far is that the students who appear to be the most violent and those who demand instant solutions are those in political science faculties at the university," he said.

Bunn said he would be interested to see what the education department would make of the application.

Another new course was discussed for Colquitz junior high, and it too will go to the department for approval.

This elective would be on navigation as an alternative to industrial education or art. It received general committee approval.

Sidney Levy Passes, 1, 2, 3

Sidney council Monday night gave first, second and third readings to a business licence bylaw amendment which would provide for a levy of $1 a year on vending machines in the municipalty.

The proposed amendment will be sent to the B.C. municipal affairs department for approval.

Already Past '71 Limit

Inflation Faster

OTTAWA (CP) — Even if the government would — or could — freeze prices for the rest of this year, inflation already exceeds the goal for 1971.

The price rise quickened last month, sending the Dominion Bureau of Statistics consumer prices index up to 132.7, based on 1961 prices equalling 100.

For May, this was an increase of half an index point, putting it 3.1 index points above May, 1970.

In percentage terms, it was an increase of four-tenths of 1 per cent for the month and 2.4 per cent since May, 1970.

In dollar terms, it means that it cost $13.27 last month to buy what $10 bought in consumer goods and services in 1961. It was five cents more than in April, and 31 cents more than in May last year.

Most economists regard 2 per cent as the limit that should be observed in an annual price increases without inflation. Since the start of 1971, the consumer price index has already risen 2.2 per cent.

If the 2-per-cent goal were to have been the limit, an index of 132.4 should not have been reached until next December.

Based on consumer price performance in the last five months, the index could top 136.6, showing an increase of 5.3 per cent for the year — far in excess of the goal.

The federal government has considered imposing some form of price control, but Finance Minister Edgar Benson said last month that, compared with a year ago, Canada's price performance was so good controls were not needed.

A year ago, prices were ranging 4.5 to five per cent ahead of 1969 prices. Starting with the supermarket price war last fall, the rate of price climb was cut back to less than 2 per cent a year.

Until the last round of inflationary pressures, the federal government took the view it did not have constitutional power to control prices in peacetime. It now is believed to have found a basis for doing so, but has put the plan back on the shelf.

Joan Lawson Medalist In City Championship

Former-champion Joan Lawson of Uplands earned medal honors by five strokes Monday in the qualifying round of the Victoria City and District Women's golf championship.

Mrs. Lawson shot an 82, eight over par on her home course, as the ladies generally found difficulties with tough pin placements. She will meet clubmate Esther Barnes in today's first round of match play, which begins at 8:30 a.m.

Next at 87 came three former champions who were playing together — Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale, Margaret Todd of Victoria and defending-champion Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows.

Mrs. Naysmith won runner-up honors through a countback and Mrs. Todd claimed third-place seeding through the same procedure.

Nita Moody of Gorge was next at 88, followed by Elsie Saunders of Gorge and Lil Thirlwell of Uplands at 90. Then came Jeanie Hopps of Uplands and Corinne Campbell of Royal Colwood at 91 and Flo Chapman and Maureen Hibberson of Uplands at 92.

Jane Fall of Cowichan shot a 94 and was followed by Irene Horne and Ivy Blunt, both of Gorge, and Lee Budden of Cowichan at 97.

Mrs. Barnes, tied at 98 with the Cowichan duo of Olive Holman and Bev Berkey, drew into the championship round on countback.

Play continues through Friday's finals when the championship match will get underway at 10 a.m. Starting time each day is 8:30 a.m.

Canadian goalkeeper Peter Greco stops point-blank drive

Failure In Draw

TORONTO — Canada's chance of winning a berth in the 1972 Olympic soccer competition were all but ended Sunday when the Canadian team was held to a 1-1 draw by Bermuda.

With two matches left in the round-robin playoff, Mexico is 2-0, Canada is 1-1-1, Bermuda is 0-2-1 and Mexico can clinch it be defeating Bermuda on Friday night. However, a surprise victory or draw for the Island team would give Canada a chance to make it in the last scheduled game, against Mexico in Vancouver on Aug. 24.

The favored Canadians had a sluggish attack and a vulnerable defence in Sunday's game and only the fine goalkeeping of Peter Greco kept the game close.

John Schepers scored for Canada after 21 minutes and Bermuda tied the score four minutes into the second half by taking advantage of one of the many Canadian defensive lapses.

Path to Western League Has Yet To Be Unblocked

The path to a berth in the Western Canada Hockey League could be a prickly one for Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster interests.

Milo Fabro of Kimberley, president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, says that the WCHL was attempting to move into B.C. without any consultation with the province's governing body and that such a move would not be permitted as matters stand.

"The way the Western Canada Junior (sic) Hockey League operates on its own shows worthlessness," said Fabro. "I don't see any good in it at all."

Victoria Cougars, Vancouver and New Westminster have all announced they will make application for entry at the WCHL's meeting June 20 and 21 in Saskatoon.

It is believed that the prairie-based league wants to add the three B.C. teams into a division with Edmonton, Calgary and Medicine Hat and play a partial interlocking schedule with the division.

That would be comprised of Winnipeg, Brandon, Flin Flon, Regina, Saskatoon and Swift Current.

Fabro, who said he was speaking for his association's directorate, stated that he has not received a request from any team for reclassification to Tier 1 status or to apply for entry into the WCHL.

All three coast teams operated in the Tier 2 B.C. Junior Hockey League last season.

A WAY OUT

Fabro said that it would be possible for the three coast clubs to participate in the WCHL, but only if the BCAHA was to retain jurisdiction over the B.C. clubs.

"I want to do what's good for hockey," Fabro said. "That's my main concern . . . I don't want the prairie league in here in its present form."

He explained that if the coast teams wanted to go Tier 1 they could do so through the BCAHA without joining the WCHL.

"If the B.C. Junior Hockey League recommended that the teams change status then I am sure that it would happen," Fabro said.

ROSY FUTURE

"B.C. will be the most lucrative market in the West," said Fabro. "The Western Canada league has shown a lot of foresight in planning to expand here. There is no doubt that Quebec, Ontario and B.C. will be the hockey hotbeds in the future."

The BCAHA head pointed out that his group now has some 36,000 hockey players registered — "That's more than Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba combined. We must protect our interests."

Fabro also said that the final say rests with the BCAHA and that the parent Canadian association would not be able to overrule the provincial branch. "They (CAHA) would be faced with definitely too many problems if they tried."

Still, Fabro would not say that there would not be B.C. teams in the WCHL next year.

"If things are negotiated in the proper manner, then anything is possible."

The BCJHL will discuss the matter further at a meeting in Penticton on Wednesday.

Royals Still Surging Giant Lead Dwindling

Kansas City Royals, a third-year expansion club, are beginning to create some doubts around the American League and Los Angeles Dodgers causing some doubts about San Francisco Giants in the National League.

MOVING UP

Not taken too seriously when they were hanging around .500, the Royals have driven past the defending-champion Minnesota Twins in the Western Division and have Oakland Athletics within sighting distance.

Good pitching or solid sitting, or a combination of both, have brought Royals 12 victories in their last 13 games and moved them within four and a half games of the Athletics.

Royals' sixth straight win came Monday night, Mike Hedlund pitching a six-hitter as New York Yankees went under, 1-4. All four Kansas City runs came in the sixth inning before an out was made — on singles by Paul Schaal, Amos Otis, Chuck Harrison, Lou Piniella and Bob Oliver and a wild pitch.

Athletics weren't scheduled Monday, but they had a game chopped off their lead on Sunday when they were belted, 5-1, by the Yankees while the Royals slipped by Boston Red Sox, 4-3.

Picking up momentum gradually while the Western Division leaders continue in their annual June slump, the Dodgers are now within five games of the Giants, who seemed to have an insurmountable lead starting the month.

Winners only three times in their last 14 games, the Giants took a 9-4 beating from the Phillies on Monday night while the Dodgers kept coming with a 3-2 verdict over New York Mets.

ONE-MAN GANG

Rick Wise, who went the distance for his seventh win, was a bit much for the beleaguered Giants. He helped his cause by connecting for a double and a three-run homer. And the Phils also got home runs from Willie Montanez, Oscar Gamble and Tim McCarver.

Relief-pitcher Jim Brewer snuffed out a seventh-inning New York rally at two runs to give Don Sutton his fifth win.

Sutton had a three-hitter to that point, and three hits was all the Dodgers managed. But one of them was a homer by Willie Davis and one a two-run double by rookie Bobby Valentine.

On Sunday, Valentine had four hits and drove in four runs in a 7-1 rout of Montreal Expos while the Mets helped the Los Angeles cause with an extra-inning, 4-3 win over the Giants.

Pittsburgh Pirates, who had won 12 of their last 16 games, had a winning streak snapped at four games on Monday. They were beaten, 5-4, by Houston Astros when reliever Dick Giusti gave up a bases-loaded walk in the ninth inning.

But the Pirates stayed two and a half games ahead of the Mets and three and a half games ahead of the slumping St. Louis Cardinals, who took a 7-2 pounding from Cincinnati Reds.

Uplands Juniors Just About There

	Pts.
Uplands	27½
Victoria	23
Gorge Vale	21
Cedar Hill	15
Glen Meadows	14½
Royal Colwood	7

Uplands will carry a four-and-a-half point lead into next Monday's final round in the Junior Inter Club Golf League.

Uplands dropped defending-champion Gorge Vale into third place by beating the visitors, 6½-2½, while Victoria took over second place by trimming visiting Royal Colwood, 9-0. In the other match, Glen Meadows scored a 5½-3½ victory at Cedar Hill.

Uplands will be at Glen Meadows in one of next Monday's matches while Victoria will visit Gorge Vale. A split in points would assure Uplands of at least a tie for the league title.

Results:

Gorge Vale 2½ at Uplands 6½
Bob Beauchemin lost to Keith Burrell 3 and 2; Ray Seymour lost to Tad McDiarmid 5 and 4; Uplands won four-ball, 3 and 1.
Don Marsden halved with Larry Ware; Gary Ferguson lost to Brad McLeod, 1 up; Uplands won four-ball, 2 and 1.
Jeff Jones defeated John Champion, 1 up; Grant Milliken defeated Doug Jull, 5 and 4; Uplands won four-ball, 2 up.

Royal Colwood 6 at Victoria 9
Doug Garow lost to Dunc Conrad, 5 and 4; Al Bryce lost to Carl Friesen, 3 and 2; Victoria won four-ball, 6 and 5.
Mike Haines lost to Bill MacPherson, 2 up; Bill Boomer lost to Mike Morrill, 2 and 1; Victoria won four-ball, 2 and 1.
Gavin Proudfoot lost to Drew Winlemute, 3 and 1; Wayne Hendray lost to Brian Sutherland-Brown, 3 and 1; Victoria won four-ball, 3 and 2.

Glen Meadows 5½ at Cedar Hill 3½
Shawn Walton defeated Gord Rands, 2 and 1; Don Gowan defeated Wayne O'Malley, 3 and 2; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 1 up.
Dave Tremblay lost to Lee Haskell, 1 up; Larry Criddle defeated Jim Tarbuck, 5 and 4; Glen Meadows won four-ball, 5 and 4.
John Gowan lost to Neil Campbell, 3 and 2; Roy Richards lost to Rob Pierce, 2 and 1; four-ball halved.

Hornets in Final

Saanich Hornets, who won the Junior Bantam Canadian Football League title with a 6-0 record, advanced Sunday to the playoff final with a 58-7 triumph over Saanich Chargers at Braefoot Park.

Knights of Columbus, second-place finishers in the regular schedule, will provide the opposition next Sunday at Royal Athletic Park. KC's scored a 14-7 victory over Oak Bay Marauders on a fourth-quarter touchdown by Glen McCallum.

Glen Davies, the league's scoring champion, led Hornets' attack with 28 points on four touchdowns and four converts.

City XI Gains Draw

Paced by four players from Albions, the Victoria and District Cricket Association side played to a Sunday draw with Vancouver in an inter-city game at Beacon Hill Park.

Albion bowlers took all four wickets as Vancouver declared with a total of 166 runs, Alec Porter taking two for 32 runs, Mike Morgan, one for 12, and Alan Carter, one for 34.

Chris Rowe of Albions scored 45 runs to lead Victoria to 117 for six at close of play. Carter added 20 not out and Morgan, 15 not out. Tim Bale of Ineons scored 16 runs.

Strathcona Hotel	3	7	.300	4

Bob Swanson beat Geoff Hett in a pitching duel as Bate Construction edged Strathcona Hotel, 1-0, in a Victoria Major Men's Softball League game Monday night at Central Park.

Swanson scattered five hits effectively and struck out five while Hett allowed only two hits, struck out three but gave up five bases on balls.

It was a base on balls in the sixth inning which did Hett in. Lancaster drew it with one out, took second base on a wild pitch, reached third on a ground-out and scored on a single by Bill James.

James had the only other hit for Bates, a fourth-inning single.

Strathcona threatened in the seventh inning, getting two runners as far as third base but Swanson struck out Hett to end the game.

Bates loaded the bases with one out in the third inning on a base on balls and two batters hit by pitched balls. But Hett got out of trouble by forcing cleanup-batter Harv Stevenson to ground into a force-out at home plate and getting Ken Bate to pop up.

Colwood Inn defeated Gilmour Construction, 3-1, Monday at Heywood Avenue Park to move into a tie for second place with Century Inn in the Stuffy McGinnis softball league.

The win, coupled with Century's split Sunday with Langford Drywall, left Colwood only two points from the first-place Langford squad.

Don Shaw helped win his own game with a single and infield grounder which drove in two runs. Shaw struck out seven and the only run scored against him was a third-inning home run over the left-field fence by Bob Walton.

Century unleashed a 15-hit attack in the first game Sunday to score a 12-3 win over Langford, in the second game, Mel Nelson won his own game by leading off the ninth inning with a single and scoring on Tom Baxter's double to give Langford a 4-3 decision.

In another game Sunday, Alden Govenlock's two-run homer was the big blow in Sooke Merchants' 3-0 win over Labatts.

Pullout Brings One-Year CAHA Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — Fred Muller, owner and general manager of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series was suspended for one year Monday by the executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The suspension of Muller for the 1971-72 season means he will have to arrange for a manager.

Joe Krycka, CAHA president, said Muller cannot act in any capacity with the club during his suspension.

The ban on Muller followed his indefinite suspension by the CAHA because of the failure of the St. Catharines team to complete a semi-final series, 3-2, at the time of the St. Catherines withdrawal.

The Remparts subsequently went on to win the Memorial Cup — the Canadian junior championship — when they defeated Edmonton Oil Kings in two straight games of the best-of-three final.

The CAHA also met with Eastern junior series against Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League.

The Black Hawks refused to return to Quebec for the sixth game of the best-of-seven series of their Richardson Cup playoff following a near riot at Quebec City in the fourth game. Quebec led the series, 3-2, at the time of the St. Catherines withdrawal.

The Remparts subsequently went on to win the Memorial Cup — the Canadian junior championship — when they defeated Edmonton Oil Kings in two straight games of the best-of-three final.

The CAHA also met with the National Hockey League prior to the Muller meeting to discuss the budget for the current pro-am agreement for the coming year. The current agreement between the professional and amateur bodies runs out in one year.

A meeting to negotiate a new pact will be held in August.

Young Now Ru

Playing at Glen Meadows in the last round of the 36-hole medal-play competition, the Victoria Golf Club belter broke away on the back nine by shooting a one-under-par 35 which gave him a 74 and a tournament total of 146.

Schwantje, who had taken a one-stroke lead the previous Sunday by scoring a first-round 72 at Gorge Vale, encountered first-nine trouble at Glen Meadows. He had three bogey fives and a 39 which left him in a four-way tie starting the final nine holes.

Even with him were Dave Mick, Ray Seymour, Jr., and veteran Reg Clarkson.

None could keep up in the last part. Mick, who finished second, had bogey fives on the 11th and 12th holes and never recovered the lost ground. Mick got a birdie duece on the 17th but bogeyed the last hole.

Coin Flip Tourname

Bate Construction, unbeaten Saturday in their first two games of the Victoria Major Men's Softball League invitational tournament, suffered two losses Sunday to allow Seaboard Construction of Victoria and Vancouver Eldorados to sneak by.

Eldorados and Seaboards, both 1-1 after Saturday's play in the round-robin tournament, both won twice Sunday and Eldorados became tournament champions by winning a coin flip.

T WAS CLOSE

Seaboards broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the 11th inning and then held Bates to one run in their half to drop Bates from the unbeaten ranks.

Nanaimo Tally-Ho prevented a three-way tie for first place in the five-team, two-day tournament by blanking Bates, 4-0, in the last of Sunday's five games.

Playing at Glen Meadows in the last round of the 36-hole medal-play competition, the Victoria Golf Club belter broke away on the back nine by shooting a one-under-par 35 which gave him a 74 and a tournament total of 146.

Schwantje, who had taken a one-stroke lead the previous Sunday by scoring a first-round 72 at Gorge Vale, encountered first-nine trouble at Glen Meadows. He had three bogey fives and a 39 which left him in a four-way tie starting the final nine holes.

None could keep up in the last part. Mick, who finished second, had bogey fives on the 11th and 12th holes and never recovered the lost ground. Mick got a birdie duece on the 17th but bogeyed the last hole.

Seymour, who finished at 151 and in a third-place tie with Hal Jacobsen of the host club, bogeyed the 10th and 12th and had a double-bogey six on the 14th after a birdie on 13. He finished with a last-nine 40.

Saddest story of all was Clarkson's. Beaten finalist in the Island match play championship, he bogeyed the 11th and 12th and had a triple-bogey eight on the 13th. He finally finished what was perhaps his worst nine of the year at 45.

That gave him an 82 and a 36-hole total of 156.

Veterans Al MacLeod and Bob Hunt also had last-round 74s but 74 was as close as anyone could come to par on the lengthy layout.

Seymour won the handicap championship with a 140, and the next four were all juniors — Jeff Jones, Dunc Conrad, Larry Ware and Chuck McBey.

Weiskopf Ends Four-Way Playoff With Fifth Consecutive Birdie

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Five birdies in a row, the last on an extra hole, Sunday brought Tom Weiskopf a spectacular victory in the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf tournament.

Admittedly just hoping for second place as the tournament neared its end, the long-hitting Weiskopf suddenly found himself in a four-man playoff when he birdied out from the 15th to score a 69 for a 72-hole score of 277.

Dale Douglass, who appeared to have the $30,000 first prize locked up, gave the necessary help by bogeying the last two holes, both times missing putts from inside three feet.

That also opened the door for Lee Trevino and Gary Player.

Trevino, who came close with a birdie try on the 18th, and Player, who rolled in a four-footer for a birdie, also finished with 69s and 11-under-par 277. Douglass had a last-round 70 and was as much as three strokes ahead during the last round.

NOT MUCH HOPE

Weiskopf, winless since 1968 and often accused of having a too-casual approach to his game, didn't appear to have a chance when he bogeyed the 10th hole to drop to seven under par for the tournament. And he was still six strokes off the pace when he reached the 15th tee.

After a fine drive and second shot, he wedged within 10 feet and sank the putt to start his amazing drive.

He sank another 10-footer on the 16th and connected from eight feet on the 17th. When he reached the 18th green, where his approach was 18 feet from the cup, Weiskopf got a look at the leader board and realized for the first time that the chance of victory was there.

"If I can make this I still have a chance," he commented.

"Damn right," encouraged playing-partner Arnold Palmer.

Weiskopf sank the putt and sweated it out until Douglass ended scheduled tournament play with his second successive short-putt miss.

All four playoff golfers got excellent drives and good second shots on the first playoff hole — the 599-yard 15th where Weiskopf had started his rush.

FOUR BIRDIE CHANCES

Douglass put his third 20 feet from the pin, Player was within 12 feet, and Weiskopf dropped his wedge within eight feet. Trevino, who had hit a marvellous drive and was closest to the green after two shots, was 18 feet away.

After Douglass, Trevino and Player had barely missed their birdie tries, Weiskopf stepped up and stroked the ball into the cup.

"I was shaking so badly I had to step away from the putt, but I said to myself, 'you're the last man, stand up and hit it,'" the happy Weiskopf related after he had calmed down.

Ken Fulton, former Trail golfer now playing out of Montreal, was the only Canadian money-winner. He shot 290 and won $176.

Vollmer Charges To $4,200 Finish

ETOWAH, N.C. — Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver Sunday earned his biggest pay cheque but the young Canadian golfer couldn't quite catch Charles Owens in the Kemper-Asheville Open.

Vollmer, who was six strokes off the pace after two rounds, added a four-under-par 67 to a third-round 68 for a 72-hole total of 280.

However, Owens, an amazing shotmaker who took to playing cross-handed when his left knee-cap had to be removed and the two large leg bones fused, was still two strokes ahead at the finish.

Owens shot 70-69-70-69 in a consistent display of fine shot-making to finish six strokes under par.

Victory was worth $7,000 while Vollmer picked up $4,200.

Coin Flip Decides Tournament Honors

Bate Construction, unbeaten Saturday in their first two games of the Victoria Major Men's Softball League invitational tournament, suffered two losses Sunday to allow Seaboard Construction of Victoria and Vancouver Eldorados to sneak by.

Eldorados and Seaboards, both 1-1 after Saturday's play in the round-robin tournament, both won twice Sunday and Eldorados became tournament champions by winning a coin flip.

IT WAS CLOSE

Seaboards broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the 11th inning and then held Bates to one run in their half to drop Bates from the unbeaten ranks.

Nanaimo Tally-Ho prevented a three-way tie for first place in the five-team, two-day tournament by blanking Bates, 4-0, in the last of Sunday's five games.

Canucks May Be Reclaimed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says Minneapolis-based Medicor has secured financing that will enable it to regain majority interest in Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., parent company of the Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

The newspaper says a New York bank has agreed to lend Medicor the money it needs to match bids on its Northwest Sports stock currently being held in escrow by the British Columbia Securities Commission.

Medicor was ordered to place its 60.1 per cent interest in Northwest Sports in escrow after the securities commission learned that a total of $3,505,000 had been transferred to the U.S. from Northwest Sports Canadian bank accounts.

Medicor-president Tom Scallen termed the transfer a loan. He said it would be repaid.

The securities commission ruled the money had to be returned by midnight last Wednesday. When it was not, the superintendent of brokers, W. S. Irwin, ordered Medicor's Northwest Sports Stock put up for auction.

Medicor, however, would have 72 hours to match any outside bids and a further 48 hours to produce the cash.

The Sun says the New York loan to Medicor will be made on a short term, high interest basis.

Shamrocks Fall Short In Another Late Try

Surprised Wednesday by a Victoria Shamrock comeback, New Westminster Salmonbellies woke up in time Sunday to hand the Victorians their first home loss of the season, 14-12, before 2127 fans at Memorial Arena.

The victory gave the defending champions a four-point bulge over the runner-up Islanders, who gave the Ladies Night crowd, largest of the season, absolutely nothing to cheer about for the first 24 minutes.

An hour late because of bus trouble which caused them to miss the ferry, Salmonbellies rattled the impatient hosts with six goals before Shamrocks' Charn Dhillon finally solved goalkeeper Joe Comeau.

The Victorians continued their horrendous checking and offensive play through the rest of the period, however, as New Westminster took a 7-2 lead and quickly made it 9-2 early in the second.

Then the Shamrocks put on the same kind of a comeback as they did on Wednesday, when they scored seven straight goals after being 4-8 and going on from there to an 11-9 win.

This rally, however, produced only five successive goals and the Islanders couldn't get closer than one goal. They got to 9-10 in the fourth minute of the third period, rallied again to get to 12-13 and then lost that last chance when another of the costly turnovers which plagued them throughout set up a goal by Al Lewthwaite.

Mainland Riders Dominate Close-Finish Cycle Races

George Streadwick of the Vancouver Bicycle Club, Max Grace of the North Delta Cycling Club and Bas Lysett of the Labatts' Cycling Team from Vancouver were all timed in 4:36:35 hours in the "A" class, 100-mile event which started at Qualicum Beach. Streadwick was judged the winner, Grace placed second and Lysett given third place.

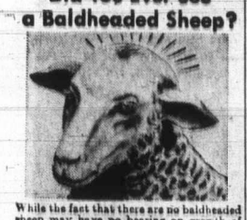

The time for the first three was considerably slower than the record of 4:08:46 hours set by Helmut Meisel of Vancouver last year. Meisel did not enter because of an extended stay in Germany.

In the "B" event, a 68-mile race which began in Nanaimo, Marc Akerstream and Ron Hayman of the Crescent cycling Club of Vancouver, Brian Keast of Vancouver's Anglia Cycling Club and Karl Fawthorpe of the host-Victoria Wheelers were all timed in 2:57:54 hours with Akerstream declared the winner.

David Thomas of Vancouver's Hansworth Cycling Club and Jonathan Barss of the Wheelers both flashed across the finish line in 4:34:40 hours in the 33-mile "C" division race which started in Duncan and Thomas was given the nod. Chris Whale of the anglia club was only two seconds behind the first two.

The only clear-cut decision was in the 33-mile novice event won by Tom Gait of the Wheelers in 1:34:44 hours. Ken Ferris, another Wheelers' entry, was second in 1:37:06 while Ron Cooper of Hansworth was third in 1:40:15.

Did You Ever See a Baldheaded Sheep?

While the fact that there are no baldheaded sheep may have no bearing on growth of human hair, it is from the wool of the sheep that the natural lanolin used in NIL-O-NAL is extracted.

Your Scalp Is Not An Oilwell

Your hair needs natural scalp oils to keep it growing strong and thick. When you dry-out or wash-out those protective oils, you're inviting hair trouble—dandruff, itchy scalp, even falling hair! So why take chances? Replace those vital oils daily by using NIL-O-NAL (Lanolin spelled backwards).

CURLS, CURLS, CURLS!

Even when it rains!

If you want deep, flattering curls that last and last—even in rainy weather—just use NIL-O-NAL before you set your hair. Results are amazing. Your curls are bouncy, springy, long-lasting. Your hair is softer, easy to manage. And because it medicates as well as beautifies, NIL-O-NAL helps stop hair ends from splitting off.

SEE RESULTS IN 30 DAYS

If you want the hair benefits we know NIL-O-NAL can give you, get a jar today. It's the most successful lanolin formula in Canada and we guarantee you'll be completely astonished in 30 days . . . or your money back! Special prices now apply. Only 69¢ for a 4-oz. jar; only $1.49 for a 2 oz. jar; only $2.19 for the money-saving 4 oz. jar. Get NIL-O-NAL today at any drug or cosmetic counter. Remember, this guarantee applies only if you insist on NIL-O-NAL. That's lanolin spelled backwards!

McLa... Do It ...

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — The bright orange sports cars of Team McLaren made it one-two in the opener of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series Sunday, threatening to dominate motorsport's richest series for a fifth year.

New Zealander Denis Hulme took the checkered flag after completing the 200 miles in elapsed time of one hour, 48 minutes, 15.2 seconds at an average speed of 109.333 miles an hour. Only nine-tenths of a second behind him was team-mate Peter Revson of Harbor City, Calif., driving an identical McLaren.

Sunday's event was the first in a 10-race series for big-bore sports cars in which more than $1,000,000 in purses and manufacturers' prizes is at stake.

Since the series began in 1966, there have been 41 races and Team McLaren drivers have won 30 of them. The team has won 20 of the last 21 races.

There was little excitement in the race after Scotsman Jackie Stewart dropped out. As top qualifier in trial last week he was the one man in the field of 26 given a chance to beat the McLaren team.

He took the lead away from Hulme after nine laps but in the first 14 minutes oil began to pour from the rear of his Lola. He packed it in on the 18th lap with a seized transmission.

Then Hulme took the lead, followed closely by Revson and they held their positions for the rest of the race with no threats from any other driver.

Youth Upsets Seeded Vet

There was one upset Monday in club tennis championship play at Victoria Racquet Club.

Young Glen Bradshaw advanced to the men's semi-finals against top-ranked Roger Skillings by downing fourth-seeded Kemble Greenwood, 6-2, 7-5.

Third-seeded Ted Smyth, who will meet second-ranked Marty Taylor in the other semi-final, got by Pat Skillings, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, in a tough match.

In women's play, second-ranked Sally Wood defeated Gwen Berry, 6-0, 6-0; third-seeded Nancy Hill downed Maureen Hibberson, 8-6, 6-3, and fourth-rated Vivian Davies won by default.

Play continues tonight at 5:30 p.m.

The race was rough on the cars and at the finish only 16 machines were running. Track marshals reported 44 incidents on the course, ranging from dragging hoses to spin-outs.

Two Californians, Lothar Motschenbacher of Newport Beach and Bob Bondurant of Tustin, had a little race of their own far back from the leaders. They finished third and fourth respectively in McLarens.

John Cordts of Port Sydney, Ont., made the best showing of a Canadian in any race since the series started when he brought his McLaren home in fifth place.

New York Betting Shops Pleasant Surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — This city's Off-Track Betting Corp., its action thus far restricted mainly to two local harness tracks, is making more money sooner than anyone expected.

Any later this week, following successful negotiations with flat-track employees, the corporation will start booking thoroughbred flat races on a regular basis.

Two months after accepting its first wager — on trotting at Long Island's Roosevelt Raceway — OTB has taken in more than $12 million and has broken into the black on a daily basis.

Though most of its business has been with harness racing, OTB set up its own pool and odds on thoroughbred racing's triple crown for three-year-olds — the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont — and handled more than $1 million in best on each.

It took in $1,030,432 on the Derby, handled $1,151,686 on the Preakness and this month did a high of $1,176,898 on the Belmont.

But the city-operated corporation still has to pay back much of $5.5 million it borrowed from the city to get started. And it still hasn't got its million-dollar computer into operation to speed the taking and payoff of bets.

Lack of a computer has caused long lines to form often at OTB betting windows. The corporation so far has opened 10 offices with a total of 99 windows.

Six weeks after it started taking bets, OTB passed the break-even daily handle of $250,000 and has maintained an average of about $280,000 since.

An OTB spokesman recently estimated "modestly" the corporation would give the city treasury $25 million in the next fiscal year.

One of the OTB's legislative mandates is to "prevent and curb unlawful bookmaking and illegal wagering on horse races." Samuels hopes to accomplish this by offering bettors a fast, convenient, computerized and legal wagering service.

Porsche One-Two

LE MANS, France (AP) — An Austrian judge and a Dutch shipping executive nursed a Porsche 917 the last 10 hours without brakes and won the 39th Le Mans 24-hour sports-car race Sunday.

Helmut Marko of Austria and Gys Van Lennep of Holland piloted the winning car as Porsches finished first and second. They were the only two survivors of the seven-car contingent of favored Porsche 917s.

Richard Atwood of Britain and Herbert Muller of Switzerland were second in another 917, two laps behind the winner as time expired.

Third and fourth were two Ferrari 512Ms, the only other specially-built racing machines still on the road. Most of the other 10 finishers from the original 49-car field were the types seen in showroom windows.

Sam Posey and Tony Adamowicz of the United States drove the third-place car, and Christopher Craft and David Wier, both of Britain, were behind the wheel of No. 4.

Provinces Sound Off

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL
Constitutional Conference

Strom Pushing Economic Meet

(Canadian Press)

Premier Harry Strom of Alberta Monday called for a federal-provincial conference to deal solely with the "most serious economic crisis ever to confront Canada."

In an opening statement to the constitutional conference, Premier Strom proposed that the conference be called within a month or six weeks to deal with the economic situation and "the need for innovative policies" to correct it.

PRAIRIES

While Alberta had been able to nullify the effects of Ottawa's misguided policies that had created an intolerably high level of inflation and unemployment and left the economy at a complete standstill, Alberta "cannot stand alone."

"We are only a small part of the national economy and we will be drawn into economic disaster, along with the other provinces, if the federal government continues to follow the advice of its present economic experts."

Provincial governments "must have control over social policy — and all the programs in this field — if they are to retain even the vestiges of independence authority," Strom said.

Although stopping short of lending support, Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said he has sympathy for Quebec's demands for jurisdiction over social services.

He said that his province experiences frustration with existing welfare programs which have, to a large degree, failed in their purpose.

The federal government was beginning to "walk away from" shared-cost programs, leaving the provinces to pick up the "increasing residual costs.

While he couldn't support Quebec's proposal to assume responsibility for social services, he said he understood the province's frustration with the present system.

Saskatchewan Attorney-General D. V. Heald said Quebec's demands for full jurisdiction in the field of social security did not match Saskatchewan's concept of Canada as a nation.

The attorney-general said the proposal would emasculate the financial abilities of the federal government with Ottawa as the tax collector and little else.

Heald said he wanted to emphasize to Ottawa the importance of sharply accelerating its study of freight rates which were working to Saskatchewan's disadvantage.

Davis Foresees Power-Split Talks in Fall

(Canadian Press)

Ontario Premier William Davis expressed hope Monday night that constitutional discussions between Ottawa and the provinces on the redistribution of powers could begin this fall.

Davis was commenting in an interview on a position paper he presented to the closed afternoon session of the constitutional conference.

The paper reiterated Ontario's concern for agreement on major issues on the agenda of the current talks, so a start could be made on the second "and more substantive" stage of constitutional reform — "a complete review of the distribution of powers within a reasonable length of time."

In an interview after the first day of the conference, the premier said he hoped redistribution of power could be discussed at a fall conference.

In his paper, Davis said he attaches priority to the question of a new alignment of political power between

ONTARIO

Ottawa and the provinces "because it is clear that a government's view on the distribution of powers reflects the kind of federal system that it prefers."

The paper said Canada must move to a more decentralized federation, a shift in decision-making which must be accompanied by a shift in revenue-raising abilities.

But to suggest this can be accomplished by raising taxes "is to ignore the fact that taxes are about as high as Canadians will and should accept."

Davis said decentralization will not mean an end to the federal role as "the balance wheel of our federation."

But the balance wheel had become distorted and Canada must "move to a more integrated, flexible and decentralized federalism."

Offshore Rights Surfacing Again

(Canadian Press)

The premiers of the Atlantic provinces brought regional disparities and offshore mineral rights to the constitutional talks again Monday, along with hope that progress can be made on amending Canada's constitution.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia was the first to mention offshore mineral rights at the seventh meeting in the current series of constitutional discussions. He said in his opening address he intended to raise the controversial issue at the "next round."

He said Nova Scotia feels it has "legal and moral rights" to minerals lying off its coast and will press for these rights.

ATLANTIC

But Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland was more forceful on the subject, making an impassioned plea for the rights to minerals off Canada's easternmost province.

The Supreme Court of Canada last year decided the federal government had the rights to minerals lying off Canada's coasts, but Smallwood demanded that Parliament act to give the underwater minerals to the provinces.

The fiery premier said Newfoundland would not "wait much longer, certainly not after this year" for Parliament to take action.

Both Regan and Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick discussed regional disparities, Hatfield saying his province has been "almost continually depressed and brutally poor" in the century since Confederation.

The Prince Edward Island premier said he didn't come to Victoria for discussions. He came to change the constitution "and let's get to work."

Smallwood reinforced his plea for offshore mineral rights by including similar rights for the other seaside provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, P.E.I., Quebec and British Columbia.

He said lands in northern Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec were once federal lands that were given as a gift by Ottawa when these provinces entered Confederation.

"I'm suggesting only that you do precisely that with the federal lands that lie contiguous to" Newfoundland and the other provinces that touch on the ocean, he said.

Road Show

"No, I'm waiting for the green light," he replied, but apparently it took too long, because he crossed the street against the red light.

Across the street, in the window of a bank building, a wax figure dressed in turn-of-the-century clothes, stood next to a vintage car, but not even he looked at the road where in a few minutes Canada's rulers were to wave to a few onlookers.

At 9:50 a.m., a police officer, presumably sent there to control the crowds, took up his long vigil at the corner of Douglas and Yates.

At four minutes past 10, music could be heard drifting to the still empty corner from about a block away and it was only when the band preceding the motorcade turned the corner of Blanshard and Yates that people stopped crossing the street.

By the time, the procession of cars had reached Douglas, an estimated 100 people had gathered along the 700-Block Yates.

A few waved, the rest just looked on as Prime Minister Trudeau drove by in a convertible, followed by the nine premiers.

Trudeau and Friends Attend Brentwood Mass

On the weekend, Prime Minister and Mrs Trudeau went into seclusion, probably at a friend's home in the Brentwood area, but there was no mistaking Trudeau when he arrived unannounced at Brentwood's Our Lady of Assumption Church.

Trudeau led a party of five into the church for Sunday noon mass. He surprised the congregation of about 50 with his white slacks, striped shirt, kerchief and sneakers.

He sat next to a couple who apparently didn't recognize him until they were introduced later.

Later Sunday afternoon Trudeau checked into the vice-regal suite at the Empress Hotel where he will stay for the duration of the conference.

In an earlier informal foray, Trudeau entertained a group of his aides and security men at a buffet dinner at the Deep Cove Chalet. He and his party relaxed there for two hours over dinner.

Mrs. Trudeau didn't accompany him on either occasion.

Sewage Plan

No Legal Protests Received

There were no "legal" objectors to the Central Saanich-Capital Regional District scheme to discharge sewage into Cordova Channel when the June 12 deadline to register objections closed, a provincial pollution control spokesman told the Colonist Monday.

He emphasized there is a difference between protesters and legal objectors as defined under the Pollution Control Act.

Under the Act, according to the spokesman, an objector has a permit to either take water out of a body of water, or discharge effluent into it, and can legally object if his rights may be affected.

"Protesters are people who just write in their protests," he said, and declined to say how many protests the board had received.

He said that all the Pollution Control Board can do is work within the framework of the Act when it determines who is a legal objector.

Under the Act, objectors were allowed 30 days to file their complaints with the PCB.

The proposed discharge of effluent into the channel will result from a new sewer system planned within the next 18 months for Central Saanich. A referendum approving the system passed in the municipality April 24.

Museur May Cu

The trustees of the B.C. Maritime Museum will meet today to pare the museum's budget in order to meet the $3,250 loss in revenue from municipal grants.

Curator Bill Symons says he is afraid cutbacks will come in areas where the museum is trying to improve itself.

Symons said recommendations from Monday's meeting of the executive committee would probably include a cutback in display materials and display area.

'Tell Public More, Cut Red Tape'

Campbell Slams Councils

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has warned all B.C. municipal councils and regional boards to keep the public better informed, to use more common sense and less red tape, and to stop blaming the provincial government for their own blunders.

In a letter, a copy of which arrived at Victoria city hall Monday morning, Campbell said his department is receiving an increasing number of complaints from individuals who have been told by municipal and regional officials that bylaws are the product of the provincial government.

He said it has been the policy of his department to confer more and more authority on local governments and that it would be "unethical" to confer authority on one hand, and "very heavily police it" on the other hand.

"I therefore feel it is incumbent upon local government to make it clear that the authority conferred under the Municipal Act cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be used as a shield against the protests of a ratepayer real or imaginary," the letter stated.

The minister blamed "highly legalistic regulations and perfunctory adherence to requirements for legal notice" for the lack of public information regarding zoning regulations.

Too many regulatory bylaws, the letter said, are passed by municipal councils.

"Many of the powers which are theoretically present under the Municipal Act should only be used if there is a clear-cut public understanding that a problem exists which can only be resolved by regulation."

Complaints related to this point, the letter said, indicate that the public wants more "common sense and discretion with respect to regulations than red tape."

Municipal governments, it said, are responsible for explaining to the public not only the nature of a bylaw but also why it is to be introduced.

Police 'Propaganda' Blasted By Lawyer

Opposition to "anything being done that would prejudice negotiations" was voiced Monday by lawyer Edwin Pearlman, spokesman for the Victoria Police commission in its contract talks with the police union.

He was commenting on a 20-point union statement issued Saturday to explain the union request for wage parity with Vancouver and other Lower Mainland municipalities.

"I don't believe in conducting negotiations through the media," the lawyer said. "I am opposed to anything being done that would prejudice negotiations."

He added the public is entitled to some information "but when it comes to propaganda I think we should draw the line."

The union and a commission group led by Pearlman have had one exploratory meeting and expect to meet again within the next week.

Museum Budget Trim May Cut Improvements

The trustees of the B.C. Maritime Museum will meet today to pare the museum's budget in order to meet the $3,250 loss in revenue from municipal grants.

Curator Bill Symons says he is afraid cutbacks will come in areas where the museum is trying to improve itself.

Symons said recommendations from Monday's meeting of the executive committee would probably include a cutback in display materials and display area.

"I think it's a great shame Victorians and their elected representatives can't see giving us support.

"But we're not going to die or close the place, don't ever worry. I'm sure we will survive all these setbacks but this gives us less room to improve ourselves," he said.

The museum had asked for $7,000 from the Greater Victoria municipalities — $2,750 from Victoria, $1,000 from Oak Bay, $2,500 from Saanich and $750 from Esquimalt.

Grants have been received from Oak Bay and Victoria but Esquimalt rejected the museum's request.

Symons said the museum has not received an official reply from Saanich but he had learned "unofficially" that the municipality had decided it had no money available for the museum.

He said Victoria's Maritime Museum is "the best on this coast and one of the finest in North America."

Fourth Pool Date Set

Completion of Victoria's new $1.8 million swimming pool at Central Park is expected by Oct. 21 and official opening is scheduled for Nov. 25.

"There may be things that happen that we do not know about," Frampton said. However, pool contractor H. E. Fowler and Sons does not foresee any difficulties which would impair completion of the new complex.

Former deadline for completion was Sept. 15.

Deadlines Pass

This was the fourth deadline that has been broken. Previous target dates were Dec. 1, 1970, and May 31 and July 31 of this year.

Cause of the delays Frampton said, was a 72-day labor lockout during 1970 and discovery of more bedrock than expected.

He said the contractor would not be held responsible for the delays.

And the reason for the time lag between completion and official opening of the pool?

"We may be able to open earlier (but) the staff has to get familiar with the pool and their jobs," Frampton said.

Main Purpose

Architect John Di Castri, supervisor of the project, said at the press conference, main purpose of the new building would not be as a swimming pool but as a recreational centre.

Victoria Recreation Director Jack Morgan said permanent staff will be fewer in number than that employed at the Crystal Garden.

Tinted Domes

Di Castri said a smoke colored tint applied on the exterior of the domes' acrylic panels will lessen glare on the pools without affecting natural light.

Frampton said Victoria's new pool will be the only one in Canada to feature overhead domes.

The centre will provide a 50-metre Olympic standard course with eight lanes combined with a 25-metre eight lane course in a T-shaped pool.

A diving well, equipped with two one-metre boards, two three-metre boards and one five-metre diving platform, is included.

In addition to the main pool, a children's pool will be located at one end of the building.

Handshake achieved despite security problems

Alexander the Trudeau Was Set for Diogenes

Alexander the Great met Diogenes outside the B.C. Legislature Monday and in this instance Diogenes seemed to come off second best as a philosopher.

Diogenes was Bill Scott, Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, who announced he would hand Prime Minister Trudeau, in the role of Alexander the Great, a copy of his own manifesto proclaiming Canada as the head of the French and English-speaking world.

It wasn't too easy to get the message across as the official party arrived. Scott was annoyed by what he described as the "finest collection of inflated bureaucratic pimples with more badges than brains."

But his determination paid off.

At the noon recess Scott was hailed by Premier Bennett: "How's my good friend Bill Scott? Keep up the good work."

His big moment came when he welcomed Trudeau to Victoria in French and asked if he might have a word with the prime minister.

"He is quite a scholar," said Scott, "and caught me off guard when he asked me if I knew the potential and all the tricks of Diogenes."

Trudeau accepted Scott's pamphlet with the suggestion that Canada lead the French and English-speaking world and then rejoined the party. Scott's parting words to Trudeau were: "You could be another Alexander the Great and make Canada the leader of the Western world."

Diogenes lived about 2,300 years ago and was a philosopher of the cynic school who renounced worldly goods for the simple life.

Alexander the Great once asked Diogenes what he could do to help him and was told, "Stand out of my sunshine."

Scott said Monday he wished to show Trudeau how he could lead Canada in a position of world eminence, especially in the Western world.

The lighthouse philosopher praised the RCMP who had allowed him to speak to the prime minister, saying "they have tact and understanding."

Scott's three-point program suggests Canada head the English and French-speaking cultural world; United Nationalism be replaced with United Culturalism, and culture be defined as "improvement of man's physical and mental condition, Refinement and beautifying of the mind, body and environment."

Damage to Home $1,000 in Fire

Damage was estimated at $1,000 in a fire Victoria firemen said was caused by a child playing with matches, at 2518 Quadra Monday morning. A fire department official said no one was hurt as the occupants, the Charles Mowbray family, were forced out by the flames.

UVic Hearing To Go On

Board Member Quits in Protest

By BILL THOMAS

A member of the three-man advisory board appointed by the University of Victoria to examine the cases of three faculty members denied reappointment, resigned Monday and was replaced by the University of British Columbia's dean of pharmacy, Bernard Riedel.

The panel was convened from names recommended to the university by B.C. Supreme Court Justice J. O. Wilson. The idea of the panel came from a series of meetings of the full professors of the university after almost two years of controversy over the nonrenewal of teaching contracts for William Goede, Tikam Jain and J. P. Graff. The three faculty members contracts terminate June 30.

The board's hearing are being boycotted by the faculty association, CAUT and student organizations.

Dr. Vladimir Okulich resigned from the panel and the UVic board of governors met late Monday afternoon to consider an alternate.

The hearings are scheduled to open today at 10 a.m. in the MacLaurin Building on campus.

Chairman is former Alberta Supreme Court Judge Colin MacLaurin, with Vancouver lawyer Brian Carrothers and Riedel completing the panel.

In addition to resigning from the panel, Okulich resigned from the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

In giving his reason for his resignation from CAUT the UBC professor, in his letter to CAUT president Gordin Kaplan May 17 said, "The reason for this decision is my complete disagreement with the actions of CAUT in the recent censure of several universities. I strongly believe that universities have the right to dismiss or not renew appointments of individuals who for one reason or another are no longer desirable members of the institution.

"CAUT actions are harmful to the universities, the academic standards and the students and seem to reflect a left-wing radical mentality."

> 'We are back where we started'

Okulich told Kaplan, "In many ways CAUT is beginning to act like a trade union instead of a professional association. Since I am completely out of sympathy with such trends I do not wish any longer to be connected with the association."

The UVic committee of full professors had asked that the examination of CAUT's part in the handling of the cases of the three professors be one of the terms of reference of the advisory board.

CAUT president Kaplan replied to Okulich June 10 saying he was "astonished to learn today of your acceptance of nomination to advisory committee to president Partridge."

Kaplan told Okulich the tone of his letter "indicates serious doubt that you can be an impartial judge of events at the University of Victoria and of the CAUT role there. I personally urge you to resign immediately from the advisory committee."

Faculty Association president Charles Doyle said Monday the resignation of Okulich from the panel "proves that our misgivings are entirely justified."

In a message to all faculty members, Doyle said, "Since the members of the advisory board were, in the event, chosen by the University of Victoria administration and since Okulich was the last member of the advisory board to be appointed and his appointment delayed announcement of the panel (as it then was) until May 26, there must be very serious doubt that the appointment was made in good faith."

Doyle said that either the university appointed him knowing of his attitude in spite of the professor's call for a disinterested committee or Okulich had not made his views known to the university.

"We are back where we started," said Doyle. "we need an independent tribunal with powers to call witness and take sworn statements. We still believe this is the duty of the visitor, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson."

"The way things stand nobody is obliged to produce all the relevant documents or relevant witnesses," Doyle said.

Radio Crystals Stall Flyer

By JIM BRAHAN

Failure to get special radio parts may wash out a number of B.C. entries in the Centennial 71 air race July 1 from London, England, to Victoria, a Saanich flyer told the Colonist Monday.

Fred Mainwood, 5083 Catalina Terrace, Saanich, said a Vancouver firm cannot deliver special radio frequency crystals needed to fly the North Atlantic.

"This thing hit me like a rock this afternoon," he said, and explained the firm told him it needed another 10 days for delivery because the machine which grinds the special crystals has broken down.

Mainwood, who owns the single-engined Piper Comanche, was to be co-pilot.

"I don't hold an instrument rating which is mandatory for the race. The pilot was going to be Edmonton oil company engineer S. R. Baxter," he said.

Mainwood said there is no other firm in western Canada that can grind the required crystals.

"Without them we are out of the race," he said and observed there are other entries from the Vancouver and Abbotsford area "that are in the same boat."

He said there are three crystals needed.

"They have to be manufactured because they are not a stock item. I ordered them May 24 and hoped for 10-day delivery. However, a 10-day delay now would make it too late for us to get into the race.

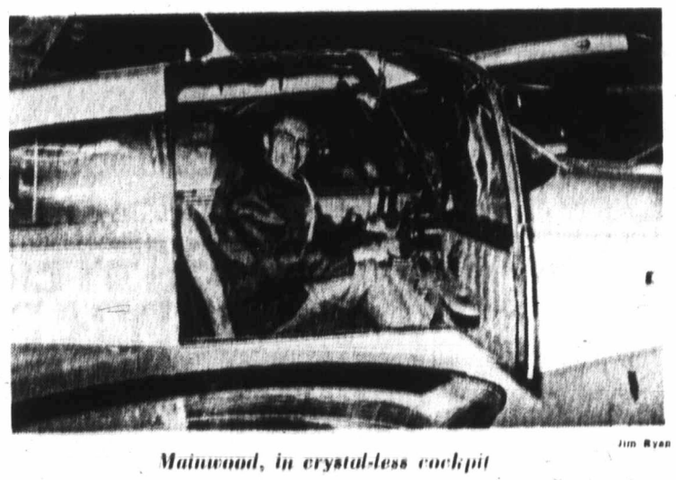

"I guess there are quite a few of us from B.C. who hoped to be in the race are in quite a quandary today," Mainwood said.

However, he hopes there are new alternatives.

"I have wired as far away as Florida to see if I can get the crystals in time. If this is possible I could have them shipped to Montreal and pick them up on our way over.

"If we can solve this radio problem we probably will get away from here Thursday."

The 5,851-mile race, which ends in Victoria July 1, is only the third trans-ocean, trans-continent race in aviation history. Prize money totals $175,000 with the first-place finisher receiving $50,000.

Wealth And Despair

By Don Gain

The contrast between what is and what can be — this is what most impressed David Lewis, national leader of the New Democratic Party as he travelled across Canada, before a meeting of several hundred persons who gathered at the Union Centre to meet him Monday night.

"The contrast," the 61-year-old leader explained, "between the beauty and wealth that surrounds people compared to the anxiety and uncertainty of their daily lives.

"Every day of my experience I become convinced that we in the NDP are asking the right questions," said the Polish-born Lewis who emigrated with his family to Montreal at the age of 12.

We are asking the right questions," he reiterated, "searching in the right direction and identifying the right foe — the corporate owners of this country."

The labor lawyer from Toronto, who has been called a tough-minded intellectual, shook his head as he told of listening Monday to the 11 heads of government gathered in Victoria for the constitutional conference.

I was depressed, he said, that these men are deciding the future of our country for centuries to come.

"Looking at Bennett, Smallwood, Thatcher, I say to myself, 'If there is a God, why does he not wake up?'" said the former Rhodes scholar who was the first Canadian president of the Oxford Union.

"They sounded as if they were speaking at a little by-election,' he continued. "There was no excitement, no dedication or imagination. No feeling of our country being built anew. They were just petty politicians rehearsing again what they have rehearsed for so long."

The man who was the national secretary of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation from 1937 to 1950 told the meeting the people who were not elected should also attend the conference.

And the farmers, and the trade unionists, and the consumers, and the Voice of Women "and, I must say it, but not with enthusiasm, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the chambers of commerce. They all should be there.

He had the harshest words for Prime Minister Trudeau, the man who "everybody thought was going to change the country."

He was going to turn the Liberal party into a party of principle. Those of us who are socialists know that parties don't change that way.

"Instead, the Liberals have turned Trudeau into a prime minister with no principles. The swinger of 1968 is now a middle-aged married man.

"And his government," said the NDP member of Parliament from York South, "is the most reactionary and conservative government in many years. It's worse than the government of John Diefenbaker and that's saying something.

"Our unity is threatened more than it was when he was elected three years ago," said the man who had been his party's national vice-president since 1961. "We are overwhelmed by unemployment, our resources are being sold out to the U.S. There are regional discords, poverty is increasing and the housing crisis is worse than it ever was."

These conditions underline the importance of the recent byelection in the Ontario riding of Brant, Lewis said.

"When they turned away from the Liberals, they didn't go to the Tories, but to the New Democrats."

An unprepossessing figure (he is native of Swistow, Poland, stood tall when he spoke and his voice carried a dynamic voice speaking with authority. A colorful and extravagant speaker, he was also down to earth.

"We're not going to sweep Canada. I won't tell you we will, because (you wouldn't believe me and you'd be right. But in Saskatchewan I feel we'll do very well, and I also have a feeling that we'll win 10 days from now.

"That's my birthday and I hope to have the best birthday ever."

He was referring to the Saskatchewan election, June 23.

Earlier in his talk he sounded off on Premier Bennett. "This province perhaps needs us more than anywhere else," he said, "because you've got Bennett. With him you have nowhere to go but up."

Later he said "Bennett will. I'm not going to describe him. I have a way of being unkind."

He said he once described the Conservative party as a band of dinosaurs led by a funeral director.

"Stanfield didn't like it."

He said he had been greeted by Rehabilitation Minister Pidi Gaglardi "as a long-lost friend. he called me David, but I don't remember meeting him before."

Earlier in the evening Al Mackling, attorney-general of the NDP government of Manitoba, spoke briefly to the meeting.

"We're trying to initiate the type of legislation you would expect us to pursue," he said.

"Even if we had an NDP government in every province, we'd still have our differences of opinion, but we would fashion the new equality in Canada."

The NDP is on the threshold of return to power in Saskatchewan, Mackling said, and termed the "magnificent victory in Brantford a barometer of our times."

"Pretty soon you may even enjoy Wacky Bennett here," he said in conclusion.

Where's the Party?

Ready for garden party are patients at Veteran's Hospital. Women's Auxiliary will have annual Dogwood party on hospital grounds from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. Mrs. G. R. Pearkes will open tea and various stalls. Captain B. G. Bogisch will conduct Armed Forces Naden Band, and senior citizens will entertain. Game: Fun First Goal

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — Educational games are valuable because children learn through play, in the view of a young Edmonton couple who have started designing children's games.

"But the prime requirement of a game is that it's fun," said Howard Clifford, who with his wife, Jean, has invented a set of games for young children which is also designed to teach.

"Learning is a by-product of the child enjoying the game."

The Clifford's pre-school set of games — named Jeannie's Game after Mrs. Clifford — was designed because the couple wanted to provide something inexpensive, educational and enjoyable. They suggest that many of the so-called educational games on the market now are too expensive.

"And many of them teach only one idea and the child gets bored with it quickly," said Clifford, director of the Glengarry Day Care Centre.

"We wanted something that could be made very cheaply."

The Cliffords designed their game, which uses a set of building-block-sized dice painted with colored symbols. The dice go with five boards, which provide basic learning steps for different age levels from about 2½ to six years.

"Most children when they enter Grade 1 should be able to recognize colors and basic shapes," Clifford said.

Starting with the colors, which can be introduced to the child at about 2½ years, the games progress to basic shapes, such as circles or squares, then to more difficult shapes, such as semi-circles and triangles, and to combinations of shapes and colors.

"We experimented with our own son, then tried them out with the children at the day-care centre so we could try different age groups and children from different backgrounds," Clifford said.

The original idea was to design a new board each month so that a new game could be added, Mrs. Clifford said.

They make the games in their home, using silk-screen techniques. So far they've made about 300 sets and sold them through such groups as the Edmonton Twin and Triplet Club and by advertising them in the neighborhood.

Doctor Must Decide

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A physician must make the decision about when to stop treatment and let a child suffering a terminal illness die, a Newfoundland pediatrician said Sunday.

Dr. John Darte, professor of Pediatrics at Memorial University in St. John's, told the Canadian Pediatric Society a physician must make the decision before parents do in order to spare their guilt.

Occasionally, he said, one parent will want to continue treatment while the other wants it stopped so the child can die in dignity.

"There may be a conspiracy between the doctor and the one who wants to stop. Almost invariably the one who wants to go on has been less involved."

Abortions Reach Fourth of Births

OLYMPIA, Wash (AP) — More than 3,000 abortions were performed in Washington in the first three months of this year, almost one for every four live births during the same period, the state division of health said Sunday.

Most women who received abortions were young and had borne no previous children, according to data collected since liberalized abortion regulations were approved by voters last fall.

There were just over 14,000 live births in Washington during the first three months of the year, indicating that 22.84 abortions were performed for every 100 live births, health officials say.

A mother wrote me the other day questioning the property rights of mothers. (Who has custody of the ice cubes, transparent tape and the piece of chicken in the condensed chicken soup.)

"Within minutes last weekend" she wrote, "I found my 19-year-old heir taken my mascara to Michigan with him to keep his blond moustache noticeable . . . my 11-year-old had scrubbed the grass stains off his gym shoes with my toothbrush . . . and my four-year-old had taken my magic marker and made hex signs all over my heirloom bedspread. Do mothers have any rights at all?"

It all depends. Do you remember signing anything in the delivery room? Some women sign the Maternal Vow of Poverty while still heavily sedated. I don't remember signing it at all but when I awoke the kids had rights to the fillings in my teeth.

Would it shock you to know I have not found my comb in 15 years and comb my hair by running my fingers through it? Or that everyone has worn my white sweater except the dog? (And only because he looks lousy in white).

At this point I am trying to outlaw the Maternal Vow of Poverty by introducing a Mother's Bill of Rights.

Visitation rights to the kitchen would be limited only to those either cleaning it or cooking in it. A mother would be able to "put by" a small, cold pork chop or a half bottle of cola without planting mines around it.

Persons lifting pencils, paper clips, rubber bands, typewriter ribbons, yardsticks, scissors, hairbrushes and other personal effects of mother would be prosecuted for trespassing.

Husbands returning your car with an empty gas tank are obliged to provide you a rental car and to try harder.

Birthday cheques shall not be used to pay the phone bill and school lunches.

And finally, mother will have one suitcase designated for her alone. She may need it.

If you ask me she is a lousy secretary. I strongly suspect her interest in her boss goes beyond business.

I am also employed by "a wonderful guy" but he is married which means he is off-limits so far as I am concerned. It doesn't make a particle of difference to me how many times a day his wife telephones him. It's my job to put the calls through. If he doesn't want to talk to her he can tell her so. It is also none of my business how much time the boss' wife spends at this office. If she wants to bring a bedroll down here and sleep on the floor, it's ok with me.

Women Chant to Premiers

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

About 20 women chanted "Implement the status of women report!" and "Free abortions on demand" on the lawn of the legislative buildings Monday morning as Prime Minister Trudeau arrived for the opening of the Constitutional Conference.

The women, mostly members of the Victoria Women's Caucus, the Voice of Women and the Vancouver Women's Alliance, handed a copy of a two-page brief to Premier Bennett as he arrived at the buildings a few minutes before Trudeau and the other provincial premiers.

Before the arrival of the government leaders the women mingled with the estimated 400 spectators, handing out copies of their brief and talking about the women's movement. They carried picket signs advocating the implementation of many of the clauses in the Royal Commission on the Status of Women.

Chant Started

When Bennett arrived, they gathered together in the front row of spectators to begin their chanting, and one of the women slipped through an RCMP line to hand the premier the brief.

The group had also arranged that Trudeau and the other premiers would receive copies of the brief, a spokesman said later.

The women's chanting, not loud enough to be heard clearly on the steps of the buildings, continued as Trudeau and the premiers drove up and left their cars. "Implement the status report," "Every mother a willing mother, every child a wanted child" and "free abortion on demand" were among the slogans shouted.

Mixed Reaction

Amongst the crowd, reaction to the women appeared to be mixed. "We got some very hostile reaction," the spokesman said afterwards, "but some women were very friendly and very interested in what we were doing." Especially hostile, she said, were some elderly persons carrying Union Jack signs.

Many of the women's picket signs dealt with the removal of abortion from the Criminal Code. "Abortion is our right" and "abortion on demand," some of the signs read.

Others included: "Equality not chivalry," "Equal work deserves equal pay," and "How do you treat your old lady back home?"

In the brief presented, the women asked that eight points from the royal commission report be implemented "with immediacy." The eight include:

Abortion Demand

● The Criminal Code be amended so that women be granted abortion on demand in the first 12 weeks of pregnancy and after that it be a decision between the woman and her doctor.

● Every employed woman be entitled to 18 weeks paid maternity leave.

● Equal pay be guaranteed for equal work by females.

● Day-care centres be available on a 24-hour a day basis for working mothers with fees fixed on a sliding scale based on the income of the parents.

● It be made illegal to advertise a job opening "in a manner that expressly limits it to applicants of a particular sex or marital status."

● Persons remaining at home without outside employment be allowed to participate in the Canada and Quebec pension plans.

Committees Asked

● The federal government, the provinces and municipalities each establish a committee composed of "senior administrators" to "co-ordinate and expedite the implementation of recommendations" made in the status report.

● A Protection of Women's Rights Commission be set up by federal and provincial governments "to enforce anti-discriminatory legislation for women."

After the rally, the women expressed differing opinions on how successful it had been. "Not as successful as we hoped," one said. "We'd hoped more people would turn out."

But another termed it "a fantastic success. We got our briefs to the leaders and a lot of people were interested in what we were doing and at least learned we exist."

One of the Victoria leaders, Helen Melnyk, explained one of the biggest points of the rally was that women were participating in the political process.

The participation was "indirect," she said, because there were not enough women involved in political decision-making for them to have a direct say.

"We're still asking men to make changes in the laws that affect women," she said. She noted that there was only one woman Member of Parliament out of 265, although women form a little more than half of Canada's population. "That's not really democratic," she said, adding that one of the aims of the group was to get enough things changed that women would participate directly in politics.

"Until that happens, rallies like today's are the only way we have of taking part in the political process," she concluded.

ANN LANDERS

Interest Goes Too Far

Dear Ann Landers: This is the first time I got so mad I knew I had to write to you, although I've been tempted several times. I am furious at that dame who signed herself First Class Secretary. If you ask me she is a lousy secretary. I strongly suspect her interest in her boss goes beyond business.

I am also employed by "a wonderful guy" but he is married which means he is off-limits so far as I am concerned. It doesn't make a particle of difference to me how many times a day his wife telephones him. It's my job to put the calls through. If he doesn't want to talk to her he can tell her so. It is also none of my business how much time the boss' wife spends at this office. If she wants to bring a bedroll down here and sleep on the floor, it's ok with me.

If the secretary who wrote, wants to be "first-class" she can start by learning to keep her nose and her mouth out of her boss's family affairs.

Twenty Years On The Job Without Trouble.

Dear No Trouble: One of the cardinal rules for being a first-class person as well as a first-class secretary is to m.y.o.b. I am not surprised that you have been twenty years on the job without trouble. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband, who is a handsome, virile, intelligent and gifted man in his middle years, has dirty literature hidden all over the place. When I say "dirty" I don't mean just garlic pictures. I mean the filthiest hard-core pornography you can imagine. Several months ago I complained about the stuff coming to the house. I learned last week by accident that he is now receiving this garbage at his office.

Is he nuts or is the world sick? I've suggested psychiatric help but he says there is nothing wrong with him. He claims I am narrow-minded, provincial, and hung-up.

Our children are grown. I hate to think of spending the rest of my life with an old fool who gets his kicks from looking at dirty pictures. You usually have a good answer. Do you have one for him?

Numb.

Dear Numb: He doesn't need an answer. He has one. It's dirty pictures. A middle-aged man with a hobby like that is operating at an adolescent level. But you aren't going to change him, so give up.

Dear Ann Landers: Our grandson will be five years old soon. My husband is crazy about the child. We are having an argument over the boy's birthday gift. My husband has selected two fancy toy guns from a catalogue. I am opposed to guns for children.

My husband says cops and robbers and Indians and cowboys are as American as apple pie. He insists it is a healthy way for kids to get rid of excess energy. What do you say? Against It.

Dear Ag: I say banana oil. Games and sports are much better outlets for youthful energy than make-believe killing.

Burns Blamed On Clothing

TORONTO (CP) — Nine of 10 children admitted to hospital with burns have suffered them because of inflammable clothing, a doctor at the Hospital for Sick Children says. Plastic surgeon Dr. John Birch, reporting on a hospital survey of burn cases in the Ontario Medical Association's publication Review, said one-quarter of the children had their clothing set on fire by a match or cigarette lighter. Most were wearing cotton, nylon or wool.

Higher Breakwater Passes

A revised application from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club calling for construction of a higher breakwater than had earlier been proposed was quietly approved Monday by Oak Bay municipal council.

Under the new plans, the rubble mound breakwater to be built in front of the club's lot in Cadboro Bay will be narrower and about one and a half feet higher than that approved by council in April despite strenuous objections from some sections of the community.

A major source of contention at the time had been the possibility that the height of the breakwater as suggested for approval was lower than actually required and would have to be increased later.

RVYC officials had, however, assured council that the height they proposed would be adequate for their needs.

A copy of a recent letter from the club's engineer to the federal transport department which has final authority for approving the plan explained that detailed studies had indicated the need for a higher breakwater.

Council was advised of the change in plans by the transport department and not by the club.

Ald. John Goult, who had voted against the club's breakwater proposals on the two earlier occasions when different plans were presented to council, said the opinions of all members of council were already well known and additional discussion would be "an exercise in futility."

Ald. Alan Hoey reminded council he had warned that the lower suggested height would not be sufficient and voted against giving approval to the plan.

In other business, the long-disputed Oak Bay plan was given a bit more abuse when council voted to approve an application for a residential subdivision in an area the plan had designated as an apartment zone.

A memo from the municipal engineer explained that "if the lot (which fronts on both Beresford and Oak Bay Avenue) was subdivided and two residences built on it, this would then make it unlikely that apartments could be built on this lot or on the adjoining one."

Goult said however, the lot in question was currently zoned for single-family residences and surrounded by them and had to be dealt with on that basis.

"The policy of apartment houses in this area is not at issue here," he said.

Hoey, who is chairman of the zoning committee, said the committee had brought the proposal before council without a recommendation "so it may be a political football for whoever wishes to kick it round."

Hoey then moved that the application be approved.

Council also decided to write to the federal secretary of state, who administers the Opportunities for Youth program, to ask why the municipality, which had been one of the first to apply for assistance under the program, had not yet even been advised whether or not its application had been approved or rejected.

If its proposals have been wanted to have reasons.

"The program may dazzle some people in Canada," said Goult, "but as far as the people in responsible organizations who asked for assistance go, the administration of the program leaves a great deal to be desired."

Island Gas Plan Draws Queries

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter says the provincial government's invitation for bids to build a natural gas pipeline from the British Columbia mainland to Vancouver Island has attracted "considerable interest not only in B.C., but across Canada." No formal submissions have yet been received, he said Sunday, but there have been several "inquiries and proposals."

Hydro Seeking Another Order

B.C. Hydro has obtained an expropriation order against another Munns Road property-owner — the third such action taken by the crown agency in 10 months.

The latest expropriation order has been served on Malcolm McSorley, 2100 Munns Road, who owns land on a right-of-way for a power line that would run from Pike Lake substation to Sidney.

He has rejected Hydro's offers for the 5½ acres if wants. McSorley owns 37 acres and he claims Hydro would not adequately compensate him for five acres that would be isolated as a result of the right-of-way.

While Hydro and McSorley may still negotiate, the next step might be the appointment of an evaluator by the provincial cabinet. If either party is dissatisfied with the price set by the evaluator, the case can be taken to a Supreme Court judge for adjudication.

Hydro last year obtained cabinet-endorsed expropriation orders against two other Munns Road land-owners.

The best-known of those cases is that of Pat Codyre, 1890 Munns Road, who still occupies his home, which stands out on a newly-cleared landscape. Hydro has cut and burned all the trees on the four-acre property despite Codyre's insistence that the agency never offered him a fair price for land that, he says, it will not need for 10 years.

The other case is that of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden, 2144 Ferndale Road, Saanich, whose five acres on Munns Road near Francis Park also has been expropriated for the power line that will run from Pike Lake substation to Victoria.

The evaluator who was appointed by the government following the appropriation order suggested a price that the Bordens say they might have accepted. However, Hydro considered it too high and is taking that case to a Supreme Court judge.

PROVINCIAL COURT

A Saanich man and woman were released on bail of $500 each in their own recognizance after separate charges were read Monday in Victoria Provincial Court following a theft of about $600 in cash and cheques Saturday night.

The man, Gerald Vanzetta, 20, of 3233 Bellevue, was charged with theft involving more than $50 from Burnside Service and Garage while the woman, Bonnie Susan Davidson, 19, of 493 Ker Ave., was charged with possession of known stolen money.

Each asked Judge William Ostler for, and received, a remand to next Monday for election of trial method and possible plea.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said he would not oppose bail in their own recognizance despite some reluctance.

A suspended sentence and two-year probationary term were given by Ostler to David Pyle, 18, of 2702 Forbes, who pleaded guilty June 1 to a charge of theft involving more than $50.

The case involved an estimated $616 worth of car parts and accessories taken last December from the British Car Centre storage lot in the 900 block Balmoral through use of a combination lock and keys while he worked for a downtown Victoria firm.

Ostler said it was "refreshing" to note from a presentence report that drugs were not involved and called Pyle an exception to a recent trend to mention of drugs in such reports.

□

Rodney Kevin Martin Steigenberger, 17, Atkins Road, was sentenced to a total of four months definite and six months indeterminate. He pleaded guilty early in May to four charges containing five counts of false pretences and three counts of uttering, all eight involving bad cheques in Saanich and the Colwood area earlier in the year.

□

Russell Bartram, 18, of 1658 Earl, was fined $300 following his plea of guilty June 3 to a charge of assaulting a peace officer April 7 in Esquimalt. The charge followed a scuffle with a policeman who had just broken up a fight between Bartram and another youth on a shopping plaza parking lot in the 1100 block Esquimalt.

□

In the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, a suspended sentence and one-year probationary term were set for Ronald Charles Russell, 17, of 6357 Old West Saanich Road. He pleaded guilty June 7 to a two-count Saanich charge of breaking and entering and theft involving break-ins May 22 and June 4 of a home at 6181 Old West Saanich, where a watch, coins and liquor were stolen.

□

St. Jorre ordered fines of $50 each for Bruce John Anderson, 18, of 901 McKenzie, and Bruce William Shinnan, 17, of 821 Ralph. They were found guilty June 7 after trial on a charge of theft involving more than $50 a 10-speed bicycle taken April 27 in Saanich.

□

In traffic court, Walter Brown, 28, of 121 Conrad, was fined $300 by St. Jorre and given a partial three-month driving ban after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving Jan. 1 in Saanich.

□

Two men pleaded guilty in traffic court before Judge E. F. N. Robinson to separate charges of impaired driving. Alfred Harrison, 55, of Coquitlam, stopped Sunday in Saanich, was fined $350 and given a partial four-month driving ban while James William Gibson, 43, of 224 Kingston, stopped May 15 in Victoria, was fined $300 and given a similar ban.

Driver Demands Fine Refund

An Oak bay resident has asked Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock for a "refund of an illegal fine paid under protest."

And unless he gets back his $2.50, he'll take to court the commissionaire, who wrote out the ticket, he says.

In a letter to the mayor, Clarence Goode of 1986 St. Ann said his car was parked in front of a Johnson Street meat market for about one minute early Monday morning while he was inside buying a steak.

When he came out, Goode's letter said, there was ticket on the windshield of his car.

The trouble is that, according to Goode, there shouldn't have been a ticket because his car was parked in a zone marked as "commercial loading zone."

"Mine was a commercial transaction and I was loading meat," Goode said in his letter.

"What is the use of downtown merchants spending good money to get people like us to shop with them if it costs more than the value of the goods bought to pay off fines for a minute's petty infringement?" he asked.

"I paid under protest, the whole episode taking less than five minutes. Fines should be paid promptly whether they are justified or not."

Goode said a former mayor once refunded him a fine levied on him illegally and he requested that Haddock do the same now.

"No court would uphold the fine and I ask that it be refunded to me," his letter stated.

Haddock who, as chairman of the Victoria Police Commission, is theoretically responsible for the actions of the law enforcement agencies, was out of town Monday, and couldn't comment on the matter.

Service To Earn Medal

A medal will be presented to a Victoria area citizen who has provided outstanding service to the community without pay, by Victoria Post No. 1 of the Native Sons of B.C., 3:10 p.m. July 4 at Beacon Hill Park.

Victoria Post secretary John Sullivan said purpose of the club's Good Citizens award, presented annually since 1927 with a lapse between 1937 and 1952, is to give public recognition to an individual's service to the community.

Perennials

In a recent column we discussed the raising of perennial flowering plants from seed, and I stressed the point that this is practicable and worthwhile ONLY with kinds that start blooming in their second year of life. The slowpokes — the peony is a good example — may take as long as five years before the first flower appears, and these are much better purchased as root divisions of mature plants.

I imagine some readers are wondering why I am discussing seed sowing so late in the season, long after the normal time for popping seeds in the ground; this is because we are dealing with perennials. Annual flowers, which live for only the one year, must be started early if we are to get some color in the garden before the summer is half over, but the perennials are not going to bloom this year anyhow, so an early start is not required. Our object is to produce plants big enough and strong enough to come through the winter safely, and for this purpose seeds may be sown any time up to about the middle of July.

I know, through my mail, that some home gardeners have tried their hand at raising perennials from seed but have become browned off and discouraged when the seeds didn't come popping up as rapidly and as vigorously as their sweet peas, marigolds and nasturtiums. This is because the whole metabolism of the perennial plant is slower; the seeds take longer to germinate and the plant growth is almost always sluggish compared with the go-for-broke annuals. Because of this, the seeds should be handled differently.

It is true, in theory, at least, that perennials can be raised from a casual scattering of seeds on the ground, for such is nature's method of propgagation. In actual practice, though, it is difficult to give tiny and delicate perennial seedlings the protection they need for a good start in life unless the seeds are started in pots or boxes.

Under these conditions, you have complete control of the factors that govern germination and early growth: texture of soil, drainage, temperature, watering, how much sun and the like. And you can protect the baby plants from the many ills and hazards of early life in the open garden — from being washed out by heavy rain, getting lost or forgotten, scratched up by the family cat, scorched by the midday sun, eaten by slugs or cutworms, or — and I have seen this happen more than once — pulled up in mistake for weeds.

Mind you, because I advocate sowing in pots or boxes, this doesn't mean you must have a greenhouse, nor even a coldframe or sunporch. Pots or boxes may be covered with plastic to retain moisture, making each pot into a tiny individual greenhouse. No do these pots or boxes need clutter up the windowsills indoors at this season of the year. The best place for them, in fact, is outdoors in a shaded place, perhaps under shrubs, perhaps in a corner of a roofed patio or carport, or on a shelf in a garage window.

Better keep them up off the ground, though, to guard against grubs, small slugs and earthworms entering the pots through the drainage holes.

The soil for perennial seeds is about the same as for annuals and vegetables. A good all-round mix is two parts good loam topsoil to one part dampened peat moss and one part coarse, gritty sand. It is a wise precaution to drench the soil with a soil disinfectant such as Pano-Drench or No-Damp to guard against soil-borne infections which might attack the baby seedlings.

Some of the easier perennials to grow from seed will be described in my next column.

Lindsay Missed a Bet

WASHINGTON — Last week New York had one of its worst traffic jams in history.

The reason for the complete breakdown was that Mayor John Lindsay and Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy did not follow the advice of President Nixon and Attorney-General John Mitchell in dealing with traffic tieups in major cities.

Had the mayor and the police commissioner followed the guidelines approved by the president and the attorney general, almost everyone would have got to work on time.

The first thing Mayor Lindsay and Commissioner Murphy should have done was to go on television and warn the people that anyone stalled in his car on a turnpike or road leading into Manhattan would be arrested.

The mayor should have said that he had rented trucks and buses to haul people away. Anyone in a car in an area where there was a traffic jam would be subject to arrest, on the assumption that he was either participating in the traffic tieup or was a spectator.

★ ★ ★

Those people stalled on the Long Island Expressway coming toward the Triborough Bridge would be taken off to Shea Stadium and incarcerated there. Those who couldn't move coming down from Westchester and the Bronx would be thrown into Yankee Stadium.

People stuck waiting to go through the Lincoln Tunnel or over the George Washington Bridge would be held in the Hudson tubes outside of Jersey City.

To break up the traffic jams so that the police buses and trucks could get through, recalcitrant drivers would be tear-gassed.

If this still didn't move the traffic, Murphy could give orders for his men to move in on the stalled drivers and used their clubs.

While civil libertarians might squawk about the methods used by the police, Lindsay and Murphy could defend their tactics on the grounds that the traffic tieups constituted a threat to the health and welfare of New York City.

★ ★ ★

The mayor could say, "It was vital that the government of New York City continue functioning, and I authorized Commissioner Murphy to use all legal methods including mass arrests to insure that the highways, bridges and roads to city hall were kept open."

Had the mayor followed through on the plan, he would have solved many of his most serious problems in one fell swoop.

First, the traffic jams would have been broken up in a few minutes, and those not arrested would have been able to get to work. Second, those arrested and incarcerated would have to put up a $25 bond. If they didn't appear for trial, the bond would have been forfeited.

Adding up the bonds of all the people who were stalled that day, the city would have been enriched to the tune of over $250 million, all of it money that Gov. Rockefeller couldn't touch.

Thus the mayor would not only have kept his traffic moving but would have solved his financial problems at the same time.

It would also be a warning to drivers in the future that if they got stuck in traffic they would have to suffer the consequences. It would make people think twice about driving into Manhattan and tying up the city.

I called Mayor Lindsay and asked him why he hadn't followed the president's and attorney general's advice concerning the breaking up of premeditated traffic demonstrations and he said, "Frankly, I was so mad at Rockefeller I didn't think of it."

Barbara Eden waited five years to hear the news that she and husband Mike Ansara are expecting a second young 'un. But unless forced to slow down, Barbara has no intention of allowing expectant motherhood to put the brakes on her career. The baby is due in late November, and Barbara's currently kicking up her heels in rehearsal for a strenuous tour of The Unsinkable Molly Brown. And that's not all! Once Molly Brown chores are completed, TV's former Jeannie will go ahead with the committment made before she learned she was enceinte: a five-week run with the Kenley Players in Ohio, starring in The Sound of Music. While Barbara is doing her away-from-home theatrical thing, husband Mike will remain at home, involved with several directorial assignments and overseeing construction on the new nursery addition to their home.

Paula Kelly Jr. will give up her Modernaires singing career once she and Mike Cole wed this summer. That's the way Mike wants it. It's a concession Paula is more than happy to make seeing that Mike has made the major concession — getting married at all. The young couple have been doing their togetherness thing for seven years, long before Mike's Mod Squad fame. She was playing Las Vegas with her singing group and he was a bartender there when they met. He was strongly anti-marriage then. But these last months Paula has done quite the job of domesticating him. He's even bought a house in preparation for married life and, though he still insists there will be no big church wedding, he's purring so these days he'll probably give in to that, too, if it means enough to Paula.

Bing Crosby has been leaving his golf clubs at home during hops to Hollywood lately. After all this time, he discovered tennis, with Merv Griffin his rival on the courts. Gene Barry won't be involved with either sport for a while. Gene developed a "tennis elbow" on the golf course. Terrible timing, as far as Gene is concerned. He'll be starring in 'Plaza Suite on the New England circuit later this summer, and planned to use the time 'till then for an at-home vocation on the golf course.

Relevant to What?

Although the word "relevant" has become among the most used, and abused, of slogans today — especially in education — it remains a fact that there is no satisfactory definition of the word.

"Relevant," the dictionaries tell us, is an adjective that means "bearing upon or connected with the matter in hand; to the purpose; pertinent." Some of its synonyms are "applicable," "germane," "appositie," "appropriate," "suitable," and "fitting."

But "relevant" has no object of its own. Relevant to what? In modern jargon, education should be relevant to "what's happening now." It should be keyed in to current events, should be helping people solve problems.

But the basic problem of mankind has always been, and remains, two-fold: how to think clearly, and how to establish the best relationship between our thoughts and our feelings.

If we think poorly, our good feelings will be subverted by ignorance and muddled logic; and if we are dominated by our feelings, then our intellects will be controlled by our appetites, and we will use our knowledge for selfish purposes.

The students and activists are confused about "proximate" ends and "ultimate" ends. The ultimate end of education — like that of all institutions — is to make a more liveable, civilized and humane world for all of us.

But the proximate end the immediate function of education — is to turn out young men and women who have learned to use their minds, who have been given access to the best minds of the past, and who are disciplined in their thoughts and feelings.

You cannot create a better world if you are ignorant; with all the good will in the world, all yo ucan do is replace current evils with different ones.

You cannot work for "justice," "peace," "brotherhood," or any such abstraction, until you understand their philosophical roots, their implications, and their perversions.

The trouble with the schools is that they have dealt with these questions inadequately and have not applied them to our society; this much is true when they are criticized for being "irrelevant."

But the way to change this is not to concentrate on the immediate problems but to construct a solid bridge of knowledge leading from the theoretical to the practical, from the useable past to the present and future.

Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida can tell us more about the nature of war and the erotic impulse than anything in the headlines about Vietnam. "Relevance" means going back as much as going forward.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, relatives, and neighbors who gave their kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during the death of my loving Husband, Father and Grandfather, William Hutchison. Special thanks to Dr. Cronhelm and Dr. Fiddess and all the staff of Centre 1 at the Veterans' Hospital, also Mr. Elwell of the Pro Patria Branch, RCL; The Rev. J. A. Roberts, the organist and soloist and McCall Bros. — Mrs. E. Hutchison and Mrs. M. Hoey (Hilda) and family.

We wish to thank all our friends, relatives and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy in the loss of our dear Dad, William (Bill) Warwick. A special thank you to all the wonderful nurses on 4th Royal and 4th South, at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Dr. Shorting, Dr. Perera, and Dr. North, and McCall Bros. Funeral Directors, for their kindness. Special thanks to the pallbearers.
Mrs. Pearl McDonald
Mrs. Eleanor Pullen
Mr. Jack Warwick

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to all the kind friends and relatives for their beautiful flowers, cards and expressions of sympathy in the recent loss of our dear mother.—Jack and Bessie Tang and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BECKER — In loving memory of Alfred Ira Becker who passed away June 14, 1969.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
Always remembered by his loving wife Lex and family.

JOWETT—Treasured memories of our dear dad and gramp. June 15, 1965.
Loved and missed
Not just today
But every day—
In silence we remember.
—Kathleen, Lloyd and Joan; Betty, Gary and Jennifer.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
PSALM 23.

The amazing saga of All in the Family is complete — it's No. 1 in the ratings. The CBS comedy with bias came first in the US during the week of May 9 with a rerun many people missed the first time out.

The program added comedy to the original, Britain's Till Death Us Do Part, and took three years to get on a US network, going through a 50 per cent cast change, two names changes and a network change.

It started near the bottom of the ratings ladder (which has about 85 rungs) and was in the 40s even in April. But new CBS president Bob Wood staked his career on it, keeping it for next season, and won.

The original idea was 13 first-run shows this half-season and seven repeats Now, all 13 are being rerun — join the fun at 9:30 tonight on Channels 7 and 12.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer, and the question was among the most trivial of all time — Steve Allen is really married to Janye Meadows, whose sister is Audrey Meadows, who was "married" on The Honeymooners for years to Jackie Gleason. If you don't dig, forget it

Today's question starts another batch wherein I list several titles for TV series and you pick out the one that's a phoney. Which were real, and which one wasn't, among Navy Log, Real Story, The Vise, Tombstone Territory and Whirlybirds? You may be surprised Answer Wednesday

"We have more cans of 'Hees' than we need, but you'd better get another six-pack of 'Haws'."

Tuesday Highlights

● C The federal-provincial conference in Victoria again may disrupt daytime schedules on Channels 2 and 6. Time details are not known.

8:00—Another film of the Indy 500—13.

C 8:30—Telescope repeats its Don Francks interview—2, 6.

C 10:00—Second in the Civilization series and the last time I'll mention it becuse it will be on each week and viewers should know—2, 6.

C 10:00—CBS News ends its Justice in America series—7, 12.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Ladies First; 7:30, Project Travel; 8:00, Canadian Artists; 8:30, Outdoorsmen, hunting and fishing; 9:00, You and the Law, with Saanich police; 9:30, the Helen Biernes Outlook show.

Tuesday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Badmen of Missouri (second-rate 1941 western), Jane Wyman, Arthur Kennedy, Dennis Morgan. No, make that fourth-rate—4.

12:45 noon — Another Time, Another Place (soggy 1958 wartime weeper), Lana Turner, Sean Connery, Glynis Johns—6, 8.

C-4:00 p.m.—Raw Wind in Eden (miserable 1958 marooned mess), Esther Williams, Jeff Chandler. I don't even like her swimming—7.

C-8:30—Dr. Cook's Garden (1970 genteel horror, fairly good), Bing Crosby, Frank Converse. Best of a bad lot today—4.

C-9:00—Three Into Two Won't Go (1968 triangle drama, just dull), Rod Steiger, Claire Bloom, Judy Geeson. This is the one that was cut so much they had to film new opening and closing scenes, but ended up just as boring as the original—5.

11:00—Lady in the Deathhouse (1944 Jean Parker). How long has it been since you wrote a letter to your maiden aunt?—13.

C-11:30—Once Upon a Horse (1958 pre-Laugh-In disaster), Rowan and Martin, and they'd rather forget it. So would you—7.

C-11:50—Objective 500 Million (1966 Italian robbery dubber). If not your maiden aunt, what about grandad?—2.

C-12:00—Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter (1966). Tell your maiden aunt I don't make up these titles—6.

1:00 a.m.—Prisoner of Japan (1941 no-no)—13.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

A faulty choice between two alternative lines of play frequently leads to a big swing at match play.

When the declarer is an average performer, such a choice is termed "a misplay." When he is an expert, it is termed "a wrong view."

In this deal from the Spring Nationals both declarers reached the same contract but only one got home.

West opened with a bid of one spade and South became declarer at five clubs. West opened with the spade king and then exited with a diamond.

Vul: Both

♦ J 8 4
♣ Q 8 6

SOUTH
♠ J 8 2
♥ Q 7
♦ 9 7 5 3
♣ J 10 9 7

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dbl.	Pass	2 ♣
2 ♠	5 ♣	All pass

Opening lead: King of spades.

In Room 1 the declarer began with A-K of trumps. West showed out on the second round and South could do no better than play a third trump to East's queen.

Declarer ruffed the spade return in dummy, entered his hand with the last trump, and led the heart queen, covered by the king and ace. If this suit had been 3-3, declarer would have had the rest of the tricks, but in the actual layout he could not enjoy the long hearts and was set 200 points.

In Room 2, the first two tricks were the same but the declarer made a far superior play at trick three. Realizing that, on the bidding, the heart king was sure to be well placed, and that he could afford to lose a trump trick, he initiated trumps by leading small from the table.

East won the queen and returned a spade, ruffed in dummy. The declarer then drew two more rounds of trump, finishing in his own hand.

He took the heart finesse and, still holding a trump in each hand, was able to ruff a heart and claim the rest.

$100 Centennial Bonus $100

Our Stock of top quality used trailers and campers must be reduced. For that reason, we're offering a reduction of $100 as a centennial bonus on all used units.

EXAMPLE:
'67 VANGUARD 16' has stove, oven, fridge and toilet. Priced at $2,300. Less Centennial Bonus, $100, NOW $2,200.

You're invited to inspect our lineup of used trailers, note the prices shown and DEDUCT $100. That's what you save as a Centennial Bonus.

Are you considering the purchase of a new trailer? . . . Our SCAMPER and SOUTH PARK '71 models are fully CSA certified. That is, they comply with all vehicular, plumbing, gas, oil, electrical requirements of CSA standards, a must on all trailers and campers manufactured after July 1.

Acting Mayor Refuses 'Muzzle'

Angry Businessmen Urge Duncan Alderman Censure

DUNCAN—Members of the Downtown Businessmen's Association expressed their anger Monday with Alderman Martin Lukaitis for a remark he made at a recent council meeting about businessmen.

In a resolution fired to the city council, the association demanded that Lukaitis be "strongly censored" and that he should withdraw his comment, apologize or make himself available at a public meeting to justify his remark.

The alleged statement made by Lukaitis was that "businessmen take everything from the community and give nothing back." He had directed his comment at the lack of centennial decoration of the business section in Duncan.

Acting Mayor Allan Kerr said that no mayor can muzzle any council member and that it would be highly undemocratic to bring in a censorship charge.

Ald. Hamish Mutter commented that although he had regretted the Lukaitis remark the council should "just forget it. It is just a storm in a teacup."

Council decided to receive and file the letter from the Downtown Businessmen's Association and its attached resolution. Several aldermen asked how many business people were represented by the association.

Ald. Jay Powley said: "If I want to criticize businessmen I will do it." Mutter and Ald. Tom Kilpatrick said that the association does not represent all businessmen in the downtown area.

One last comment came from Lukaitis: "We all make statements and possibly they are not always right. I take the blame. I can stay on my own feet."

In other business council decided to enforce the city's anti-noise bylaw after hearing another complaint about the noisy air conditioner at the K and R Foodstore which, according to one complainant, runs 24 hours a day for seven days each week and can be heard a city block away. Duncan resident E. A. Stannard referred to the noise as "unbearable."

Council also decided to approach consulting firm of Ross and Partners to conduct a $3,500 survey of the city's administration. Kerr said: "We have a problem — some kind of a sickness, but we don't know exactly what it is. I think we have growing pains."

Boy's Words to Officer Didn't Wash with Judge

A 15-year-old boy who agreed last week to accept an offbeat punishment suggested by Victoria Juvenile Court Judge Harold Alder was reported Monday to have expressed the desire never to see a police car again.

The judge confirmed reports that the boy, who was already on probation, was charged June 4 with causing a disturbance by using insulting language. The incident occurred in downtown Victoria and involved hard words directed at a constable.

One of the things the boy said to the officer was that no action could be taken against his use of foul language because he (the boy) was already on probation.

On June 7, the boy pleaded guilty before Alder to the charge and the judge suggested as an added condition to probation that the boy wash cars for a week at the Victoria police station.

He also suggested the boy be on hand at 8 a.m. daily last week and stay until dismissed. And if the boy did not do a good job, he would have to wash police cars Sunday as well.

The boy agreed to the condition, was never late, left at 4 p.m. daily and didn't have to work Sunday. The judge said Monday he was "satisfied that was sufficient" to end the matter.

A Victoria policeman said the boy stated he never wants to see a police car again, let alone wash one.

Protest at Three Island Points

Linemen Stay Away

About 75 B.C. Hydro linemen stayed away from work Monday on Vancouver Island as their union continued its strategy of rotating strikes against the crown agency.

They were Hydro employees at Nanaimo, Qualicum and Port Alberni who are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which is trying to reach agreement on a new contract. An IBEW spokesman would not say whether they would be back at their jobs today.

The rotating strikes started 12 days ago after contract negotiations broke down. Hydro has offered IBEW members a 14 per cent wage increase over two years but the union wants 18.5 per cent.

The largest group of Vancouver Island workers involved in Monday's strike were those at Nanaimo where, according to a union spokesman, about 45 stayed home. There were no reports of any interruptions to Hydro's service.

Other Hydro crews were off work in six centres on the mainland.

Tom Forkin, president of local 258 of the IBEW, also said the union has had no word from Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of Hydro, over the possibility of arbitration outside of the terms of Bill 33.

Last weekend, Forkin said Shrum "indicated Hydro possibly would consider mediation apart from Bill 33 and this is what we have been asking for."

Forkin said no picket lines were set up Monday that stalled Hydro operations. At the sites where IBEW refused to work for the day, no one was left and, as a result, there was no point posting information pickets.

On Saturday, Forkin indicated that the IBEW might be hatching new and more drastic action against Hydro and that such might occur this week.

He said Monday that the IBEW had not changed its mind on that point.

Contractor Put Up Many Area Homes

A funeral service with Rev. R. A. Faris officiating was held Friday at McCall's Funeral Chapel for William Weir Warwick, 83, of 3035 Cook, a retired contractor who died Tuesday.

Warwick had been a Victoria-area resident since immigrating from Antrem County in Northern Ireland in 1908. Many Victoria-area homes built since then by Warwick are still in existence.

Warwick is survived by a son, Jack, of North Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. D. Eleanor Pullen of Victoria and Mrs. Pearl McDonald of North Surrey; one brother, Alex, of Victoria; two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral Wednesday

Noted Miner Dies

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Oak Bay United Church for one of Canada's foremost mining engineers, Sidney Clarke Ells, who died Friday at Royal Jubilee Hospital, aged 92.

Ells worked at a variety of professions such as a mine surveyor and engineer for railroads before becoming a mining engineer for the department of mines. He supervised the building of mining roads in B.C., Ontario, and Quebec.

He is survived by three cousins, Miss Janet Christie, Dr. Hugh Christie and Charles Christie, all of Amherst, N.S. His wife, Irene, died here April 29. Ells was born at Amherst.

After services, which will be conducted by Rev. Alex Calder, Ell's ashes will be flown to Ottawa for burial in the family plot at Beachwood Cemetery.

Boxla Bakers Get Trounced

NEW WESTMINSTER — New Westminster Salmonbellies trampled Victoria McDonald's Bread, 23-3, Sunday in a B.C. Intermediate Lacrosse League game here.

Junior Clubs Split on Trip

Teams from Greater Victoria broke even in two B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League games Sunday on the Mainland.

Daryl Hooker and Jerry Kuster scored four goals each to lead McDonald's Bread to a 21-5 win over Abbotsford but Port Coquitlam Saints edged Saanich London Boxing Club, 13-12.

'Buy Back' Program Drawing Hundreds

The federal fisheries department is expected to make the first purchases of salmon fishboats in its buy-back program in mid-July.

M. P. Houghton, chairman of the buy-back committee, said in a telephone interview from Vancouver Monday that "a couple of hundred" fishermen have already applied to have their boats appraised for possible purchase by the department.

At present, the committee is calling for tenders for "care and custody" of vessels purchased. According to the advertisement, the winner will be required "to dock, provide wharfage, maintain safe custody and insurance coverage of such vessels pending disposal."

Aside from the stipulation that any vessels purchased may not be returned to the salmon fleet, the form that disposal will take has not yet been decided, however.

"If necessary, we would put them up for auction," Houghton said.

Another fact the committee does not yet have to work with is an idea of how much space it will require of whoever wins the contract.

"We don't know as yet how effective it will be and we really won't be able to tell until we get into it," Houghton said. "We should be actively buying by mid-July."

There is one thing the committee definitely does know already. It has been given a budget of $2 million.

Butler Leads At Speedway

Butler posted a time of 45.33 seconds for a 3.01-second margin over Storr in the second of six scheduled VMSC events this year.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL
Constitutional Conference

While Ottawa, Quebec Lock Horns Bennett Raises Hackles, Pet Plan

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

While Ottawa and Quebec appeared to be locked in an impasse over income security policies, British Columbia stands on the sidelines with a proposal which Premier Bennett said Monday will solve everyone's problems.

Bennett, who clashed sharply with Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa at the opening session of the three-day federal-provincial constitutional conference over equalization payments, later told reporters he will make a detailed proposal, including costs of a guaranteed annual income plan for all Canadians.

The B.C. premier drew the ire of Bourassa when he told the conference this province is "unalterably opposed" to continuation of equalization payments to the seven so-called have-not provinces, which include Quebec.

Bennett went on to claim that over the "three latest years" equalization payments and federal payments to special programs in the province of Quebec had increased from $440 million to $773 million.

In his opening remarks Bourassa termed the charge "inaccurate and unjustified," arguing that in proportion to their budget other have-not provinces receive more than Quebec. And the Quebec premier said it was "short-sighted" to restrict the argument to equalization payments when the whole field of monetary, tariff and financial policies was affected by the redistribution of wealth in Canada.

Bennett, however, wasn't prepared to let the matter rest and after lunch when the conference had gone into closed session he came to the press gallery to reply to Bourassa's statement. He told reporters the figures on equalization payments which he quoted were "gathered from many sources" but principally from one of Quebec's leading newspapers, Le Devoir.

The B.C. premier said he wasn't opposed to the people of Quebec or of other have-not provinces receiving federal aid, but argued the present system of equalization grants poured hundreds of millions of dollars "into the establishment, to the bureaucrats, and it doesn't go to the poor people who need it."

The Trudeau government, Bennett added, should be thrown out of office if Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget next Friday doesn't contain greatly increased tax exemptions for individuals which could serve as the base for a guaranteed annual income scheme.

Such a scheme, based upon the negative income tax principle in which all Canadians earning less than an established base income

Formula Holdup Quebec Warning

By DON MacPHERSON
Canadian Press

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Monday his province will not formally accept a proposed formula for bringing the constitutional amending process home to Canada unless it gets what it wants in the field of social policy.

Bourassa told reporters his government and the people of Quebec would not accept the suggested formula unless Ottawa and the other provinces agree to a constitutional amendment increasing provincial powers in the field of social legislation.

"The amending formula a question of form, cannot be accepted purely and simply without the settlement of a question of fundamentals and social policy is for us a question of fundamentals," he said.

A formula for amending the Canadian constitution in Canada without referring to the British Parliament as now is the case, is under discussion at the constitutional conference which began Monday.

Bourassa said the formula would not receive Quebec's formal approval until the Quebec national assembly passed a resolution to that effect.

"No resolution will be presented if Quebec does not get satisfaction on a question of fundamentals, a question of substance," he said.

Quebec wants a constitutional amendment giving it and the other provinces legislative "primacy" in the field of income-security programs.

Social policy is to be discussed today at the conference which, after opening statements by each of the participating governments, continued behind closed doors.

Bourassa said he will make it clear to the other participants that Quebec will not accept the amending formula

Trudeau Saw Red—in Lapel

Bennett Created Waves While Joey Drew Laughs

By DON COLLINS

Canada's problems in case anyone has doubts are indeed varied.

The order of importance depends on where you live.

If you are Joey Smallwood and premier of Newfoundland, you get right down to the business of telling Prime Minister Trudeau the time is at hand to give the provinces offshore land and mineral rights.

If you are Saskatchewan attorney-general D. V. Heald you talk about inflation and the plight of the farmer and you tell how you were standing there in the rain one day talking to a man who was holding a bearing for his tractor.

The point is, the bearing used to cost the farmer $6. Now it costs him $19.

Little Things

And these are some of the little things constitutional conferences are made of — even when they are billed as the most important since Confederation, like the one that began here Monday.

They were points made during formal presentation of position papers by the premiers of the provinces. (Heald is representing Saskatchewan for Premier Ross Thatcher who is campaigning for an election later this month.)

The colorful Joey Smallwood spoke last and he prompted some welcome laughter after about two hours of fairly heavy going when the conference opened in the legislative chambers.

Whether or not an amending formula is found for the constitution, there is one agreement Newfoundland wants and it wants it this year, Smallwood said. It wants the land beneath the Atlantic off its shores and the mineral rights that go with it.

Bands, Bunting Give Parley Unique Touch

Victoria's bands, bunting and Centennial 71 fever have turned the constitutional conference into the most colorful meeting of premiers ever, according to a veteran Ottawa journalist.

Stewart MacLeod of the Canadian Press Ottawa bureau, wrote of Monday's opening: "If Premier Bennett's extravaganza . . . is transferred to future meetings in Ottawa, the changing-of-the-guard ceremony could be put out of business.

"Certainly Canada's political leaders never experienced anything like it in their hitherto-dull and drawn-own search for constitutional reform.

"Instead of dodging traffic to get into Ottawa's old converted Union Station, there was Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, decked out in a blazing maroon jacket, sitting high in a convertible while a proabortionist shouted: 'He was a wanted child'."

Premiers' parade, near-empty streets

By HUBERT BEYER

If public interest in a motorcade is any indication, Victorians would rather get rid of one prime minister and nine premiers than abolish the monarchy.

A little more than a month ago, the streets of downtown Victoria were jammed with people welcoming Queen Elizabeth.

Monday morning, a few casual passersby and early-morning shoppers stopped briefly to watch the country's 10 most powerful politicians drive by.

At the corner of Douglas and Yates, a sign in a drugstore window proclaiming a "clearance of discontinued lines" drew more people than the parade of premiers and prime minister that was to arrive in a few minutes.

"With so few people here, I begin to suspect that I'm at the wrong corner," a man said looking down Yates where the motorcade was to appear.

His name, he said, was Bill Dowkes, and he wasn't really sure if it mattered whether or not he was at the right corner.

"Maybe we've grown up . . . sure aren't very many people interested," he said.

Schools' Swim Lessons Praised

COURTENAY — Program of swimming instruction in Courtenay district schools, has been commended by CRA recreation director Jim Noble.

Noble said this week that the trustees were doing "a real service" to fifth grade students who were in their fifth of eight board-sponsored swimming lessons.

Noble said the improvements shown by the young swimmers was "remarkable."

He stated that Grade 9 students had also taken advantage of the opportunity and would shortly be taking three lessons each. The combination brings to 1,100 the number of schoolchildren undergoing instruction at the CRA pool.

Noble reported that synchronized swimming and skin-diving classes were currently being organized, "All we need now is about 20 people in each group and classes will be underway," he said.

He added that provincial swimming and diving championships are slated for the pool early in July.

"Help is needed in a number of areas," he said, "and we would appreciate assistance from anyone willing to work at anytime during July 2 to July 4."

Noble said that, as about 700 people from across the province are expected to take part, "we are looking for anyone willing to billet swimmers during the meet."

Police Find Man Dead In Cumberland Hotel

CUMBERLAND — No decision has been made yet on whether an inquest or an inquiry will be held in the death of 58-year-old Hugh Irvine of Cumberland.

He was found dead in a hotel room on Saturday afternoon and apparently died from a gunshot wound, RCMP reported. Foul play is not suspected.

A police spokesman said a call was received about 4:30 p.m. Saturday to go to Cumberland Hotel where the man was found in an upstairs room.

Coroner Dr. Richard Murphy, of Campbell River, deputising in the absence of local coroner Tom Menzies, is expected to make a decision soon.

The pressures for a settlement stem from three main sources. In diminishing order of importance, they are:

(1) The full, if rarely stated, appreciation in Athens and Ankara that neither Greece nor Turkey can afford to war over Cyprus.

(2) The U.S. desire to reduce the number of potential troublespots in the Mediterranean by eliminating Cyprus as one of them.

(3) And the financial difficulty for the United Nations in maintaining a multinational force on the island to keep the peace between the two communities.

Obvious from the Start

IT WAS INEVITABLE that B.C. Hydro workers would step up their rotating strike pressure in attempts to force a resumption of contract negotiating. The first 12 days of hitting and running was a token effort which wouldn't be too painful for anyone. But it would show the bosses just how serious they were over the 4½ per cent difference that exists between wage demand and offer.

The workers showed a certain amount of responsibility, perhaps, in their tactics, just as the directors of B.C. Hydro have in holding firm on a 14 per cent pay increase.

Now the second phase of the pressure play has arrived with more walkouts of longer duration, and there is a strong threat of the Mica Dam project being picketed which would force 4,000 construction workers off the job.

This is when the hurting is going to start, and the real victims of most labor disputes, John Q. Public, might well be wondering how much discomfort he is going to have to endure.

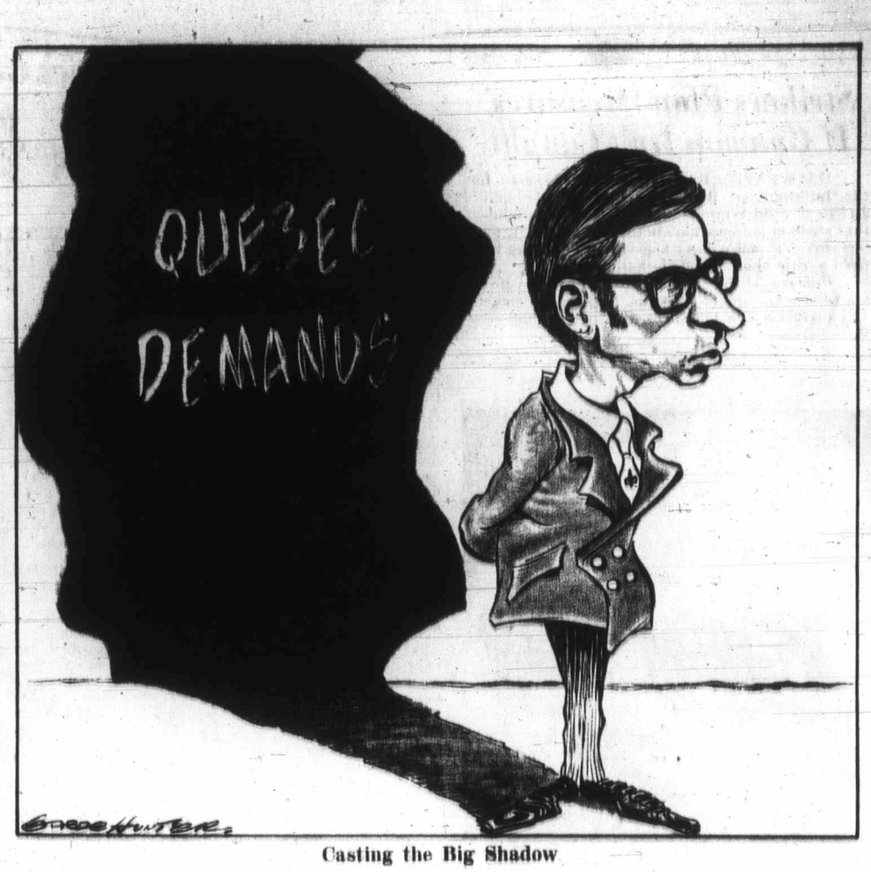

He is in the dark now as far as what it is going to mean in power rates to pay electrical workers what they have been offered or what they want. It's bad enough to be faced with increases in already high rates without having to think about the possibility of a power service cut.

While Hydro director and Resources Minister Ray Williston has said that a complete shutdown would not be allowed, there appears to be conflict within the provincial cabinet on using the compulsory measures of the labor laws in this dispute.

This adds considerably to the uncomfortable position in which the general public finds itself.

The point is the dispute has been allowed to go on too long. The writings on the wall have been clear from the start. But what is not clear is how much more deterioration of a hopeless situation will be allowed to take place before the government takes some action.

Reluctance to use compulsion in labor strife is understandable. But in this tie-up the effects could be so wide-reaching that it should have been cut off before it got knotted.

Casting the Big Shadow

Decay of the United Nations

VICTORIA'S DR. HUGH KEENLEYSIDE gives the world another warning—he is not alone in this — that the United Nations' existence may be in danger. The former director-general of the UN Technical Assistance Administration and later undersecretary-general for public administration has written in a copyrighted article to appear in the June 19 issue of Saturday Review that the organization faces a threat of anarchy when Secretary-General U Thant retires, as he seems sure to do, at the end of this year.

Dr. Keenleyside's main theme appears to be the deterioration of the United Nations staff. He writes of infiltration of spies into the secretariat and disloyalty to the organization; of overstaffing in some areas, with resultant sloth and lack of discipline; of appointment to the administration by some nations of grossly inadequate persons. He fears — although he says the prospect is not entirely hopeless — that on U Thant's resignation, the system could be further weakened by the appointment of an indecisive "troika" as previously proposed by the Soviet Union or a "limber politician" who would bend to the strongest or most irksome influence.

Coincidentally, Robert Rhodes James writing in Vista for May-June makes a similar point. An essential quality for a successor to U Thant, he writes, would be realism: "He has to prove that the UN system is a competent one. And here he will have to face the cold reality that the calibre of the UN secretariat has been declining steadily, that it is not attracting new recruits of real calibre, that it is being cynically exploited by member-states in flagrant violation of the Charter, and that the degree of collaboration between the UN agencies is demonstrably, and disastrously, minimal."

With this internal incompetence one can readily associate the United Nations' weaknesses found last fall by a U.S. presidential commission: an inability to act when the interests of the superpowers clash; a lack of both the means and the vitality to cope with many emerging world problems, with too many nations giving lip service to the principles of the Charter or interpreting them for petty advantage; the use of the UN as an ineffective debating society and a platform for propaganda.

The presidential commission said the United Nations "might not be in danger of immediate collapse." It clearly continues, however, to drift into further decay. Finding a strong and able successor to U Thant might give it a reprieve. But more than a postponement of anarchy is needed. It would be most ironic if Communist China, the most populous nation on earth, were finally to become a member, as seems likely soon, only of a world organization at death's door.

Something's Got to Give Soon With the Troubled Island of Cyprus

By VICTOR WALKER of the Melbourne Herald

AFTER three years of almost fruitless negotiation, there are indications that a time of decision is approaching for the island of Cyprus.

In the view of observers here in Athens, either the talks between the island's two communities must soon be allowed to peter out, with the risk of violent developments afterwards, or they must be given a new impetus through concessions by both sides — between the communities themselves, or at "mother country" level between Greece and Turkey.

★ ★ ★

The pressures for a settlement stem from three main sources. In diminishing order of importance, they are:

(1) The full, if rarely stated, appreciation in Athens and Ankara that neither Greece nor Turkey can afford to war over Cyprus.

(2) The U.S. desire to reduce the number of potential troublespots in the Mediterranean by eliminating Cyprus as one of them.

(3) And the financial difficulty for the United Nations in maintaining a multinational force on the island to keep the peace between the two communities.

Observers in Athens, including some diplomats, view these pressures as lying behind the decision of the Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios, to pay a six-day visit to the Soviet Union this month.

The emerging situation in Cyprus, on the face of it, is highly threatening.

It now is just 3¼ years since Greece and Turkey had their third, and narrowest, escape from a drift into war over the future of Cyprus.

It was a close shave, and it led, finally, to negotiations between the island's two communities, which began in the summer of 1968.

Crux of the dispute is how the powers and privileges should be shared between the island's 80 per cent Greek Cypriot population and 20 per cent Turkish Cypriot minority.

Complicating it is the vexed question of "enosis," union of the island with Greece, which was the banner under which the Greek Cypriots fought the British for their independence, and which had been a Cypriot aspiration since long before.

The division of the powers was supposedly settled by the 1959 agreement — between the two communities and Greece, Turkey and Britain as guarantor powers — on the basis of which the British pulled out of Cyprus.

It now is generally accepted that the agreement gave the Turkish community more than a fair share, though how much more is something that three years of negotiation has still not been able to resolve.

Recent statements by Archbishop Makarios and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Mr. Raouf Denktash, indicate that on fundamental issues the gap is still as wide as ever.

According to Archbishop Makarios, the talks have resulted "in agreement on the Turkish Cypriot share in government services and the island's political life. "Beyond this, however, the Turkish Cypriots are demanding autonomy with a central executive institution. Acceptance of such a demand would be tantamount to creation of a state within a state . . . (and) is entirely inadmissible to the Greek side."

In one form or another, the archbishop charged, the Turkish Cypriots were pursuing partition of the island.

Makarios, whose formal policy is that enosis is "desirable but not at present feasible," also rejected a Turkish Cypriot demand for a permanent renunciation of enosis. To accede, he said, would be to accept a status of "fettered independence" for the island and, anyway, "the national aspirations of a people cannot be repudiated."

Mr. Denktash, in his statement, declared that only renunciation of enosis can avert a war between Greece and Turkey "sooner or later." In the Turkish Cypriot view, "it is impossible for the two communities to live together as one nation." But while "the Turkish Cypriots want autonomy, the Greek Cypriots offer administration."

★ ★ ★

It is not merely a question of phraseology. The Turkish Cypriot inhabitants of Cyprus have now largely collected in a few areas of the island and, disdaining Greek Cypriot invitations to return to their homes, have set up self-governed enclaves which could easily become a basis for partition.

There have recently been threats to make this situation official with references in Ankara to the enclaves as "the 18th province of Turkey" and talk of establishing an "air bridge" between them and Turkey.

Makarios has pledged "reaction by all means" if these threats are implemented.

If fighting started, it is hard to see how Greece and Turkey could avoid involvement.

While the threat is clear, the possibilities of settlement are in one respect greater that at any time before.

This is because, for the first time, both Greece and Turkey are simultaneously administered by strong military-backed governments, neither of which runs the risk of embarrassment by any political opposition. And both rely on the maintenance of peace for their economic progress.

They thus share a motive for a give-and-take settlement, and the strength to make it stick if one could be reached. Diplomatic contacts between the two are frequent, and friendly.

In this context, it was announced late last month that "friendly messages" have been exchaged between the Greek prime minister, Mr. George Papadopoulos, and the new Turkish premier, Mr. Erim, in which both expressed the hope that "all controversial questions between the two countries" could be settled through co-operation.

As for the Makarios government in Nicosia, it is clearly in no hurry to see the island lose its status of an independent, non-aligned nation.

Thus, on enosis, it maintains the policy, wholly unacceptable to the Turks, that all the island or none of it should join Greece, rejecting any talk of partition and double enosis — the larger part joining Greece and the smaller Turkist Cypriot section joining Turkey.

A Friend in the National Capital

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

YOU'RE a hotelman, a restaurateur, you run a sight-seeing service, manage any store all the way from little boutique to big department, operate a theatre?

None of these things?

Okay then, this has got to take you into the circle of interest: you're a local taxpayer, paying taxes through your rent even if you're a tenant.

★ ★ ★

So what's new?

He's trying to help you, bringing new money into Yourtown, Canada, to boost spending, increase business, step up employment, put something extra and perhaps unexpected into the civic coffers — and, hopefully, indirectly, easing the tax burden.

He's Ben Carbonetto, working under the title of Conventions Promotion Chief that's how it reads on his office door and letterhead for the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

His business is selling Canada — and indirectly Yourtown — as a great place for conventions, American and Canadian, where the delegates can get a fun-and-profit deal out of the average $35 daily each of them spends on accommodation, food, drink, local travel and personal services and entertainment.

Ben Carbonetto and his staff do business in the "big picture" perspective, marketing all of Canada as the best of all possible playgrounds for a convention caper.

He makes his biggest and best pitch for the big American spenders, but makes an odd pass at potential international conventioneers abroad who, more and more in recent years have been looking across both oceans our way.

Then, in much smaller focus, he does business on the local level too, alerting the convention bureau, the chamber of commerce, the board of trade, or even the hotel and tourist association in Yourtown and/or Yourregion of what delegates are shopping in what areas for which style, taste and price of accomodation and services.

Instead, look up the dollar figures as compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics or what, if you haven't yet been told, is now known as "Statistics Canada."

(Neat way the government has of getting rid of the royal inference of "Dominion," what?)

Well, DBS, or SC reports that last year Toronto, the big money-maker of convention towns and cities, drew better than 300 such jolly, usually free spending gatherings, bringing in more than 150,000 delegates each getting rid of an average $35 daily.

But size has got nothing to do with it, or not everything.

For even Smalltown, if it has the foresight to have provided the convention facilities and the get-up-and-go to sell them to the delegates, can turn a mighty pretty penny.

Like Penticton, tucked away there between the mountains in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley, with a population just over 15,000, by the last federal government Canada Year Book record.

Sure, Penticton's pretty, even enchanting, glorious weather, too. But convenient of travel reach?

Easy of quick access or not, Penticton, because it has the facilities — hotels, motels and most of all a fine convention centre — ranked eleventh in drawing the delegates and their dollars, just behind Windsor, and, difficult though it may be to credit, just ahead of Victoria.

Of course, as their very size compelled it, the big cities, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Edmonton Calgary, Ottawa, Quebec City, Hamilton and Windsor got the big conventions and the big spending.

Then, in eleventh place, Penticton broke the size pattern with 33 conventions, bringing in some 20,000 delegates who spent $3,200,000.

Then, in descending order not all cities reported their total, to Ben Carbonetto's convention sales task-force came these:

Halifax, 75 conventions, 30,359 delegates, $2,850,000 revenue.

Kitchener-Waterloo, 33 conventions and uncounted sales meetings, symposiums and seminars with 13,300 delegates and $1,500,000.

Thunder Bay, 42 conventions, 29,000 delegates $1,160,000.

St. John's, 46 conventions, 4,060 delegates, $514,000.

Stratford, 40 conventions, 6,750 delegates, $400,000.

No city, says Ben Carbonetto, is too tiny to get in on the convention action. For if Penticton can get to be very respectable "Number Eleven," outranking even convention hard-hustling Niagara Falls, anything is possible.

What are the Americans shopping for in conventions?

Among many, the one big thing they haven't got and we have, peace, order, and reasonably good government in cities that keep their municipal cool, and it's safe to leave the protection of the hotel for a stroll around town.

Today in History

The Oregon Boundary Treaty was signed by Britain and the United States 125 years ago today — in 1846. The treaty gave the U.S. the Oregon country south of the 49th parallel. The pact peacefully settled a bitter and long-smouldering dispute over the then little-known territory of the Pacific Northwest.

1944 — The CCF won the provincial election in Saskatchewan, opening 20 years of socialist rule in the province.

1941 — The first V-bomb attacks were made on London.

1888 — Wilhelm II acceded as ruler of Germany.

People Are Squeezing Them Out

By MALCOLM WITHNELL from Kampala

TWO thousand elephants out of a total of 8,500 in the southern area of Murchison Falls National Park in Uganda are to be killed off in the next year or 18 months as part of measures to save the herds from slow extinction. If the trustees of the Uganda National Parks agree with the findings of scientists a further 2,000 may be shot.

The director of Uganda National Parks is Roger J. Wheater, a Briton from Brighton, who told me that if management action is not taken urgently it has been predicted that elephants could vanish from the area by the turn of the century.

The human population outside Murchison National Park, as well as in other places, has taken over what was once elephant country. In 1929 more than 70 per cent of Uganda was elephant country. By 1966 this had shrunk to 13 per cent. But there had not been a comparable reduction in the elephant population. The result of their being squeezed into a smaller and smaller area was that they began to destroy their own habitat and that of other wild animals as well, which could not move out.

"The problem," said Mr. Wheater, "is rather like having a town with 50 farms all around it, all of them keeping cattle at the best possible stocking rate — that is, the maximum that the land will feed. Then the town expands, erasing say 35 of the farms and crowding all the cattle into the remaining 15 farms. We have a habitat in the south of the park now which is poor for many species of animal, including elephant, which are themselves in a state of decline biologically."

This decline — signalled by later puberty, lengthening calving intervals and probably higher mortality in young animals — has come about because of lack of woody vegetation, the bark and branches of trees, on which elephants feed, thus causing dietary problems, or lack of shade causing heat stress.

"It has been shown by experiment," said Mr. Wheater, "that if browsing on woody vegetation is reduced there is a spectacular recovery of such woody vegetation which is the basis for the formation of new woodlands. We believe that by reducing the number of elephants we shall create a climate for the rapid regeneration of woody vegetation, thus obtaining the diversity we seek which will then be of value to all species of wild life, including elephants."

So the elephant herds in the southern area of Murchison Falls National Park are to be "cropped" by 2,000, and perhaps 4,000. Cropping means wiping out entire herds — a herd may number up to 100 — so leaving no member of the herd in a state of fear.

It also means taking off a complete section of the age structure from young to old — not just those with the big tusks that a hunter might covet.

On the advice of their scientific advisory committee, the trustees of Uganda National Parks are putting the project in the hands of marksmen who will be invited to apply for the job by tender. The meat, skin and ivory will be sold to local people and presented at game trophy auctions.

Of cropping, Mr. Wheater says, "Some people are critical of this approach and feel that what happens in the parks should be left to Nature to take her time and in her own way to sort out these problems. I would be the last person to disagree that the situation would sort itself out, but the critical factor is: What would we be left with once Nature had taken her course? The cost would be the loss of a number of species to the parks and possibly to the nation.

"We believe a national park must be representative of the flora and fauna of its particular area, and we do not believe that can be achieved without logical thought being given to the management of our national parks."

Indeed, Mr. Wheater believes that if management is not undertaken — "and undertaken now — the elephant could continue to decline to a point where the population was no longer viable — in other words that it would just die out.

Acting Mayor Refuses 'Muzzle'

—Betty Macmillan

Winners Discuss Tactics

Three winners discussing awards at Gold River are, from left, Tom Conn, two second prize ribbons, Patrick McGinnis, four firsts—he ended day with five— and Brian Lawrence, two seconds. They were taking part in elementary school's intermediate track and field which was won by Salish house with 189. Second was Haida 177 and third Nootka 111.

In a resolution fired to the city council, the association demanded that Lukaitis be "strongly censored" and that he should withdraw his comment, apologize or make himself available at a public meeting to justify his remark.

The alleged statement made by Lukaitis was that "businessmen take everything from the community and give nothing back." He had directed his comment at the lack of centennial decoration of the business section in Duncan.

Acting Mayor Allan Kerr said that no mayor can muzzle any council member and that it would be highly undemocratic to bring in a censorship charge.

Ald. Hamish Mutter commented that although he had regretted the Lukaitis remark the council should "just forget it. It is just a storm in a teacup."

Council decided to receive and file the letter from the Downtown Businessmen's Association and its attached resolution. Several aldermen asked how many business people were represented by the association.

Ald. Jay Powley said "If I want to criticize businessmen I will do it." Mutter and Ald. Tom Kilpatrick said that the association does not represent all businessmen in the downtown area.

One last comment came from Lukaitis: "We all make statements and possibly they are not always right. I take the blame. I can stay on my own feet."

In other business council decided to enforce the city's anti-noise bylaw after hearing another complaint about the noisy air conditioner at the K and R Foodstore which, according to one complainant, runs 24 hours a day for seven days each week and can be heard a city block away. Duncan resident E. A. Stannard referred to the noise as "unbearable."

Council also decided to approach consulting firm of Ross and Partners to conduct a $3,500 survey of the city's administration. Kerr said: "We have a problem — some kind of a sickness, but we don't know exactly what it is. I think we have growing pains."

There were 18 similar canoes and the Mount Prevost finished the race about three boat lengths ahead of St. Theresa from North Vancouver and Mermaid of Shell Beach.

Other water sports results were: St. Andrew, Shell Beach, Klootchman: Garry Harris and Mona Simpson, Shell Beach, Mixed doubles paddle; Jack Lewis and Robert George, Malahat, double paddle and Frank Paige, Cowichan, single paddle marathon.

More than 1,000 spectators watched events from the shore. Water sports organizer was William Joe and Ian George was MC.

SPCA Seeks Aid In Pet Problem

NANAIMO — SPCA inspector Derek Roberts is hoping for help in solving what has become an annual holiday problem.

He said Monday that people usually left their pets to be fed by a neighbor while they went on holiday. Then other well-meaning neighbors, unaware of the situation, would phone the RCMP or SPCA to complain that the animals were not being looked after properly.

Roberts said the best idea would be for the holidaymakers to advise him of arrangements.

'Youth Is Future'

Legion Assists Students

COURTENAY — The Legion, in Canada, had "fought long and hard for what the veteran deserves" while the government was more interested in "making homosexuality legal than in the veterans' plight, Courtenay Rotary Club was told recently.

He said: "Service not for self, but for comrades dead and alive is the key word of the Royal Canadian Legion. It is the greatest organization in Canada in two ways. It is the largest organization, with more than 300,000 members, and because of the men and women who constitute its membership.

He said that Pacific Command in B.C. had more than 56,000 members and more than 500 attended a biennial convention in Nanaimo recently when the theme was "don't you believe the Legion is dying."

Redman said that membership had increased considerably since 1969.

He said that in 1965, the Woods report on Veterans affairs had been given to the government which had promptly tabled the report. However, because the Legion took action, some recommendations had been implemented.

He said the First World War veteran was becoming extinct and the average age of those from the Second World War was 55.

"What will happen? God forbid we should have another war," said Redmond who felt the answer to the Legion's future lay in the youth of Canada where the Legion was placing special emphasis.

In Pacific Command he said 40 young people were being sent to Quebec this summer with 50 students from Quebec coming to B.C. Three students from each zone in B.C. were eligible to attend a youth training program at University of B.C. and 24 young people would attend the program this year.

The Legion was most active in sponsoring teams in a wide variety of athletic endeavors in addition to cubs, scouts and army, navy and air force cadet corps, he said.

Recently it was discovered that veterans in the Caribbean countries who had bought with Canadian and British troops, were destitute. The Legion's Dominion Command set a figure of which B.C. was required to raise $230,000 to help them. Redman said the sum raised was well over the original mark.

Redman pointed out that in 1969, there were 179 branches and 22 zones in B.C. More than $3 million had been spent on senior citizens low-cost housing, including 10 homes opened last year by Comox.

Cumberland Legion was obtaining land for a similar project. More than $60,000 was available annually in scholarships. $18,000 was spent in physical fitness programs. $700,000 went from the Poppy Fund to aid needy veterans and taxes paid on $16 million worth of property. Redford praised the women's auxiliaries whose 9,745 members had raised $500,000 for charity, hospitals and scholarships.

Rural Residents Attack Plan For Sanitary Fill

PORT ALBERNI — A deputation from Alberni Valley Rural Taxpayers Association Monday night presented suggestions to city council concerning the re-location and operation of a proposed sanitary land fill.

John VanVeek, on behalf of the taxpayers' garbage committee, said he realized that there should be little or no smell and smoke from the land fill suggested. However he suggested there would be water pollution because of rainwater and a creek running out of the area into McCoy Creek, a salmon spawning area.

VanVeek said the city claims that the site drains to the east and, from the observation of the committee, it is obviously not so.

The creek to the west is used by one family as a water supply and, in addition, the committee fears that creation of methane gas which would kill vegetation, or even explode, the spokesman said.

The group said they were quite sure that there was suitable land available that was not so close to a populated area.

Ald. Jim Mactie asked where such suitable property could be found but the spokesman only repeated that there must be more suitable areas.

Ald. George Dunbar pointed out that an engineering study must be made and that rules of the Pollution Control Board which must be followed were exactly the steps city council intended to follow.

City manager Jim Sawyer said Associated Engineering Services had been engaged to investigate the site and if it meets the Pollution Control Board's criteria, the next step will be an application to the board.

He said it takes about 90 days to process applications weighing against them any objections submitted.

Sawyer said the rural ratepayers should make their objections directly to the board.

Replying to VanVeek's suggestion that the city was looking for a site too close to populated areas, Sawyer said experience has proved that the more remote the dump, the fewer people go the full distance to use it instead they will drop off their contributions anywhere along the way.

Pupils To Play For Parents

GOLD RIVER — A concert for parents will be held in Gold River elementary school gymnasium at 7 p.m. on June 23.

The program will include a piano recital by pupils of Mrs. Beryl Grieve, Mrs. Jay Hasselbacher and Bill Bell, a beginner's band concert and a play, The Storm, written and directed by Year 7 pupil Shawne McKay.

Recreation Program

GOLD RIVER — Howie Carty has been appointed Gold River recreation Coordinator for the summer. Carty is the coach of the University of Victoria hockey team and is preparing a summer program for the town.

Cowichan Resolution

Trustees Want Paddle Decision

DUNCAN — A resolution to allow individual school boards the right to decide whether they wish to allow corporal punishment in their schools was one of eight resolutions passed Monday at a special meeting of Cowichan school board.

The resolutions will be presented at the annual B.C. School Trustees' Association convention which will be held in Vancouver Oct. 3 to Oct. 6. Under school board policy, each trustee attending the convention is allocated $250 to cover expenses for the three-day event.

"We encourage all trustees to attend the convention and usually eight or nine out of the total nine trustees are able to attend," said board chairman Dave Haywood.

The corporal punishment resolution was submitted by trustee Mrs. Nancy Bailey.

Other resolutions passed included three moved by Haywood — that the BCSTA consider a recent study made by the select standing committee on social welfare and education which included a re-examination of the existing tenure system for teachers; that individual school boards have a direct say in financial commitments of BCSTA, and that individual boards have a more direct involvement in financial arrangements of regional colleges.

Protest at Three Island Points

Linemen Stay Away

About 75 B.C. Hydro linemen stayed away from work Monday on Vancouver Island as their union continued its strategy of rotating strikes against the crown agency.

They were Hydro employees at Nanaimo, Qualicum and Port Alberni who are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which is trying to reach agreement on a new contract. An IBEW spokesman would not say whether they would be back at their jobs today.

The rotating strikes started 12 days ago after contract negotiations broke down. Hydro has offered IBEW members a 14 per cent wage increase over two years but the union wants 18.5 per cent.

The largest group of Vancouver Island workers involved in Monday's strike were those at Nanaimo where, according to a union spokesman, about 45 stayed home. There were no reports of any interruptions to Hydro's service.

Other Hydro crews were off work in six centres on the mainland.

Tom Forkin, president of local 258 of the IBEW, also said the union has had no word from Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of Hydro, over the possibility of arbitration outside of the terms of Bill 33.

Last weekend, Forkin said Shrum "indicated Hydro possibly would consider mediation apart from Bill 33 and this is what we have been asking for."

Forkin said no picket lines were set up Monday that stalled Hydro operations. At the sites where IBEW refused to work for the day, no one was left and, as a result, there was no point posting information pickets.

On Saturday, Forkin indicated that the IBEW might be hatching new and more drastic action against Hydro and that such might occur this week.

He said Monday that the IBEW had not changed its mind on that point.

Fishboats Offered To Ottawa

The federal fisheries department is expected to make the first purchases of salmon fishboats in its buy-back program in mid-July.

M. P. Houghton, chairman of the buy-back committee said in a telephone interview from Vancouver Monday that "a couple of hundred" fishermen have already applied to have their boats appraised for possible purchase by the department.

Aside from the stipulation that any vessels purchased may not be returned to the salmon fleet, the form that disposal will take has not yet been decided, however.

"If necessary, we would put them up for auction," Houghton said.

Strikers Plan 'Measures' If Gunman Isn't Caught

MACKENZIE, B.C. (CP)—A Spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, Jack Fraser, said Monday that striking pulp workers here will "take their own measures" if police don't apprehend a gunman who fired a rifle shot at pickets Saturday.

Fraser said the gunman threatened the wife of a striker a few hours before he lined up six pickets and threatened to kill them. He fired a shot over their heads.

India's Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh tells Monday's news conference in Ottawa his country cannot allow itself to be overrun by flood of refugees from East Pakistan. He said he's trying to alert world to seriousness of refugee problem, and has already been to Moscow, Bonn and Paris. —(CP)

Pentagon Stories Go On

Paper Defying Federal Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said Monday night the United States justice department asked it to halt publication of a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war and threatened to seek an injunction today if the paper did not comply. The Times said it "must respectfully decline the request."

The newspaper's Tuesday morning editions, in which appeared the third instalment of documents from the Pentagon study, were nearly an hour late hitting the streets. The reason for the delay was not clear immediately.

The Times said in a statement it believed "that it is in the interest of the people of this country to be informed of the material contained in this series of articles."

The secret documents disclosed United States actions involving the U.S. militarily in Vietnam, and Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said their publication "violates the security regulations of the United States."

Laird said he had asked the justice department to investigate how The Times got the material. Senator Stuart Symington, Dem. Mo. of the Senate foreign relations committee called publication of the documents "shocking."

The Times said it had received a telegram from Attorney-General John Mitchell requesting that it abstain from publishing documents drawn from the three-year-old Pentagon study on the ground it will cause "irreparable harm to the defence interests of the United States."

Mitchell's telegram did not raise the threat of injunction. But The Times said the request for a halt in publication and the department's intention to seek an injunction were conveyed by Robert Mardian, assistant attorney-general in charge of the internal security division, to Harding Bancroft, executive vice-president of The Times.

Laird said Monday someone had violated the law by publishing parts of the Pentagon study, which said the Johnson administration planned attacks on North Vietnam well before the Gulf of Tonkin incident.

Seven Die In Detroit Shooting

DETROIT (AP) — An intensive manhunt was under way Monday for four men seen fleeing from a house where seven persons were shot to death in what police said may be the latest in a series of murders in a battle for control of Detroit's narcotics traffic.

Four women — three of them with their hands bound in front of them — and three men died of gunshot wounds fired at pointblank range into their heads. The eighth victim is in hospital.

Neo-Fascists Soar

ROME (AP) — Italy's Neo Fascists surged to record gains Monday in elections throughout Sicily and in Rome and other cities.

A strong backlash vote gave the heirs of Mussolini their biggest advance since the Second World War and propelled them into the national spotlight after years of losses.

The Neo-Fascists surpassed all expectations, making what are believed the sharpest gains of any party in 20 years. In Sicily, the Italian Social Movement — MSI, as the Neo-Fascists are called — jumped to 16.3 per cent from 6.6 per cent of the vote in 1967.

Pakistani Writer Brands Troop Action Genocide

LONDON (Reuter) — Accusations of genocide by Pakistan government troops against Hindus and Bengali Muslims in East Pakistan are made by a Pakistani newspaper editor in a 2½-page article in The Sunday Times.

Anthony Mascarenhas, who was assistant editor of the Karachi Morning News and The Sunday Times correspondent in Pakistan, left Pakistan with his family in order to tell the world why more than five million refugees had left East Pakistan for India, risking famine and cholera, the London newspaper says.

The paper says there had been no question of his being allowed to report what he saw for his own paper since even references to the danger of famine were deleted by a censor.

Mascarenhas writes the censor allowed him to report the events following the March 25 rebellion of Bengali troops and paramilitary units stationed in East Pakistan and the fact thousands of Muslim families were wiped out.

He says the government of Pakistan let the world know about that first horror, but suppressed the second and, he says, worse horror which followed when its own army took over the killing.

Mascarenhas reports that West Pakistani officials privately calculated that altogether both sides had killed 250,000 persons, not counting those who died of famine and disease.

Nonuplets Now Two

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A sixth of the Brodrick nonuplets died overnight Monday, according to a hospital bulletin. Friends close to the family said a seventh child died later, leaving only two of the nine infants born prematurely Sunday to Mrs. Geraldine Brodrick still alive.

Over the past few years Ken had gotten to know Harry, his neighbourhood mechanic, pretty well.

In fact, too well.

Finally, with the help of another large repair estimate, Harry convinced Ken to buy a new car.

And we took it from there.

That's why we call it a Bankplan loan.

Fishboats Offered To Ottawa

The federal fisheries department is expected to make the first purchases of salmon fishboats in its buy-back program in mid-July.

M. P. Houghton, chairman of the buy-back committee said in a telephone interview from Vancouver Monday that "a couple of hundred" fishermen have already applied to have their boats appraised for possible purchase by the department.

Aside from the stipulation that any vessels purchased may not be returned to the salmon fleet, the form that disposal will take has not yet been decided, however.

"If necessary, we would put them up for auction," Houghton said.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL

Constitutional Conference

While Ottawa, Quebec Lock Horns Bennett Raises Hackles, Pet Plan

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

While Ottawa and Quebec appeared to be locked in an impasse over income security policies, British Columbia stands on the sidelines with a proposal which Premier Bennett said Monday will solve everyone's problems.

Bennett, who clashed sharply with Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa at the opening session of the three-day federal-provincial constitutional conference over equalization payments, later told reporters he will make a detailed proposal, including costs of a guaranteed annual income plan for all Canadians.

The B.C. premier drew the ire of Bourassa when he told the conference this province is "unalterably opposed" to continuation of equalization payments to the seven so-called have-not provinces, which include Quebec.

Bennett went on to claim that over the "three latest years" equalization payments and federal payments to special programs in the province of Quebec had increased from $440 million to $773 million.

In his opening remarks Bourassa termed the charge "inaccurate and unjustified," arguing that in proportion to their budget, other have-not provinces receive more than Quebec. And the Quebec premier said it was "short-sighted" to restrict the argument to equalization payments when the whole field of monetary, tariff and financial policies was affected by the redistribution of wealth in Canada.

Bennett, however, wasn't prepared to let the matter rest and after lunch when the conference had gone into closed session he came to the press gallery to reply to Bourassa's statement. He told reporters the figures on equalization payments which he quoted were "gathered from many sources" but principally from one of Quebec's leading newspapers, Le Devoir.

The B.C. premier said he wasn't opposed to the people of Quebec or of other have-not provinces receiving federal aid, but argued the present system of equalization grants poured hundreds of millions of dollars "into the establishment, to the bureaucrats, and it doesn't go to the poor people who need it."

The Trudeau government, Bennett added, should be thrown out of office if Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget next Friday doesn't contain greatly increased tax exemptions for individuals which could serve as the base for a guaranteed annual income scheme.

Such a scheme, based upon the negative income tax principle in which all Canadians earning less than an established base income

In His Stride

By DON MacPHERSON
Canadian Press

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Monday his province will not formally accept a proposed formula for bringing the constitutional amending process home to Canada unless it gets what it wants in the field of social policy.

Bourassa told reporters his government and the people of Quebec would not accept the suggested formula unless Ottawa and the other provinces agree to a constitutional amendment increasing provincial powers in the field of social legislation.

"The amending formula, a question of form, cannot be accepted purely and simply without the settlement of a question of fundamentals, and social policy is for us a question of fundamentals," he said.

A formula for amending the Canadian constitution in Canada, without referring to the British Parliament as now is the case, is under discussion at the constitutional conference which began Monday.

Bourassa said the formula would not receive Quebec's formal approval until the Quebec national assembly passed a resolution to that effect.

"No resolution will be presented if Quebec does not get satisfaction on a question of fundamentals, a question of substance," he said.

Quebec wants a constitutional amendment giving it and the other provinces legislative "primacy" in the field of income-security programs.

Social policy is to be discussed today at the conference which, after opening statements by each of the participating governments, continued behind closed doors.

Bourassa said he will make it clear to the other participants that Quebec will not accept the amending formula

Trudeau Saw Red—in Lapel

By DON COLLINS

Bennett Created Waves While Joey Drew Laughs

Canada's problems — in case anyone has doubts — are indeed varied.

The order of importance depends on where you live.

If you are Joey Smallwood and premier of Newfoundland, you get right down to the business of telling Prime Minister Trudeau the time is at hand to give the provinces offshore land and mineral rights.

If you are Saskatchewan attorney-general D. V. Heald you talk about inflation and the plight of the farmer and you tell how you were standing there in the rain one day talking to a man who was holding a bearing for his tractor.

The point is, the bearing used to cost the farmer $6. Now it costs him $19.

Little Things

And these are some of the little things constitutional conferences are made of — even when they are billed as the most important since Confederation, like the one that began here Monday.

They were points made during formal presentation of position papers by the premiers of the provinces. (Heald is representing Saskatchewan for Premier Ross Thatcher who is campaigning for an election later this month.)

The colorful Joey Smallwood spoke last and he prompted some welcome laughter after about two hours of fairly heavy going when the conference opened in the legislative chambers.

Whether or not an amending formula is found for the constitution, there is one agreement Newfoundland wants and it wants it this year, Smallwood said. It wants the land beneath the Atlantic off its shores and the mineral rights that go with it.

Bands, Bunting Give Parley Unique Touch

Victoria's bands, bunting and Centennial 71 fever have turned the constitutional conference into the most colorful meeting of premiers ever, according to a veteran Ottawa journalist.

Stewart MacLeod of the Canadian Press Ottawa bureau, wrote of Monday's opening: "If Premier Bennett's extravaganza . . . is transferred to future meetings in Ottawa, the changing-of-the-guard ceremony could be put out of business.

"Certainly Canada's political leaders never experienced anything like it in their hitherto-duff and drawn-own search for constitutional reform.

"Instead of dodging traffic to get into Ottawa's old converted Union Station, there was Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, decked out in a blazing maroon jacket, sitting high in a convertible while a proabortionist shouted: 'He was a wanted child'."

Premiers' parade, near-empty streets

By HUBERT BEYER

If public interest in a motorcade is any indication, Victorians would rather get rid of one prime minister and nine premiers than abolish the monarchy.

A little more than a month ago, the streets of downtown Victoria were jammed with people welcoming Queen Elizabeth.

Monday morning, a few casual passersby and early-morning shoppers stopped briefly to watch the country's 10 most powerful politicians drive by.

At the corner of Douglas and Yates, a sign in a drugstore window proclaiming a clearance of "discontinued lines" drew more people than the parade of premiers and prime minister that was to arrive in a few minutes.

"With so few people here, I begin to suspect that I'm at the wrong corner," a man said looking down Yates where the motorcade was to appear.

His name, he said, was Bill Dowkes, and he wasn't really sure if it mattered whether or not he was at the right corner.

"Maybe we've grown up . . . sure aren't very many people interested," he said.

Indians Caught Red-Handed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six American Indians were arrested early Monday as they were spraying slogans on the walls of the American Museum of Natural History to protest the federal government's reseizure of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco.

Police said the six were "caught in the act" of writing slogans in red paint by a routine police patrol. The slogans read Return Alcatraz and Racist Killers.

Police Claim Pay Slip 'Avalanche'

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Victoria police wages, only $8 a month behind Vancouver in 1966, "have slipped behind so quickly the slip has become an avalanche," the Victoria police union said Saturday.

The claim was made in a 20-point statement released by the union because "we feel we owe the public an explanation" of the main issue in the present contract dispute with the Victoria police commission — parity with Vancouver.

The statement, issued through union president Kenneth Horsman, also:

● Said the union is firm on a one-year contract because police wages fell "way behind" after a two-year contract set by the B.C. Mediation Commission in 1969.

● Declared the union wants parity but is "prepared to bargain within this position." The statement did not say how much.

● Disclosed the union paid for a computer study last year which showed Vancouver and Victoria "are equal in most price areas and Victoria leads in some key areas — food costs 2½ per cent more, cars cost 4½ per cent more."

Horsman's statement came one day after a union meeting with commission negotiators which left the union "deeply dissatisfied" with the lack of an offer but ready to meet again, probably late this week.

The Friday meeting also did not discuss the union request for binding arbitration rather than settlement through the mediation commission. And both sides declined to discuss the work-to-rules campaign of police union members, which was also not mentioned in the statement.

The statement said the union actually wants parity with New Westminster, West Vancouver, Delta, Matsqui and Port Moody as well as Vancouver since all those police forces get the same pay.

It said the 25-year-old union's goal has always been parity with Vancouver. In 1966, Victoria police pay was second to Vancouver across Canada, while in 1970, it was 66th in four provinces surveyed.

The statement said the pay of a Victoria first-class constable will be $159 a month behind the wages of the same man in Vancouver July 1, and a 7½ per cent increase — the last figure discussed by city officials — would make the difference $104.

Highlights of the 20 points:

● The union said Victoria police face the same dangers as other policemen across Canada, noting three Victoria policemen have been wounded in shootings in recent years and one Saanich constable was shot and killed.

"We pay the same price for dying here as in Vancouver but not at the same wages," the statement said.

● It answered the argument that "the bigger the city, the higher the pay," is a fact of life in Canada by saying: "So is a dead policeman, whether his body be lying on the streets of Victoria, Vancouver or Montreal."

● The statement claimed many recent major crimes in Greater Victoria were committed by people who came to this area fro mthe U.S. or the Lower Mainland, and said the increase in crime "is a cross-Canada cancer," regardless of the size of area.

● "Victoria police, like Vancouver, are equipped to cope with civil disturbances. Let no one say it can't happen here, at least no one who recalls the opening of the Legislature."

● The union said the commission feels workers in a big industrialized city like Vancouver should be paid more than those "in a quiet backwater like Victoria." Yet, it said, many workers in the two cities get equal pay, so "we seem to have a right to lower pay than some of the citizens we protect."

● Along the same line, the union said a Victoria first-class constable gets $728 a month compared to $883 for the same man in the RCMP in Greater Victoria — "the RCMP believes in parity across Canada" — while Central Saanich men get the RCMP rate plus $30 a month extra.

"If Victoria is a backwater what is Central Saanich?" the union asked.

● The statement said Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt police receive the same basic pay except for Esquimalt, where members get 7 per cent more for firefighting duties in the joint police-fire department.

● It said Victoria police get time off for overtime while Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Vancouver get time and one-half, in cash.

● Physical and educational qualifications were called the same in Victoria and Vancouver, as were basic training and refresher courses. The union said that, at a recent course in Vancouver, the Victoria policeman who came first among 48 is paid "much lower" than Vancouver Police in the bottom 10.

● "Of the 116 members in the Victoria police union, possibly one can qualify for a maximum NHA mortgage regardless of years of service. The other 115 can't enjoy what is enjoyed by many of the citizens they protect."

Arrests Made After Theft

A Saanich man and woman were arrested Saturday night in connection with a theft in which about $600 in cash and cheques was stolen earlier in the evening from an unlocked cement floor safe in a Saanich gas station.

Saanich police reported that at about 8 p.m., a woman asked for and obtained permission to use the office telephone in the Burnside Home Station at Burnside and Harriet from gas station attendant William Smith, of 927 Darwin, Saanich, who was alone at the time.

The woman, police said, used the telephone while the man removed the door of the safe below the telephone. Smith, they said, was working in the service department while the two persons were in the front office.

After removing $293 in cash and about $310 in cheques from the safe, the two fled on foot, police said. They said the cash register was left untouched.

"I always check the place out when somebody has been in here because we always get petty thefts," Smith said.

Four minutes after Smith called police, two suspects were picked up by police a short distance away from the scene of the theft, Saanich police said. They said all cash and cheques were recoverd.

The two suspects are expected to appear in Victoria Provincial Court Monday.

Motorcyclist Hurt in Crash

Michael Green, of 1702 Duchess, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday after being treated for scratches and bruises received early Saturday when the motorcycle he was driving went out of control at Menzies and Superior, crossed the street, mounted a curb and struck a building, Victoria police reported.

Land Key to Vote

Without Diffuser

Region Seeks Outfall

By NANCY BROWN

An acute-care hospital referendum can be held in the Capital Region as soon as land has been purchased for the 225 extended-care beds left to be allocated under the October, 1968, extended-care referendum, according to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

And unless there is a speedy conclusion to negotiations with St. Joseph's Hospital for acute-care expansion, the referendum will not include that project.

The facilities planned for there could instead be allocated to a proposed site in the northwestern part of Victoria, Loffmark warned in an interview Saturday.

He indicated that provincial approval for a site for the extended-care beds could come quite soon, possibly within the next week or so, and referendum could come in the fall.

Need Seen

He would not identify the site exactly.

Loffmark said he recognizes the need for more acute-care beds in the district.

But he said the concern of the regional board and the provincial government must be to ensure that progress under the current extended-care bylaw has advanced to the point where the district would be justified in going to the voters again.

"We don't want to go until we can show them that we have done what was promised under that 1968 bylaw," said Loffmark.

At that time planning was for 600 beds, of which 300 are to be provided in facilities under construction at the Gorge Hospital. A small group has been allocated to Lady Minto Hospital in the Gulf Islands, and 75 are to be provided in Central Saanich.

Three Sites

"This leaves 225 beds to be allocated and started — and they can't be allocated until the district has the land," he pointed out.

Three sites have been recommended by the region, and the province has eliminated two of these, he said.

There remains a 35-acre site to the northwest, about 3½ miles from the city centre.

The price under consideration for the land is fair, said Loffmark, and it is adjacent to a sewer for connection. All that remains is completion of a study by provincial technical staff to determine the suitability of the site for a hospital.

He pointed out a site of that size could accommodate the extended-care beds, and still leave room if necessary for providing acute-care beds.

Regrets It

"Without attributing blame to anyone in particular, the inability of the regional district and ourselves to find a basis on which to negotiate with St. Joseph's Hospital for additional land for building has resulted in the withdrawal of the authorization to construct extended-care beds there," said Loffmark.

"I regret that, but it indicates the nature of the difficulties that arise in connection with the acquisition of additional land there for acute-care beds.

"I hope this will be a lesson for everyone involved in present St. Joseph's negotiations," continued Loffmark.

"The issue now is not whether any extended-care beds are to be built at St. Joseph's, but whether there is going to be land available for an acute-care construction program at St. Joseph's.

Not Pointing

"If there is no real progress in land acquisition there, then the hospital's acute-care planning will have the same destiny as the extended-care planning," said the minister.

"I am not pointing my finger at anyone.

"I am just saying there are the facts, and the hazard involved in failure to come to some kind of agreement will put all acute-care planning at St. Joseph's in jeopardy."

At present the Capital Regional Board is negotiating with the Sisters of St. Ann's, who own the hospital, for the purchase of 4.74 acres between Humboldt and Belleville.

The plan would involve the closure of Humboldt, and Victoria is demanding that in return for that road, it should receive assurances that land will be available from the hospital site for widening of Belleville when necessary.

It was the lack of this assurance, plus misgivings about the suitability of having a main road run through a hospital site, that caused the breakdown of previdus negotiations to buy a larger site for the extended-care beds.

Loffmark said Saturday that if the region does acquire the proposed 35-acre site, there would be room there to provide any acute-care beds that might have gone to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The government, he said is also hoping to open discussions with the regional board on the possibility of using the property for a personal or intermediate-care hospital.

Loffmark said plans for Royal Jubilee Hospital under the proposed bylaw have been discussed.

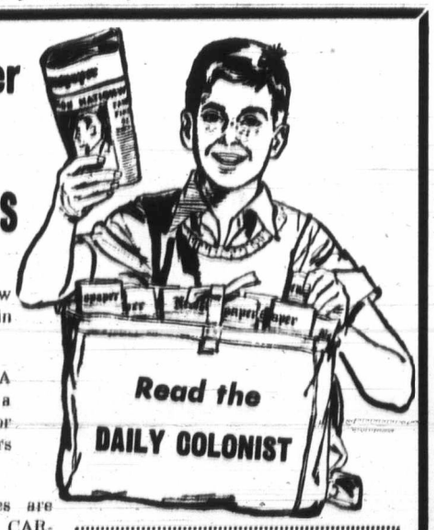

"We have also discussed with the region the amount of the next bylaw and the rate at which spending should take place so that the only thing really that is left to be done is to show the voters how we have spent and committed the money available under the 1968 extended-care bylaw and that really relates to the 225 extended-care beds left to be allocated."

Fourth Pool Date Set

Completion of Victoria's new $1.8 million swimming pool at Central Park is expected by Oct. 31 and official opening is scheduled for Nov. 25.

These dates were tentatively set Monday by Ald. Percy Frampton at a press conference.

"There may be things that happen that we do not know about," Frampton said. However, pool contractor H. E. Fowler and Sons does not foresee any difficulties which would impair completion of the new complex.

Former deadline for completion was Sept. 15.

Deadlines Pass

This was the fourth deadline that has been broken. Previous target dates were Dec. 1, 1970, and May 31 and July 31 of this year.

Cause of the delays Frampton said, was a 72-day labor lockout during 1970 and discovery of more bedrock than expected.

He said the contractor would not be held responsible for the delays.

And the reason for the time lag between completion and official opening of the pool?

"We may be able to open earlier (but) the staff has to get familiar with the pool and their jobs," Frampton said.

Main Purpose

Architect John Di Castri, supervisor of the project, said at the press conference, main purpose of the new building would not be as a swimming pool but as a recreational centre.

Victoria Recreation Director Jack Morgan said permanent staff will be fewer in number than that employed at the Crystal Garden.

Tinted Domes

Di Castri said a smoke-colored tint applied on the exterior of the domes' acrylic panels will lessen glare on the pools without affecting natural light.

Frampton said Victoria's new pool will be the only one in Canada to feature overhead domes.

The centre will provide a 50-metre Olympic standard course with eight lanes combined with a 25-metre eight lane course in a T-shaped pool.

A diving well, equipped with two one-metre boards, two three-metre boards and one five-metre diving platform is included.

In addition to the main pool, a children's pool will be located at one end of the building.

Handshake achieved despite security problems

Alexander the Trudeau Was Set for Diogenes

Alexander the Great met Diogenes outside the B.C. Legislature Monday and in this instance Diogenes seemed to come off second best as a philosopher.

Diogenes was Bill Scott, Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, who announced he would hand Prime Minister Trudeau, in the role of Alexander the Great, a copy of his own manifesto proclaiming Canada as the head of the French and English-speaking world.

It wasn't too easy to get the message across as the official party arrived. Scott was annoyed by what he described as the "finest collection of inflated bureaucratic pimples with more badges than brains."

But his determination paid off.

At the noon recess Scott was hailed by Premier Bennett. "How's my good friend Bill Scott? Keep up the good work."

His big moment came when he welcomed Trudeau to Victoria in French and asked if he might have a word with the prime minister.

"He is quite a scholar," said Scott, "and caught me off guard when he asked me if I knew the potential and all the tricks of Diogenes."

Trudeau accepted Scott's pamphlet with the suggestion that Canada lead the French and English-speaking world and then rejoined the party. Scott's parting words to Trudeau were: "You could be another Alexander the Great and make Canada the leader of the Western world."

Diogenes lived about 2,300 years ago and was a philosopher of the cynic school who renounced worldly goods for the simple life.

Alexander the Great once asked Diogenes what he could do to help him and was told "Stand out of my sunshine."

Scott said Monday he wished to show Trudeau how he could lead Canada in a position of world eminence especially in the Western world.

The lighthouse philosopher praised the RCMP who had allowed him to speak to the prime minister, saying "they have tact and understanding."

Scott's three-point program suggests Canada head the English and French-speaking cultural world; United Nationalism be replaced with United Culturalism, and culture be defined as "improvement of man's physical and mental condition. Refinement and beautifying of the mind, body and environment."

Damage to Home $1,000 in Fire

Damage was estimated at $1,000 in a fire Victoria firemen said was caused by a child playing with matches, at 518 Quadra Monday morning. A fire department official said no one was hurt as the occupants, the Charles Mowbray family, were forced out by the flames.

UVic Hearing To Go On

By BILL THOMAS

A member of the three-man advisory board appointed by the University of Victoria to examine the cases of three faculty members denied reappointment, resigned Monday and was replaced by the University of British Columbia's dean of pharmacy, Bernard Riedel.

The panel was convened from names recommended to the university by B.C. Supreme Court Justice J. O. Wilson. The idea of the panel came from a series of meetings of the full professors of the university after almost two years of controversy over the nonrenewal of teaching contracts for William Goede, Tikam Jain and J. P. Gratl. The three faculty members' contracts terminate June 30.

The board's hearing are being boycotted by the faculty association, CAUT and student organizations.

Dr. Vladimir Okulich resigned from the panel and the UVic board of governors met late Monday afternoon to consider an alternate.

The hearings are scheduled to open today at 10 a.m. in the MacLaurin Building on campus.

Chairman is former Alberta Supreme Court Judge Colin McLaurin, with Vancouver lawyer Brian Carrothers and Riedel completing the panel.

In addition to resigning from the panel, Okulich resigned from the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

In giving his reason for his resignation from CAUT the UBC professor in his letter to CAUT president Gordin Kaplan May 17 said, "The reason for this decision is my complete disagreement with the actions of CAUT in the recent censure of several universities. I strongly believe that universities have the right to dismiss or not renew appointments of individuals who for one reason or another are no longer desirable members of the institution.

"CAUT actions are harmful to the universities, the academic standards and the

Okulich told Kaplan, "In many ways CAUT is beginning to act like a trade union instead of a professional association. Since I am completely out of sympathy with such trends I do not wish any longer to be connected with the association."

The UVic committee of full professors had asked that the examination of CAUT's part in the handling of the cases of the three professors be one of the terms of reference of the advisory board.

CAUT president Kaplan replied to Okulich June 10 saying he was "astonished to learn today of your acceptance of nomination to advisory committee to president Partridge."

Kaplan told Okulich the tone of his letter "indicates serious doubt that you can be an impartial judge of events at the University of Victoria and of the CAUT role there. I personally urge you to resign immediately from the advisory committee."

Faculty Association president Charles Doyle said Monday the resignation of Okulich from the panel "proves that our misgivings are entirely justified."

In a message to all faculty members, Doyle said, "Since the members of the advisory board were, in the event, chosen by the University of Victoria administration and since Okulich was the last member of the advisory board to be appointed and his appointment delayed announcement of the panel as it then was) until May 26, there must be very serious doubt that the appointment was made in good faith."

Doyle said that either the university appointed him knowing of his attitude in spite of the professor's call for a disinterested committee or Okulich had not made his views known to the university.

"We are back where we started," said Doyle. "We need an independent tribunal with powers to call witness and take sworn statements. We still believe this is the duty of the visitor, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson."

"The way things stand nobody is obliged to produce all the relevant documents or relevant witnesses," Doyle said.

Radio Crystals Stall Flyer

By JIM BRAHAN

Failure to get special radio parts may wash out a number of B.C. entries in the Centennial 71 air race July 1 from London, England, to Victoria, a Saanich flyer told the Colonist Monday.

Fred Mainwood, 5083 Catalina Terrace, Saanich, said a Vancouver firm canned deliver special radar frequency crystals needed to fly the North Atlantic.

"This thing hit me like a rock this afternoon," he said, and explained the firm told him it needed another 10 days for delivery because the machine which grinds the special crystals has broken down.

Mainwood, who owns the single-engined Piper Comanche, was to be co-pilot.

"I don't hold an instrument rating which is mandatory for the race. The pilot was going to be Edmonton oil company engineer S. "Sil" Baxter," he said.

Mainwood said there is no other firm in western Canada that can grind the required crystals.

"Without them we are out of the race," he said and observed there are other entries from the Vancouver and Abbotsford area "that are in the same boat."

He said there are three crystals needed.

They have to be manufactured because they are not a stock item. I ordered them May 24 and hoped for 10-day delivery. However, a 10-day delay now would make it too late for us to get into the race.

"I guess there are quite a few of us from B.C. who hoped to be in the race are in quite a quandary today," Mainwood said.

However, he hopes there are a few alternatives.

"I have wired as far away as Florida to see if I can get the crystals in time. If this is possible I could have them shipped to Montreal and pick them up on our way over."

If we can solve this radio problem we probably will get away from here Thursday."

The 7,851-mile race, which ends in Victoria July 7 is only the third trans-ocean, trans-continent race in aviation history. Prize money totals $125,000 with the first-place finisher receiving $50,000.

Wealth And Despair

By Don Gaig

The contrast between what is and what can be — this is what most impressed David Lewis, national leader of the New Democratic Party as he travelled across Canada, he told a meeting of several hundred persons who gathered at the Union Centre to meet him Monday night.

The confirmed, the 61-year-old leader explained, "he began the beauty and wealth that surrounds people compared to the anxiety and uncertainty of their daily lives.

"Every day of my experience I become convinced that we in the NDP are asking the right questions," said the Polish-born Lewis who emigrated with his family to Montreal at the age of 12.

"We are asking the right questions," he reiterated, "searching in the right direction and identifying the right foe — the corporate owners of this country."

The labor lawyer from Toronto, who has been called a tough-minded intellectual, shook his head as he told of listening Monday to the 11 heads of government gathered in Victoria for the constitutional conference.

"I was depressed," he said that these men are deciding the future of our country for centuries to come.

"Looking at Bennett, Smallwood, Thatcher, I say to myself, 'If there is a God, why does he not wake up?'" said the former Rhodes scholar who was the first Canadian president of the Oxford Union.

"They sounded as if they were speaking at a little by-election," he continued. "There was no excitement, no dedication or imagination. No feeling of our country being built anew. They were just petty politicians rehearsing again what they have rehearsed for so long."

The man who was the national secretary of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation from 1937 to 1950 told the meeting the people who were not elected should also attend the conference.

And the farmers, and the trade unionists, and the consumers, and the Voice of Women "and, I must say it, but not with enthusiasm, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the chambers of commerce. They all should be there."

He had the harshest words for Prime Minister Trudeau, the man who "everybody thought was going to change the country."

"He was going to turn the Liberal party into a party of principle. Those of us who are socialists know that parties don't change that way."

Instead, the Liberals have turned Trudeau into a prime minister with no principles. The swinger of 1968 is now a middle-aged married man.

"And his government," said the NDP member of Parliament from York South, "is the most reactionary and conservative government in many years. It's worse than the government of John Diefenbaker and that's saying something.

"Our unity is threatened more than it was when he was elected three years ago," said the man who had been his party's national vice-president since 1961. "We are overwhelmed by unemployment, our resources are being sold out to the U.S. There are regional discords, poverty is increasing and the housing crisis is worse than it ever was."

These conditions underline the importance of the recent by-election in the Ontario riding of Brant, Lewis said.

An unprepossessing figure — the native of Swidnica, Poland, stood tall when he spoke and his voice carried a dynamic voice speaking with authority. A colorful and extravagant speaker, he was also down to earth.

"We're not going to sweep Canada. I won't tell you we will because you wouldn't believe me and you'd be right. But in Saskatchewan I feel we'll do very well, and I also have a feeling that we'll win 10 days from now.

"That's my birthday and I hope to have the best birthday ever."

He was referring to the Saskatchewan election, June 23.

Earlier in his talk he sounded off on Premier Bennett. "This province perhaps needs us more than anywhere else," he said, "because you've got Bennett. With him you have nowhere to go but up.

Later he said, Bennett will, I'm not going to describe him. I have a way of being unkind.

He said he once described the Conservative party as a band of dinosaurs led by a funeral director.

Stanfield didn't like it.

He said he had been greeted by Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi "as a long-lost friend, he called me David, but I don't remember meeting him before."

Earlier in the evening Attorney-General of the NDP government of Manitoba spoke briefly to the meeting.

"We're trying to initiate the type of legislation you would expect us to pursue," he said.

"Even if we had an NDP government in every province, we'd still have our differences of opinion, but we would fashion the new equality in Canada."

The NDP is on the threshold of return to power in Saskatchewan, Mackling said, and termed the "magnificent victory in Brantford a barometer of our times."

"Pretty soon you may even swing Wacky Bennett here, too," he said in conclusion.
